SMOOT SEES TARIFF PASSAGE

G.O.P. LEADER TELLS HOOVER OUTLOOK GOOD

Finance Committee Head Assures President Revision Bill Will Pass Upper House by November 20 and Be Pushed Through Senate-House Conference Before Regular Session Begins—Optimism Not Shared by Republican Floor Leader Watson—Simmons Says Democrats Will Not Delay Action.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(I. N. S.)—With President Hoover apparently worried by the senate's slow progress on the tariff bill, Senator Reed Smoot, republican, Utah, went to the white house today to assure him that the bill will pass the senate by November 20 and be whirled through a senate-house conference before the regular session opens on December 2.

The finance committee chieftain's promise followed the statement of Senator Watson, Indiana, republican floor leader, to the president yesterday that hope of passing the bill in the special session—called for farm relief and tariff legislation — had about dwindled away.

Fresh from his white house conference, Senator Smoot sought out democratic leaders in an effort to enlist their co-operation in a plan to speed action on the measure.

Although the president has taken no open stand on the tariff rates he has indicated a desire to see the bill enacted during the special session, and is understood to have pressed administration leaders of the senate for action.

Demos To Attack Rates.

The rosy prediction of Senator Smoot did not find much favor among the democratic leaders, who are making a bitter attack upon

HUNDREDS FACE INDICTMENTS IN CHICAGO REGION

300 WARRANTS IN CALUMET DISTRICT

Police Forces and City Governments Crippled by Suspensions.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—(U. P.)—Public servants in Chicago and its fringe of suburban towns are being indicted by grand juries these days almost as rapidly as the courts can swear them in as defenders of the law.

Indicting policemen, mayors, aldermen and bailiffs on charges ranging from murder to petty conspiracies to quench the popular thirst with beer and moonshine appears to be the first order of business whenever grand jurors get together.

All over Chicagoland police departments and city administrations are limping along with their personnel depleted by temporary suspensions made necessary by grand jury reports that large numbers of public officials are guilty of certain crimes.

In Chicago proper it has come to pass that few citizens hold a grudge against the policeman who gives them a tag for unlawful parkings for tomorrow he may be indicted for murder.

Named in Slaying Case.

Today, for example, Police Lieut. Phil Carroll and his squad of four detectives were suspended from active duty by Police Chief William Russell and joined the large group of policemen who have discarded their uniforms in recent weeks to await their days in court.

Carroll and his men had been indicted on charges of taking part in the 1928 election day murder of Octavius Granady, negro candidate,

BOYS CONFESS KILLING CHILD

Two Brothers, "Farmed Out" by County Home, Tell of Slaying.

Placed Hands Over 3-Year-Old Tot's Mouth to Stop Screaming.

MILFORD, Conn., Oct. 12—(U. P.)—An American tragedy with poverty as its root and a killing as a climax was unfolded tonight as authorities continued the investigation of the killing of 3-year-old Albert Mikenas, to which two small boys have confessed.

In a statement published by the New Haven Times, Mrs. Eva Gotfrey Mulligan of New Haven, mother of the confessed killers, John and James Mulligan, age 9 and 7, declared the tragedy would never have occurred had the boys not been taken away from her and "farmed out" by the county home.

Authorities here were inclined to agree that the crime was the result of unpremeditated misdemeanors rather than a cold-blooded "thrill murder."

Attacked Child in a Swamp.

The brothers' confession to Milford police stated they had placed their hands over Albert's mouth to prevent his screams after they attacked him in a swamp near Walnut Beach here last August.

Medical examination revealed Albert was a "mouth breather" and suffocated when the boys covered his mouth.

"We did not mean to make him go away to God, Mamma," John, the eldest, told his mother at New Haven juvenile detention home where the boys are being held. "But he screamed and screamed and we were afraid someone would hear us and chase us so we just shut his mouth with our hands."

Mother Tells Her Story.

Weeping and almost hysterical, Mrs. Mulligan described in the Times interview how authorities had taken her boys away from her when her husband was sick and unable to work. Lately she said, they had been "better off" and had sought to recover custody of the boys.

"I went to authorities and told them I had a place for my children again, but they told me the children were 'farmed out' and that I was to go home and not worry," the mother related.

"They said everything would be all right.

"All right—is this all right?"

SENATE LOBBY QUIZ SHROUDED WITH SECRECY

Such Precautions Taken by Solons Only in Extreme Cases.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(U. P.)—Moving with unusual secrecy, the senate lobby investigating committee has called seven "mystery witnesses" for the opening investigation Tuesday.

Only three of the five members of the committee are informed as to what is expected to be divulged, which is in distinct contrast to the usually obvious manner in which the senate investigations have been undertaken.

Such precautions have been adopted only in extreme cases to prevent escape of future witnesses, and those who are informed say this is the purpose of the present reticence.

Caraway Explains.

"The witnesses go to the heart of the matter before the committee," Chairman Caraway said in explaining why the committee had

6-Inch Rain Floods Town In Oklahoma

WEWOKA, Okla., Oct. 12—(INS)—A rain of cloudburst proportions flooded much of the lower end of Wewoka late today, cutting off transportation facilities to the north and throwing hundreds of homes in the surrounding territory into darkness. A brilliant electrical display accompanied the rainfall.

The Cromwell and Sasakwa communities, oil towns, were without lights and augmented crews were working feverishly trying to make connections. The flood raised havoc with the city's gas pipe lines, uprooted trees and washed away small buildings.

It is estimated that between six and seven inches of rain have fallen here within the last forty-eight hours.

HIT-RUN DRIVER STILL UNKNOWN

Inquest Will Be Held Monday Into Death of Mrs. Brubaker.

The identity of the hit and run driver who struck and killed Mrs. M. L. Brubaker, 76, as she was crossing O street near Forty-third Friday evening remained a mystery late Saturday night after twenty-four hours of search by police, working on scanty clues.

The offer of $100 reward made by County Attorney Max G. Towle for information leading to arrest and conviction of the driver of the death car has as yet failed to elicit any aid in the hunt. It is possible that some information will be gleaned from the inquest into the death, which is scheduled for 9:30 o'clock Monday morning at Henry Brown's mortuary.

The six men who will hear the evidence in the fatality are John Schmid, 3210 Dudley street; E. Immenhausen, 2118 Sewell street; Edward P. Baer, 2836 Cedar street; W. T. Griffin, 927 South Thirteenth street; Herman Beckman, 1325 A street and T. A. Clements, 1649 Vine street.

LABOR SCORES IMPRESSIVE GAIN IN AUSTRALIA

PREMIER BRUCE MAY BE DEFEATED

Laborites Certain to Hold Office in the New Administration.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Oct. 12—(U. P.)—There has been a landslide against the composite nationalist and country party, led by Premier Bruce, it was revealed today. Labor will certainly hold office in the new administration in Australia, Bruce himself may be defeated.

The count in Flinders so far shows Bruce 25,266 and Holloway, labor, 26,155. Later figures may possibly assist Bruce, but in all liklihood he will be defeated.

Three Ministers Lose.

Three of Bruce's ministers also appear to have been defeated. Hughes and Marks, who were mainly responsible for the defeat of the government and the calling of the election, have been victorious at the polls.

Speaker Groom, who refrained from voting on the fateful arbitration bill, thus declining to save the government, was hopelessly defeated in Darling downs.

Labor appears to have won six

CULT MYSTERY IS HEIGHTENED

Woman Tells Police She Can Lead Them to Sect's Burial Ground.

Leader Admits Member Who is Missing Danced in Poisoned Sand.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 12—(U. P.)—Interest in the Divine Order of the Royal Arms of the Great Eleven heightened here tonight.

Police announced that a woman, a former member of the religious cult, had told them in a telephone conversation she could lead them to the "burying ground."

Identity of the woman, if learned by police, was not made public, nor was other information she may have given except that she promised the "most startling revelations."

The cult, under investigation since the preserved body of 16-year-old Willa Rhoads was found in the home of her parents, is one of the most unusual organizations ever uncovered in the state.

It has been rumored that practices indulged in by members may have resulted in deaths and location of the alleged "burying grounds" is sought.

Dance in Poisoned Sand.

The latest development in the cult expose is admission of a dance in poisoned sand. Mrs. Otis Blackburn, a leader in the organization, said the dance had been performed ten times in 1925 by Samuel Rizzo.

Rizzo has not been seen for several years and authorities are seeking his whereabouts in an effort to clear some of the mystery connected with the Great Eleven.

Rizzo performed the dance in sand sprinkled with a powerful poison to "rid him of another belief that prevented him from accepting his concord in the Great Eleven," Mrs. Blackburn said.

The woman and her daughter, Ruth Weiland, who is said to have been married to the missing man, are awaiting preliminary hearing on a charge of fleecing a cult member of $40,000.

Lincoln Child Is Hurt As Car Goes Into Telephone Pole

When H. C. Pastabend, 1214 South Twenty-first street, turned his car into the curb and struck a telephone pole in order to avoid hitting another machine at Eighteenth and C streets Saturday afternoon, his 3-year-old daughter, Mary, was thrown against the windshield, sustaining slight scratches about her face from the broken glass. The little girl was taken to the home of Dr. E. B. Finney who stated that her injuries were slight. Mrs. Fastabend and two other babies were in the car at the time of the crash.

TWO ARE INJURED AS CARS COLLIDE

Pauline Stolte, Madeline Slagle Hurt In Crash on Holdrege Street.

Pauline Stolte, 21, 2298 Sheldon street, and Madeline Slagle, 11 were injured, neither seriously when cars driven by Miss Stolte and Mrs. H. W. Hopkins, 7040 Starr street, sister of Madeline Slagle, collided at Twenty-first and Holdrege streets at 5:20 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

A severe wound to the right eye which perforated the eyeball was the most serious injury sustained by Miss Slagle, according to Dr. J. W. Thomas, who attended her at St. Elizabeth's hospital. If no further complications develop, the eyesight will not be endangered, Dr. Thomas believes. She also sustained a laceration in the outside corner of the right eye, a three-inch cut above the left eye and a skinned knee. She was taken to the hospital in a private car.

Miss Stolte was taken to Lincoln General hospital in Umberger's ambulance, where she was attended by Drs. Clarence Emerson and W. W. Carveth. An X-ray examination showed no internal injuries or fractured bones. Her hurts consisted principally of a minor cut on her chin and bruises about the body. She was resting easy Saturday night, hospital attendants said.

According to police accounts of the accident, Miss Stolte attempted to turn across Holdrege street into a filling station and collided with the other machine going east on Holdrege street. Both cars were badly damaged.

HALT SALE OF SEIZED BOATS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(I. N. S.)—The coast guard will not sell any more vessels that it seizes in the rum running business, it was announced today. A CIRCUS ANIMAL MAKES ESCAPE AND INJURES TRAINER

"Black Diamond" Causes Panic at Corsicana, Texas, When He Attacks and Kills Mrs. Eva Donohue, 53, Seriously Injures Attendant and Wrecks Three Automobiles — Runs Wild Through Parked Cars of Persons Watching Unloading of Tent Show — Finally Subdued and Chained in Boxcar.

CORSICANA, Tex., Oct. 12—(U. P.)—"Black Diamond," giant elephant of the Al G. Barnes circus, was in chains tonight after he had run amuck and before a panic stricken crowd killed a woman, seriously injured his trainer and wrecked three automobiles.

THE WEATHER.

Upper Mississippi and Lower Missouri Valleys: Temperatures mostly normal or above; not much precipitation likely.

Nebraska: Fair Sunday and Monday; slightly warmer Sunday in east and southwest portions.

Kansas: Fair Sunday and Monday somewhat unsettled; not much change in temperature.

The dead woman was Mrs. Eva Donohue, 53, of Kerns, Tex. The elephant split her skull with one of his ivory tusks and threw her body more than twenty feet with his trunk.

The animal then attacked his trainer, Charles Pritchard, and tossed him over two boxcars. Pritchard was believed injured internally in addition to suffering a broken arm.

Finally Subdued.

"Black Diamond", then ran wild through parked cars of persons who had come to witness the unloading of the circus, smashed three circus cages and finally was subdued.

He retreated to his boxcar where he was chained to two fellow animals.

W. N. Cannan of Corsicana and Bert Griffin of Kerns were credited with leading the attack which subdued the enraged creature.

Circus officials were at a loss to explain the elephant's actions. He had not been mistreated, they said.

Hurls Trainer Over Boxcarr.

Pritchard tonight said he was starting to lead "Black Diamond" to the show grounds when the beast suddenly rolled and unrolled his trunk, throwing his trainer over the boxcar. Circus attendants attempted to stop the elephant as he charged toward his woman victim. She stood in her tracks as if paralyzed, witnesses said.

Finally, by use of barbed hooks, the bull was hobbled.

William Denny, assistant circus manager, said that "Black Diamond" never had given any trouble until today.

SAY DIPHTHERIA IS ON INCREASE

Forty-Seven Cases Reported in State During September.

Local Authorities Asked to Take Step to Curb Spread.

Indications that diphtheria is becoming more prevalent in Nebraska, in common with other states, are found in the September summary of contagious and infectious diseases, issued by State Health Director Bartholomew during the past week.

Forty-seven cases of that malady were reported to the bureau of health during September, compared with 14 in August. The number in September a year ago was 40.

The official bulletin urges concerted action by local health authorities and physicians in preventing the spread of diphtheria. General immunization by treatment similar to smallpox vaccination is recommended for that purpose.

Smallpox Less In Evidence.

Where diphtheria appears to be increasing, the statistics show that scarlet fever and smallpox are less in evidence than at this time a year ago, while poliomyelitis is entirely missing from the monthly health sheet.

The September count of scarlet fever was 46, while the same month in 1928 showed 82. During this year there were 36 cases, compared with 54 a year previous.

Smallpox fell off from 86 cases in September last year to 21 for the corresponding month of 1928. A decrease from 38 to 26 cases was reported in August.

No Poliomyelitis.

Not a single case of poliomyelitis was listed in either month this year, whereas, in 1928 there were 12 reported during September and 4 in August.

Even the diphtheria showing for the state as a whole is not bad. Of the 47 cases which occurred during the past month, 31 were in Douglas county. Lancaster had only one. Only five other counties reported this disease existing within their boundaries. They were Lincoln, Otoe Saunders, Scotts Bluff and Thomas.

Scarlet fever was more widely distributed, cases of that malady being reported from 21 counties. Only one of these was in Lancaster.

SAM PENNINGTON IS ENTHUSIASTIC OVER LINCOLN'S GROWTH

"I've seen remarkable changes in many cities of the middle west but nothing to compare with that in Lincoln," declared Sam Pennington of Chicago, former Lincoln advertisig man, who was in the city Saturday on business.

Mr. Pennington, who is the founder of the Lincoln Advertising club, left the city in 1915. Since that time he has traveled in every state in the union. No city is as much talked about within a reasonable radius as is Lincoln, he stated.

"I was told throughout the western states how wonderful Lincoln was," he stated adding that he found improvements more marked than he had expected.

The city's building development was especially mentioned. Besides the capitol structure, which attracted Mr. Pennington's attention were the new downtown store and office buildings.

LONG LEASE TO BATTERY FIRM

J. Lawson Robb to Erect $20,000 Building At Seventeenth and N.

Lease of the D. E. Thomas property at the northwest corner of Seventeenth and N streets, was announced Saturday by J. W. Lawson Robb, proprietor of the Western Storage Battery Co. The lease runs for ninety-nine years and involves $180,000. It was negotiated through Lawrence F. Farrell.

As soon as the three houses now on the lot have been removed, Mr. Robb will begin erection of a battery service station to cost approximately $20,000. This should be about November 1, the tenants having been notified to vacate by that time.

The new building will cover the entire lot, 50 by 142 feet. It will be of red brick and steel and will front on both Seventeenth and N streets, entrance being arranged for the N street side. The office will face Seventeenth street on which thoroughfare the exit also will be.

According to Mr. Robb he intends to make the new building one of the most modern for battery service in the middle west. There will be a number of features, he said, not heretofore incorporated in any battery service station in this section of the country.

The N street side will be reserved for service space.

The property which Mr. Robb has leased is one of the oldest residential places in the city. The house is a landmark and is still being occupied by Mrs. Thomas.

PROBERS MAY CALL KELLOGG

Quiz of Shipbuilders Will Probably Be Resumed October 21.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 — (I. N. S.)—The senate's investigation into the activities of William B. Shearer at the Geneva naval limitation conference will be resumed soon with prospects that both ex-Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg and Sir William Wiseman, head of the British intelligence service during the World war, may be called to testify.

Senator Shortridge, republican, California, chairman of the subcommittee investigating the employment of Shearer by three American shipbuilding companies as an "observer" at Geneva, said that hearings probably would be resumed a week from Monday.

The committee, after a meeting today, indicated that it desired to hear what Kellogg has to say about Shearer's statement that Kellogg warned shipbuilding companies to discontinue Shearer's employment.

Says Document Forgery.

Sir William Wiseman's statement is wanted upon the document now in the committee's possession, which purports to give the ex-intelligence chief's views on Anglo-American naval affairs. Sir William, now employed by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. of New York, has declared the document a forgery.

It is understood to bristle with anti-American sentiment and is said to have been used by Shearer in his "big navy" propaganda.

Shearer will be called first when the committee resumes its inquiry. Other witnesses to be called again include Clinton Bardo of the New York Shipbuilding Co.; Admiral Reeves, who denied he hoped the Geneva conference would fail; Captain Hepburn, who gave Shearer a letter to carry to Italy, and Laurence Wilder, who dispensed part of the $143,000 fund raised by shipbuilders to push merchant marine legislation.

STOCKS MAKE A GOOD RECOVERY

Losses Sustained in Previous Week Are Largely Regained.

Business Still Maintaining a Full Degree of Activity.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—(I. N. S.)—Trade reports and industrial news indicate that business is still maintaining a full degree of activity. Aiding in the matter of trade distribution this week has been a return of cool weather, which gave such an impetus to distributive trade in September. Additional reports indicate that some of the heavy lines, while showing a sag from earlier months this year, still have gains over a year ago.

Aided by a five per cent charge for call money for the first time in fourteen months, the stock market rebounded sharply from last week's crash. By Friday's close all but a few stocks had recovered the losses sustained in the break at the close of last week and several issues had gone ahead to out-distance their September peaks. One of the most striking features of the week was Thursday's twelve point advance in United States Steel on the publication of an unexpectedly favorable unfilled tonnage report. The market recovery has been broad and well led, and at the close of trading this week, the index figures, as measured by the movements of leading issues, had regained more than half the ground lost during the five weeks decline of September and October.

Declines Balanced.

In the steel trade, the relative quieting down of automobile manufacturing and reported slowness of sales of new and used cars is apparently directly reflected in lower pressed sheets. On the other hand, the railroads have bought more freely of rails and track fastenings and of cars and fabricated structural steel for heavy construction has been reported very active. That the buying in these heavy lines in September more than balanced, in weight, the declines in lighter lines is indicated by the report of the United States Steel corporation of an increase of 244,00 tons in its unfilled orders during that month.

Building contracts awarded for September, though the precise figures have not yet been released, indicate a fairly heavy decline, especially in residence construction, from the figures of August and July, and from the figures of September, 1928. Tht indications are that the decline from September of a year ago will measurably exceed 20 per cent.

Official crop reports issued this week were examined with perhaps more than the usual interest. This was especially true of the forecast on cotton production, regarding which there had been considerable divergence of opinion. The government estimate, contrary to the expectation of a goodly number of authorities in this field, placed the prospective yield above 14,000,000 bales, indicating a gain of 90,000 bales over the calculation made a month ago. The official report was out of line with most private estimates, and had a temporarily unsettling effect in sepculative markets.

Bigger Corn Yield Seen.

Later in the week, the government also announced forecasts on grain crops, the special feature being an increase of about 72,000,000 bushels in the indicated corn harvest. Even with that addition, however, the present outlook is for a yield nearly 312,000,000 bushels under that of 1928, while a smaller wheat crop is also foreshadowed.

One of the outstanding developments in foreign exchange for the week was the rise in tserling exchange to above par for the first time this year.

Freight loadings continue to give favorable testimony to business activity. Loadings for the latest week reported, that ended September 28, totaled 1,202,111 cars, nearly the largest week's loading on record, and an increase of nearly 36,000 cars over the preceding week this year.

Another week of unusually heavy bank clearings has been recorded, an aggregate of $14,182,760,000 being reported. This amount is 27.3 per cent above the total for a year ago.

Wheat Prices Steady.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—(I. N. S.)—Wheat hovered within a narrow range durin gthe week's trade. Local sentiment was mainly bearish but support on breaks was sufficient to hold the market in check. There was little change in the general wheat situation. Export business continued moderate and it was generally believed that the market will make little headway until a better demand develops. Private advices from New York late in the week pointed to more active export trade shortly.

Heavy arrivals and continued favorable weather conditions over the belt tended to depress the corn market. Oats had a draggy tendency in svmpathy with corn.

Prices for the week for wheat were up ⅝ to ¾ cent, corn off 2 to 2⅜ cents and oats 1¼ to 1½ cents lower.

Domestic planting conditions were improved in the hard winter wheat areas, but soft winter sections need moisture. Crop news from Canada was mixed. Outside markets were rregular.

Late reports of probable yelds from abroad were bullish, indicating at least 100,000,000 bushels less wheat than last year in Argentisa and Australia.

The cash corn market ruled firm. Outsidei nterest is still limited, with a general belief among traders to look for a continuation of a draggy market pending the new crop movement.

Hog Market Irregular.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—(I. N. S.)—The market for hogs was irregular during the week. Lights dropped 10 to 15c for the week, while heavy grades advanced fully 25c. A slow and draggy demand for the dressed product at eastern consuming centers acted as a barrier in the way of advancing light hogs prices. Heavy grades were in good demand. Receipts for the week were estimated at 131,000 against 130,000 last week and 121,000 a year ago.

Choice hogs were quoted at $10.15 late, with most good grades at $9.75 to $10.10. Plainer classes ranged from $9.50 to $9.75. Sows were listed at $8 to $9.

Cattle receipts for the week were 57,000 against 52,000 last week and 48,000 a year ago. Demand centered strongly on yearlings and that class of steers advanced 25 to 50c. Some prime handyweight yearlings topped at $16.50. Heavy steers were hard to sell at reductions of 25 to 50c. Not many cattle sold above $15.50. Medium to good steers brought $13 to $15.

Butcher stock sold on an uneven basis most of the week and finished steady to 25c lower on grass fed cows and heifers. Most of the cows moved at $6.50 to $8 and heifers at $8 to $11. Fat yearling heifers were scarce and gained 25c at $14 to $15. Calves ruled steady with top at $15.50.

Lambs advanced from 50c to $1 during the week, with an active demand. The slaughter class of western lambs moved at $12 to $13.50. Good and choice native lambs brought $13 to $13.75. Culls sold at $9 to $11.50. Receipts for the week were 95,000 against 85,000 last week and 105,000 a year ago.

Chicago Cotton Lower.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—(I. N. S.)—Cotton finished the week 19 to 35 points lower. The chief bear factor was the government crop estimate of 14,915,000 bales against 14,825,000 bales a month ago and 14,478,000 bales a year ago.

Upon issuance of the report early in the week prices dropped 31 to 41 points, rallied somewhat later with strong cables and trade buying. After mid-week the market ruled generally lower with commission house buying.

The government weekly weather report was generally unfavorable, but failed to encourage much buying. Late reports from cloth and yarn markets indicated a quiet business, with prices unchanged.

PROFIT MAKING and PROFIT KEEPING

SUCCESSFUL investment entails two phases—Profit Making—and—Profit Keeping.

Much attention is always given to the former—and we believe—not nearly enough attention is given to the latter. The man who gives his attention to Profit Keeping builds his fortune on a sound foundation.

And we feel that nothing can take the place of high grade first mortgage bonds as the foundation for a sound investment structure, from the standpoint of safety for both principal and income. And that there has never been a time when it has seemed more expedient to put your investments on a sound basis—to give your attention to Profit Keeping.

Let Our Bond and Mortgage Department Help You in This Matter.

that land on a cushion

WHEN temporary breaks come, indentations in the ever ascending curve of American prosperity, individual stocks even of the most successful companies, go down with the general list.

But Incorporated Investors lands on a cushion of the "average of selective diversification."

The price decline of Incorporated Investors during general market recessions is retarded by the use of resources to take advantage of lowered or lowering prices. Then you witness the success of massed, institutional investing as against individual investing.

Remember, Incorporated Investors buys only those companies whose fields are the most promising; whose surpluses are more than ample; whose directorates have again and again demonstrated their ability, and whose earning records are impressive.

The price range of Incorporated Investors is truly the index of the investment market as separate from the many indexes of the trading market.

An investment in Incorporated Investors shares will give you a reward commensurate with the best profit attainments in American business.

MRS. BENNETT AWAITING FATE

Partner at Kansas City Bridge Game Describes Fatal Party.

Wife Who Shot Mate to Know Tuesday If She Must Stand Trial.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 12—(I. N. S.)—Tonight Mrs. Myrtle Bennett, who shot and killed her husband, John G. Bennett, following that eventful night September 29 which marked "bum" playing and "heated passion," nervously awaits her fate.

For today, attired in black and with her face concealed with a handkerchief, she heard Justice Frank Benanti say that he will announce his decision Tuesday morning whether or not she will be held for trial in Criminal court, and further added that on Monday morning she will learn if she will be released on bond.

She listened attentively to the three witnesses presented to Justice Benanti by James R. Page, prosecutor, and Assistant George Charnon to prove that first degree murder by shooting had been committed.

She trembled as she took her seat behind her attorney, Francis O'Sullivan, who requested that she be released on bond. She fought hard to keep from fainting as her mother, Mrs. Alice Adkins, first witness to testify, took the stand and began to tell of the events preceding the tragedy.

Mother Is Frightened.

The elderly woman, very much frightened at the curious gaze of the spectators, told how she was awakened by her daughter entering the bedroom.

"I saw my daughter put her hand into a drawer in a linen chest and take out an automatic pistol," she testified. "She said she was getting the pistol for Mr. Bennett, who was going to St. Joseph. My daughter went out of the bedroom and closed the door.

"I heard some shots. I went into the living room and put my arms around my daughter to prevent her from shooting herself."

Mrs. Adkins said she asked her daughter:

"What on earth are you doing?"

Mrs. Bennett, who was sobbing, said:

"He hit me; he was fighting me and he twisted my arm."

Charles Hofman, who with his wife composed the partners in the bridge game, was the next to testify. Mrs. Hofman was present but was not called upon as a witness.

That Fatal Hand.

"We had a fine game of cards," Hofman said. "We played contract bridge about two and one-half hours. Early in the game Mr. and Mrs. Bennett were winning. Later Mrs. Hofman and I were the winners. Mr. Bennett opened with one spade bid. I raised with two diamonds. Mrs. Bennett raised to four spades and laid down her hand for dummy. I naturally believed Mr. Bennett would make the bid. He did not make it."

Mrs. Bennett, according to Hofman, called her husband a "bum bridge player" for going set. Bennett took exception to his wife's chiding and finally stood up and "slapped Mrs. Bennett three or four times."

Hofman said Bennett "jeered and sneered" and told Hofman there was no use trying to quiet his wife's anger because "she gets those brain storms frequently."

ELDERLY WATCHMAN SLAIN.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 12—(I. N. S.)—John Striplin, elderly night watchman at a local warehouse, was found fatally wounded at his post late tonight. Police started a search for an unknown assailant, who, it was believed, had overpowered the watchman and wounded him after being surprised in the act of robbing the company.

Passion Play Will Be Here This Week

Scene from the Lord's Supper as interpreted by the Freiburg actors in their presentation of the Passion Play which will be given at the university coliseum Thursday, Friday and Saturday under the auspices of American Legion post No. 3.

While this scene is being developed to bring to life Da Vinci's famous painting, the chorus sings Mozart's "Ave Verum." The music is, throughout the play, an assembly of the choice selections of the masters of sacred music. Scene after scene is augmented with chorus work and individual numbers including the solos of Adolph Fassnacht, tenor, who plays the part of "Christus." When the chorus is not blending with the orchestra, the latter plays alone, selections from Wagner, Sokoloff, Bach, Gounod and others.

Adolph Fassnacht, playing the leading role, is carrying the part which members of his family have had for seven generations. His life work has been bound up in the adequate portrayal of the character, so much so that tempting opera offers in this country have been ignored.

Historical tradition plays a part in the lives of all the members of the cast of thirty. The parents of the present group performed the play in the public square before the tions from all over Europe were ac- Freiberg cathedral. Urgent invitacepted to give the story to as many as possible. The same purpose brought the company to America last year to dedicate the new Krug park at St. Joseph, and to keep them touring this country since that time.

Harold Loring is musical director of the Passion Play in Lincoln. He was chosen for this work because of an intimate knowledge of instrumentation and orchestration and experience in conducting large choruses.

Scullin Likely Premier.

LONDON, Oct. 12—(I. N. S.)—Reflecting the dominance of the labor party in the mother country, the laborites of Australia scored a sweeping victory in the general elections there today and succeeded in ousting Stanley M. Bruce, nationalist prime minister, according to Sydney dispatches to The Times.

The labor party obtained fifty seats in the house of representatives, a clean cut majority. The nationalists had to be content with sixteen, according to the dispatch, while the other minor parties won a total of nine.

The labor party in Australia is headed by James Henry Scullin, who in all likelihood will become the new prime minister.

ties of life," he stated. "Youth has strength, initiative, hope and various abilities, and it is particularly proper that he should prepare himself for maturity. Youth has no right to shun this burden. There is no place in life for the lazy man."

The errors that frequently characterize youth are only a necessary part of the human make-up, Dr. Hobbs said.

"Youth, Christ and the Church," theme of the meeting, was explained in three toasts. Miss Gladys Magnuson of Chapman, Neb., a student in Grand Island Baptist college, spoke on "Youth." Vernon K. Brooks of Lincoln spoke on "Christ" and Miss Thelma Terry of Tilden, Neb., on "The Church."

Herbert L. Hudson, president of the Greater Omaha B. Y. P. U., was toastmaster, while Paul Walker of Lincoln, president of the state organization, was master of ceremonies and in charge of the program. Song services were led by Miss Annie Larsen of Hastings, Neb.

Gary Is Hard Hit.

Deputies are busy serving warrants on more than 300 persons, many of them public officials who have been indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law in the Calumet steel district. Among the 300 are twenty Gary policemen, some aldermen, a Gary court bailiff and Mayor Raleigh P. Hale and Chief of Police Jimmy R. Eagen of East Chicago.

Four other suburban villages were robbed of their mayors by the previous federal grand jury which found evidence indicating that the chief executives of Calumet Park, Argo, Melrose Park and Stickney were involved in the activities of bootleggers who had established headquarters in their towns.

overlooked the lobbyists whose activities have been apparent during consideration of the tariff bill.

The first witness is expected to be William Burgess, a veteran who has appeared before congressional committees in behalf of tariff schedules on pottery, wool and electrical products since 1894. Linking his name with that of Frederick K. Koch, a pottery expert on the tariff committee, by the investigation committee, has caused reports that the committee intends to go further into the pottery and glassware increases which are granted in the pending bill.

Burgess Quizzed Before.

Burgess was investigated by the Robinson committee of the senate several years ago. He testified before the house ways and means committee in 1922 that he looked after the administration of the tariff law for the United States Potters association of Trenton, N. J.

"I kept in touch with developments of the tariff law and advised the committees of congress as to the needs of the industry," he said.

In the Robinson investigation, Burgess denied he was a lobbyist unless the term meant "looking after the interests of the manufacturer, in which case I may properly be called a lobbyist."

He presented a personal card which he said had been written by the late President Wilson, reading: "Introducing my friend, Mr. Burgess. W. W."

Other Witnesses.

The other five witnesses whose names were divulged today are:

Thomas O. Marvin, chairman of the United States tariff commission, who formerly represented wool interests in tariff disputes.

Edgar B. Brossard, member of the commission, from Utah.

H. A. Huston, United States Beet Sugar Co.

S. C. Lakin, president, the Cuba company.

H. R. Wylie of the Wylie China Co., Charleston, W. Va.

Caraway said Marvin, Wylie and Brossard were called in the same connection as Koch and Burgess—in the pottery case.

COVIN SENTENCED IN TEXAS SLAYING

Draws Seven-Year Term for Killing Benefield on Main Street of Beaumont.

BEAUMONT, Tex., Oct. 12—(UP)—A. D. Covin was sentenced today to serve seven years in prison by a jury in Criminal District court which convicted him of the slaying of T. J. Benefield on the main street here in June.

Covin's aged mother, Mrs. Laura Guibry of Marshall, became hysterical when the verdict was read and collapsed after being taken screaming from the courtroom.

His defense was based on a self defense plea and on the unwritten law. His attorney's indicated they would ask a new trial.

Era of Painless Slaughter and No Dog Catchers Predicted By Lincoln Humane Society Officer

The general use of painless methods in the slaughter of millions of cattle, hogs, and sheep each year for food purposes is very probable in the United States in the near future, E. A. Gehrke predicted upon his return from the annual meeting of the American Humane association held in St. Louis last week.

The association, he believes, is realizing one of its major objectives of recent years. Reports made at the meeting indicate that progress is being made both in the development of painless methods of slaughter and in convincing the packers of the desirability of their use.

"It was also gratifying," Mr. Gehrke said, "to learn that the societies everywhere are gradually doing away with the old fashioned dog catcher. Most of them have adopted the same method that we have been trying to install in Lincoln, that of educating the public to buy dog licenses or come to court. Thus the punishment is shifted from the dog to the guilty party, the dog owner."

The association reaffirmed its opposition to rodeos and wild west shows, attacked the display of canaries in "jail-like" cages, and deplored the "setting up" of horses' tails by nicking the muscles near the tail base to produce an arch.

Use Electricity.

Of the addresses, that of Dr. Francis H. Rowley, president of the Massachusetts society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, appealed especially to Mr. Gehrke.

Dr. Rowley spoke on "Slaughter House Reform," reviewing the long fight that has been made since 1870 to discover some humane method for the slaughter of 100,000,000 animals killed for food annually in America. He declared our methods crude in the extreme and far behind those employed in Germany, Switzerland and Holland. But since 1922 real strides have been made in the United States. Dr. Rowley told of a series of experiments which are being conducted to have animals stunned by electricity before the actual slaughter takes place as is done in Bavaria.

Great Expense Involved.

"The problem is a gigantic one," said Dr. Rowley. "To change over the whole plan of the killing pens with the complicated machinery employed, and to do this without too seriously interrupting the entire organization, involves an expenditure of time and money greater than we can estimate.

"The packers are with us, and are determined to work out the innumerable and costly details that will ultimately mean reducing to a minimum the suffering endured by animals slaughtered for food."

FALL ATTENDS COURT DESPITE GRAVE ILLNESS

Ex-Cabinet Member "Would Rather Die" Than See Trial End.

Defense Scores All Points in Cross Examination of Finney.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(I. N. S.)—Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior during the Harding administration, faced a most welcome twenty-four hours of rest tonight as his trial on bribery charges recessed over the week-end.

The aged defendant, charged with having accepted $100,000 from E. L. Doheny in exchange for a lease on the Elk Hills naval oil reserve, is suffering from bronchial pneumonia and has appeared in court the last two days in absolute defiance of his doctor's orders. Immediately upon adjournment of court today he was rushed back to his hotel and put to bed, first being given additional doses of strychnine and codein.

Through his lawyers, Fall has given out word that he will not let the trial conclude prematurely through his failure to appear "even if it kills him." The government made a strong effort to have a mistrial declared when Fall collapsed Tuesday, but he heard of the move and, ignoring his physician and the pleas of his family, ordered himself dressed and brought to court. Too feeble to walk, he comes and goes in a wheel chair in charge of two nurses.

Wants Vindication.

"Fall says he will not have this indictment hanging longer over his head," Frank J. Hogan, chief defense attorney, declared today. "He feels he was tried and morally acquitted of the charge when he and Doheny were found not guilty of conspiracy three years ago, and he says he would rather die in court than have a mistrial declared."

The defense scored all the points made during the course of the day's brief session. E. C. Finney, former assistant secretary of interior and present solicitor of the department, was the only witness and Hogan spent all of the time cross-examining him. A number of telegrams and letters were introduced which indicated that the Elk Hills lease had been bid upon and negotiated at the direction of the navy department, the bureau of mines and Finney, and at a time when Fall was "2,000 miles away at Three Rivers, N. M."

CAGLE AND ARMY DEFEAT DAVIDSON

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 12—(U. P.)—Army defeated Davidson College of North Carolina today by a score of 23 to 7.

The Cadets were hard pressed throughout the first two periods, having to be content with a total of 3 points during the first half of the game while Davidson had scored a touchdown and counted the extra point for a total of 7.

However, Chris Cagle led the advance on the Davidson goal in the third quarter which was not halted until Murrel had gone over for the first Army score. Okeefe placekicked the extra point. Cagle himself scored a touchdown for the Cadets in the same period which ended 16 to 7 in Army's favor. Davidson's touchdown in the second period came when Brock passed 40 yards to King over the Army goal line. The final period Stuart, substituting for Cagle scored again for Army. The game was featured by long dashes by Cagle who played but a brief time in the first and third periods.

Hoffman Guilty

INDEPENDENCE, Kas., Oct. 12—(U.P.)—A jury which deliberated two hours Saturday found J. C. Hoffman, Cherryvale, guilty of second degree murder.

Hoffman killed his former wife, Ethel, on June 8, last, surrendering to officers after the killing. He has ben held in the county jail since.

The shooting was the result of a quarrel during which she demanded he marry her for the fourth time. He maintained he accidentally shot her during a scuffle for the revolver.

Judge J. W. Holdren, who heard the case, will pass sentence next Saturday, the minimum sentence being ten years, with a maximum of life.

SMOOT FORESEES TARIFF PASSAGE

both the administrative features and rates in the bill.

Senator Simmons, democrat, North Carolina, ranking democrat on the finance committee, expressed doubt the bill could be passed by November 20, and said that even then it could not be gotten through conference and enacted before the regular session.

"I cannot speak for the republicans who have been aiding us, but there is no disposition among the democrats to delay one minute longer than is necessary for proper discussion of the bill," he said.

"I don't think any living man can make a prediction as to when the bill can pass the senate. If we do pass it by November 20 we will have made good headway. I hope we can."

Important Amendments Pending.

The republican leaders will make an effort to close up the administrative features of the bill early next week, and get down to consideration of specific rates.

Expressing hope that this can be done, Simmons pointed out that many important amendments are pending. These include the George amedment for a consumers' counsel before the tariff commission, his amendment forcing reorganization of the commission within thirty days after the bill is passed and Simmons' amendment defining transportation costs.

The senate laid the tariff bill aside today, the Notre Dame-Navy football game at Baltimore and the world series game at Philadelphia proving too much competition.

Brown Eleven Upsets Princeton Team 13-12

PRINCETON, Oct. 12—(I. N. S.)—A battling Brown eleven defeated Princeton here this afternoon by the close score of 13 to 12 before a crowd of 25,000 fans.

The two rivals, each in their turn, waged an uphill fight.

Brown scored first, early in the second quarter and added the winning point. Then Princeton tallied in the second period nad once again in the third, but it neglected the ceremony of adding the damaging point after touchdowns that might have been.

As they entered the final quarter, the teams were waging warfare strictly on even terms for the first time. The tide of success swung back and forth until suddenly, Brown came into possession of the ball on the 55 yard line by recovering a Princeton fumble. This was a moment for desperate action and Brown met it.

First a forward pass from Fogarty to Edwards made 30 yards and put the ball 21 yards from its destination. A line play worked for a few yards, two forward passes failed, and then on the fourth down, the climatic pass was made.

ONE COUNTY HAS NO BARBER SHOP

Files of State Board Show No Licenses In Banner.

Four Counties Have But One Shop and Three Have Only Too.

One county in Nebraska is devoid of that modern institution known as a barber shop. Files of the state barber board reveal the fact that Banner county has no one licensed to practice the tonsorial art there. The only incorporated town in that county is Harrisburg, the county seat, with a population of 135, according to the census of 1920. It is more than 25 miles from a railroad line.

It may be that some "cornfield barber" is operating there; but if so the barber board has not heard of it. If anyone were found dispensing shaves and haircuts for money, without having taken out a state license, he would be subject to prosecution. Moreover, he would be barred from further practice unless he could show that he had attended a barber college for six months and was able to pass an examination at the board's hands.

The only other recourse available to Banner county residents needing personal service of this kind is to shave themselves and cut each other's hair, or go to some town in a neighboring county to have their barber work done.

Every other county in the state has at least one barber shop for the accommodation of its people. In the single-shop list are Arthur, Loup, McPherson, and Sioux. There are two establishments each in Blaine, Hayes, and Thomas counties.

Over 1,700 Shops in State.

Barber emporiums in the entire state number 1,739, while the number of registered barbers is 4,051. This does not include 775 haircutters working in beauty shops, who are also licensed by the state barber board.

Considering barbers alone, the average number to each shop is 2 1-3. However, in many instances the owner of the shop does all the work himself. Most of the others have only two operators — the proprietor and one employe. Sometimes a man and his wife take turns at the chair; but this is unusual, as both must hold barber licenses.

City establishments as a rule use three or more barbers, the number running up to eight or ten in a few places.

The distribution of barber shops over the state is roughly in proportion to population. One shop to every 900 persons is about the average. There is a barber for every 270 inhabitants, including men, women, and children. These ratios do not hold uniformly, however.

Lincoln has 113 shops; Omaha, 291; Hastings, 30; Grand Island, 24; Kearney, 18; Fremont, 17; North Platte, 15; Madison, 14; Beatrice and Scottsbluff, 13 each; Falls City, 12; Fairbury and McCook, 10 each; Alliance, Columbus, Plattsmouth, and York 9 each; Chadron, 6.

REALTOR HEAD TO VISIT HERE

National President Is Co-Ordinating Work By Air Route.

Tax Modernization and Property Transfer Changes Urged.

Harry H. Culver, of Culver City and Los Angeles, Cal., president of the national association of real estate boards, will be the guest of the Lincoln board the evening of October 25.

The visit is part of a year-long speaking tour undertaken to bring into the closest possible co-operation local and national real estate groups, for the establishment of sound standards of real estate practice. Direct contact between the local board and the national association is expected to aid in bringing together the viewpoints of various states for legislation.

Of first importance in this program is the growing movement for a modernization of present state tax systems, most of them framed in a period when "intangible" assets, now so large a part of the national wealth, were practically unknown.

The national realtor president is emphasizing the need for complete union of strength between realtors and property owners looking toward a simplification of the laws governing real estate transfer, more equitable taxation for real estate, and establishment of fundamental facts upon which to base stable real estate use.

Mr. Culver's circuit of visits to member boards is being made by airplane under what is believed to be the most compact schedule of meetings ever arranged by a business group. In the circuit, which has been grouped into five tours, criss-crossing the country from east to west coasts a number of times and dipping into Canada and Mexico, he expects, through group meetings, to confer with practically every one of the association's 633 member boards.

It is the first time, so far as known, when a business association executive has used air transportation on such a scale to make possible a complete personal contact between its executive head and its local organizations.

In order to conserve time and make his schedule as efficient as possible, Mr. Culver has established his office in the six-passenger cabin monoplane which he has purchased for the year's undertaking.

WAVERLY GIRL COUNTY CHAMP

Lucile Cooley Will Compete to Represent State at National Congress.

Lucile Cooley, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Cooley, is Lancaster county's champion home economics girl, Mrs. W. Blanche Hill, assistant county extension agent, announced Saturday. As county champion she will compete for a trip to the National Boys' and Girls' Club congress in Chicago, November 30 to December 7.

A member of the O. U. R. cooking club, which Miss Cooley has directed this year, has already won a trip to the congress by virtue of her winning the canned food judging contest at the state fair. Miss Cooley will compete with other county champions for the right to represent the state.

This has been her third year in county club work. She had three years of clothing club work, one year of cooking, and one year in a pig club. In 1927, Miss Cooley was on the champion home economics demonstration team. With her sister, Margaret, she won the clothing demonstration in 1928. This year she has been a member and leader of the O. U. R. cooking club, of Waverly.

Club Was First.

Her club was first in the county in food demonstration and had two girls on the county's food judging team. These were Eunice Martz and Marion Snyder. It was the latter who won the canned foods judging contest and a trip to the congress.

Miss Cooley is in her second year in the agricultural college. She is taking a course in home economics. Last year she was one of the ten high students in the scholarship rankings of the college of agriculture. Her cooking club this year finished its work 100 per cent.

The county champion was selected by a committee composed of J. F. Purbaugh, Mrs. Blanche Hill, and Miss Mina Weaver from the county extension agent's staff, Miss Charlotte Alexander, county superintendent of education, and Mrs. R. C. Anderson, county attendance officer.

FIGHT ON "MILL BOSSES" URGED

Negro Asks Coalition of "Poor Whites" and Southern Blacks.

Occasion is Perhaps Unparalleled in Annals of the South.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 12—(I. N. S.)—Four hundred shabbily clad men, women and children gathered in a drab old building here this afternoon and thunderously applauded a speech of S. Harper, negro, who advocated the coalition of "poor whites" and the "southern blacks" in a fight against the "mill bosses."

The scene was perhaps unparalleled in the annals of the south. Hundreds of white mill workers, delegates from the Carolinas and neighboring states attending a conference of the National Textile Workers union, which sponsored the famous Gastonia strike, constituted the audience.

Harper, who is a member of the unofficial labor jury sitting in on the Gastonia-Aderholt strike murder trial here, spoke for only ten minutes, urging the negro farm hands who produce the farmers' cotton, and the white mill hands, who weave it into cloth, to unite in a fight to emerge from "industrial slavery."

Listen Attentively.

The speaking hall, an old building once used as the city auditorium, was filled with the conference delegates, and hundreds of workers, bent, white-haired men and women, and younger ones clad in their work clothes, and who hung on to every word of the speakers.

When the negro orator concluded his brief talk there was a deafening applause. One aged mill worker with washed-out blue eyes and sitting in the unheated hall in his blue denim shirt-sleeves, remarked to the fellow worker: "He shore hit the nail on the head."

CHEST PROJECTS SPREAD ABROAD

Community Finance Plan Used In Foreign Countries.

The community chest plan for financing and administrating charitable and welfare activities has spread in the last ten years not only to 330 cities and towns throughout the United States, but also to a number of foreign countries. This information is included in a report just received by President J. H. Agee of the Lincoln chest from the New York offices of the association of community chests and councils.

The idea of federated financing arose in this country just prior to the war and was given great impetus during the war period. In 1919, twenty communities were financing their welfare activities under the chest plan. Since that time it has spread rapidly until the present total of 330 has been reached.

The first foreign city to adopt the plan was Honolulu. At the close of the war when a considerable number of American cities were establishing chests, a similar organization was put into effect in the Hawaiian metropolis. The Honolulu chest has conducted successful campaigns every year since that time, reaching a total of $458,000 in the last campaign. The chest there provides not only for dependents among the American and European population, but also for the needy among the natives. So important has been the record of social work development in the island that it was the subject during the last year of a special study by Prof. Ira Hiscock of the department of public health of Yale university.

It was to be expected that a movement which had spread so rapidly in the United States would take root quickly in the neighboring Dominion of Canada. At present the following Canadian cities are financing their welfare and charitable activities on the Chest plan: Hamilton, Ontario; London, Ontario; Montreal; Quebec; Toronto and Winnipeg. A movement is now on foot to establish a chest in Vancouver.

The latest foreign cities to adopt the plan are Havana, Cuba and Cape Town, South Africa.

Interest in the chest plan throughout the world is indicated by inquiries received in the offices of the Association of Community Chests and Councils from public officials and socially-minded citizens in Hamburg and Frankfort, Germany; Adelaide, Sidney and Melbourne, Australia; Shanghai; Ponce, Porto Rico; London; Bombay; Tokio; Aukland, New Zealand; Bucharest, Roumania; Durban, South Africa; and Angora, Turkey.

As Rogers Sees It

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 12—That certainly was nice of Connie Mack not to discourage the National league entirely. He will keep fooling around and have to start some of his best pitchers yet. If the series can go seven games and play to capacity they have a chance to merge with the City National of New York. By the way, an old country boy banker from Colorado slicked the city slicker bankers out of one-half million bucks and they give him fifteen years so fast that you would have thought he had assassinated a big government official. You let a city banker slick an old country boy out of something and before night he will merge with another bank and finally wind up as a member of the Federal Reserve.

Yours, WILL.

Slayer, Trailed Eleven Years by a Brother of Murdered Man, Nabbed

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12—(INS) Edward Boyd, 44, wanted for the murder of Curtiss Ivey in March, 1918, in Thomaston, Ga., was arrested by Cleveland detectives late tonight.

The murdered man's brother, Amos, who declared he had trailed Boyd throughout the country since the slaying eleven years ago, imparted to police the information as to where Boyd was living.

When arrested Boyd readily admitted the crime and when confronted by Amos Ivey stated simply, "I've been expecting you for the past eleven years."

AIMEE BRANDS STORY UNTRUE

Evangelist Denies Visiting Mrs. Pantages After Conviction.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12—(U. P.)—Aimee Semple McPherson tonight branded as "untrue and ridiculous" reports that she visited at the home of Mrs. Lois Pantages soon after the wife of Alexander Pantages, theater millionaire, was convicted on a charge of manslaughter.

The famous evangelist joined with members of the Pantages family in denying reports made by S. T. Alexander, manager of a detective agency, who declared that Mrs. McPherson was seen entering the Pantages home on North Vermont street shortly after Mrs. Pantages left the courtroom of Superior Judge Carlos Hardy after she was found guilty of the death of Juro Rokumoto.

District Attorney Burton Fitts told the United Press that no affidavits had been filed by Alexander.

"I am too busy prosecuting Alexander Pantages' assault case to have time to investigate this incident," Fitts said. "I have said absolutely nothing about it and quotations attributed to me are false."

Mrs. McPherson attributed the affair to a group of former Angelus temple leaders who became disgruntled when she discharged John Goben, a minister, a few days ago.

NEBRASKA HAS FEWER BIRTHS

Rate Lower in Last Six Months Than Previously.

More Children Now Being Born in the Hospitals.

Nebraska's birth rate, which has been steadily declining for a number of years past, took another slump in the first six months of 1929, when the number of children born in the state decreased by 555 from the record for the corresponding period of the preceding year, while as compared with 1927 a falling off of 662 is noted.

Reports made to the vital statistics division in the state health bureau, compiled under the direction of Miss Esther Stern, chief clerk, show 13,238 births from January 1 to June 30, inclusive, this year. The division of children as between the sexes was 6,900 boys and 6,338 girls. This is a larger preponderance of males than in former years.

Indians Show Gain.

Birth figures are lower for every race included in the population of Nebraska, except Indians, where a gain from 27 last year to 43 this year is registered.

Fewer children were born to parents of foreign nativity in the first half of 1929 than in the same part of 1928 or 1927.

The number of births taking place in hospitals is growing from year to year, the 1929 count of 2,843 being the highest for any six months' period since vital statistics records have been kept in Nebraska.

Herewith are comparative data for the first semi-annual terms during the past three years:

SAYS SANDHILL ROAD NOW BEST ROUTE TO LINCOLN

"The north Nebraska highway, federal route No. 20, from Chadron to O'Neill, and thence to Norfolk and Lincoln over state highways Nos. 8, 81 and 15, is the best and quickest way to reach the capitol from our part of the state," declared George S. Snow of Chadron, secretary of the state senate in last winter's legislative session, upon his arrival here Saturday following that itinerary.

"It took me just 11 hours and 30 minutes to drive to Lincoln from Chadron, 525 miles," Mr. Snow told The Star. "The road was good practically all the way. I have made the trip before on the Lincoln highway and alternative routes, but none of them is as good as the north highway and its connections to Lincoln."

Mr. Snow, who is an alumnus of Doane college, went on to Crete for the homecoming football game there with Midland college on Saturday afternoon. He expects to be in Lincoln this week and will see the Nebraska-Pittsburgh game next Saturayd. His daughter, Miss Mary Snow, is a junior student at the University of Nebraska.

No answer was given by Mr. Snow to a question whether he intends to file as a candidate for state office in the republican primary next year. His name has been mentioned as a possible aspirant for lieutenant governor.

GUARANTY FUND CASE UP SOON

Supreme Court Will Hear Arguments October 25.

The guaranty fund suit in which state banks are attacking the levying and collecting of special assessments will be argued before the Supreme court on Friday, October 25, according to the call which was issued by Clerk C. B. Letton Saturday morning.

The banks obtained an injunction in the District court of Lancaster couty. The state appealed to the Supreme court from the trial court's ruling. Both sides have filed lengthy briefs with the court in preparation for the argument.

The actions were started by the county of Stanton, the Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co., the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and the Northwestern Bell Telephone Co.

Another appeal which is listed on the proposed call is that of the suit involving the fees to be paid attorneys for members of the Woodmen of the World who successfully challenged the use of Woodmen funds in the organizatio nof the Globe Life Insurance company.

NEW CHRYSLER "70" ROYAL COUPE (with rumble seat), $1348

. . . NEW MULTI-RANGE CHRYSLERS PROLONG ENGINE LIFE AND REDUCE GASOLINE CONSUMPTION WITH GREATLY INCREASED CAR SPEED . . .

While other engines are straining to their utmost in turning up top speeds, the new Chryslers with Multi-Range Gear Shift and four-speed transmissions purr along nonchalantly registering some 840 fewer engine revolutions per mile of car travel than other cars. For one of the notable achievements of the Chrysler Multi-Range is its ability to develop highest speeds and greatest power with far less engine speed than was ever before possible.

Think what that means in an average year of driving—8,400,000 fewer engine revolutions for every 10,000 miles covered; 8,400,000 fewer chances of imparting wear and tear to the mechanism; 8,400,000 fewer demands on the fuel supply and oil. Along with this tremendous advantage of fewer engine revolutions, are attendant advantages of longer life, greater smoothness and quiet, and unequaled economy. The saving in fuel alone runs from 15 to 18 per cent!

It seems hardly possible that faster car speeds at slower engine speeds could be attained—yet that is exactly what these new Multi-Range Chryslers accomplish. And that is why these brand-new cars give you the smoothest, liveliest, most enjoyable and economical performance there is in modern motoring. A demonstration proves it.

SEPTEMBER WET AND COLD MONTH

Second Lowest Temperature in Western Nebraska in Forty Years.

Sub - normal temperatures and more than the usual amount of rainfall marked the month of September according to the following report issued Saturday by the United States weather bureau:

"The mean temperature for the state was 60 degrees or 3.9 degrees below normal, the greatest deficiencies occurring in western counties, it being next to the coldest September since 1886 in both the western and northwestern divisions of the state. The first ten days averaged about 5 degrees below normal and the second about 8 degrees below. There was a reaction to warmer weather during the third decade, temperatures averaging about 3 degrees above normal over the eastern half of the state, about 3 degrees above in the southwest, and 5 degrees below normal in the northwest. The most salient feature of the temperature for the month were the cold periods during the first and the last half of the month and the warm spell during the first half of the third decade."

"The first killing frost or freezing temperature of autumn occured over a large area in the west and northwest during the last half of the first decade. This is about fifteen days earlier that the average date in this region.

"The total precipitation averaged 2.83 inches for the state as a whole, which is approximately 132 per cent of normal. In the southwest division the rainfall was about 77 per cent of normal, while over the western and northwestern divisions it was somewhat more than two and one-fourth times the normal, and was the third wettest September in both divisions since 1876. Showers were general from the third to the ninth and during the last five days of the month. Over the eastern half of the state showers were also fairly widely distributed on the twelfth and thirteenth, and over southeastern counties on the nineteenth and twentieth.

"Over the western hadf of the state but little rain fell between the ninth and twenty-sixth. The rain of the sixth was mixed with snow in the west and northwest, the snow ranging from a trace to three inches. The total precipitation for the month exceeded two inches over most of the state and exceeded three inches over a large area in the central, eastern, and northern portions, and also over a small area in the panhandle. Amounts ranged from less than an inch in Saline county to slightly more than eight inches locally in Boyd county.

Corn Improves.

"Corn, which had suffered considerable deterioration in large areas during the last two weeks of August, was greatly benefited by cool, wet weather during the early part of September. Frosts occurred at places in the north and west during the first and second weeks but did little damage. The crop made good advance towards maturity during the last half of the month and as the month closed was ripening satisfactorily and was practically all safe from injury by frost."

Fall plowing was retarded by dry soil during the first few days but was resumed by the end of the first decade and made rapid advance thereafter with soil in excellent condition. Winter wheat seeding progressed rapidly during the last half of the month and at the end of the month was nearing completion and the early seeded was up and showing good stands but was needing moisture over much of the eastern half of the state. Pastures were benefited by rains early in the month and continued in fair to good condition. Haying was mostly completed. During the last week potato digging made rapid advance and the harvest of sugar beets was beginning."

MILK IS DUMPED BY MASKED MEN

Kansas City Has Sufficient Supply Despite Farmers' Strike.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 12 — (U. P.)—Masked gangsters stopped trucks on the highways leading into Kansas City today to force pasteurizing plants to grant demands of dairymen who ask a price increase for raw milk.

They appeared early Saturday, one band of about fifteen men stopping a truck loaded with 150 gallons of milk and cream and dumping the load on the highway about twenty miles south of here.

Two other trucks were stopped later in the day, one with about 600 gallons of milk. Officers of pasteurizing plants estimated that more than 3,000 gallons of milk had been destroyed since Monday.

Official Is Threatened.

O. C. Murphy, city commissioner of sanitation and inspection who has inspected new sources of milk supply for pasteurizing plants during the milk strike, said his life was threatened in two telephone calls Saturday.

The strike apparently had settled down to a conflict between the producers of raw milk and pasteurizing plants and fear that Kansas City consumers would suffer was dissipated.

Pasteurizing plant owners, who were refused milk by 100 farmers living near Bonner Springs, Kas., twenty miles west of the city, extended their efforts to get raw milk and were prepared to go eighty miles to get it, they said.

JAPAN TO INSIST ON KEEPING SUBS

Navy Chief Says Rather Give Up Destroyers or Cruisers.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(U. P.)—Japan can never agree to the proposal for abolition of submarines, despite her very sincere desire to cooperate for success of the London naval conference, Com. T. Yamaguchi of the Japanese navy, here enroute to the conference, told the United Press today.

"Japan will insist absolutely," Commander Yamaguchi added, "upon a ratio of 70 per cent of the strength of Great Britain and the United States in respect to auxiliary vessels as compared with 60 per cent which she expected at the Washington conference in respect to capital ships."

"The submarine is one of the most important arms of our naval establishment," he declared, "comparable only to large cruisers. We would rather dispense with destroyers or small cruisers than undersea craft."

Good Profit in Western Nebraska With the Prices High.

(Special to The Star)

ALLIANCE, Neb., Oct. 12 — With the shipping of potatoes from west Nebraska in large quantities the spud growers are reaping high profits. Table stock movement of potatoes has been going on for a month and the shipments of certified seed stock are getting well started. Shipping of the seed stock will continue throughout the winter months.

The price of table stock is from $1.20 to $1.50 per bushel, as compared to 50 cents a year ago. The certified seed stock is bringing from $3 to $3.50 per bushel. The potatoes in northwest Nebraska are yielding from 100 to 180 bushels to the acre.

Early Residents Of Wymore Married For Half Century

Mr. and Mrs. Wellemeyer as they appeared when married fifty years ago.

(Special to The Star)

WYMORE, Neb., Oct. 12—Mr. and Mrs. Will H. Wellemeyer, venerable Wymore couple, who came here nearly thirty years ago, have just observed their golden wedding anniversary quietly at their home here. They make the seventh couple now living in Wymore who have heached the fiftieth or above milestone of their married life, and bid fair to see many more years of wedded bliss, as each is in fairly good health.

Mr. Wellemeyer was born at Wapello, Ia., of parents immigrating from Pennsylvania, and his bride was Miss Clara B. Yoter, born at Neola, Iowa, her father coming from Pennsylvania, and her mother being born in Scotland in 1817. Records show that Mrs. Wellemeyer's father was 86 years old when he died, and her mother was 80, and while there are no records to show, it is known that Mr. Wellemeyer's parents lived to a ripe old age.

The couple was married the fore part of October, 1879, at Clear Lake, Iowa, the pastor being A. M. Case. The bride had been a school teacher in Hancock county, Iowa, for two years before her marriage, the county superintendent being M. L. Fuller. After a residence of about ten years in eastern Iowa the couple came west to seek their fortune, and settled at St. Francis, Kas., in 1890. Mr. Wellemeyer being engaged in real estate for about five years, after which they moved to Norton, Kas. Here Mr. Mellemeyer acted as assistant cashier of the First National bank of Norton until 1899.

In 1900 they removed to Wymore, where they have lived continually since. For three years Mr. Wellemeyer was at the head of the grocery department of the Julius Neumann department store here, entering the hardware business for himself in 1903, and managing it until he sold out in 1918. He served as city treasurer of Wymore after that and then retired from active business. Of late years he has been custodian at the Ven Dome hotel and the Black Brothers flour mill at Wymore.

The family has been interested in church work for many years, and the only daughter, Lorene, has been a devout worker in the Wymore Episcopal church for 28 years, having been confirmed by the Rev. Bacon shortly after coming to Wymore.

Nebraska Crushes Syracuse Orange With 13-6 Victory

Fighting Huskers Rally to Victory

Biblemen Flash Plenty of Spirit In Sensational Comeback On Eastern Gridiron.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 12——An aggregation of Crimson-Jerseyed Cornhuskers from Nebraska unleashed a superior brand of fighting goods this afternoon at Archbold stadium and came up from behind to conquer the Orangemen of Syracuse, 13 to 6, in an intersectional combat which was rated by eastern experts as one of the headliners of the day in the Atlantic region of the pigskin realm.

Superior fight and its closest relative, determination, turned the tide in Nebraska's favor after the Orange clad gladiators of Syracuse had swept to a touchdown in the opening period and apparently were on their way to a decisive victory. Success of the Orangemen in crossing the Nebraska goal was the match in the powder keg which touched off the fireworks. Instead of knuckling under and otherwise disporting as a defeated football team, the Cornhuskers responded with a display of fight and fire which quickly turned the tide of battle.

The Orange touchdown, achieved by Halfback Borton in the first quarter, was matched when Halfback Young of Nebraska stepped across the final chalk mark and then Captain Farley planted the Huskers in the van with a well-placed goal kick for the extra point.

Sloan Packs Punch.

Nebraska's one-point margin when the first half ended stood up during fifteen minutes of even battling during the third period, but the Huskers, seemingly resting on their oars, unleashed a scoring spurt in the early moments of the fourth and final quarter, again driving across the Orange goal.

Halfback Clair Sloan, limping from an injury and holding down a seat on the bench when the contest got under way, was the sparkplug of the Nebraska attack which netted the final touchdown. With Sloan stepping onto the field as a backfield substitute, the Husker machine turned loose full speed forward and unleashed a first class offensive in the direction of the Syracuse goal. A Sloan forward pass to Captain Farley, superbly conceived and beautifully executed, enabled the Nebraska captain to plunge twenty yards, where he was downed by an Orange tackler less than a foot from the final line. A smash at the Syracuse line by Sloan put the ball across the goal and clinched the victory.

Greenberg Grabs Pass.

The Cornhuskers again were battering away at the touchdown door late in the fourth period, only to miss connections by a disheartening break in the fortunes of the fray. A Syracuse forward pass was deftly blocked back of the line of scrimmage by Elmer Greenberg, one of Nebraska's hard charging guards, and when the ball came bouncing downward, Greenberg grabbed it out of the air and sprinted from the middle of the field to within three yards of the Syracuse goal.

With their backs to the wall, the Orange forwards balked line-smashing tactics by the Nebraska backs, and on the fourth down a forward pass went wrong at the goal line and the Orangemen took possession the ball on downs.

Orange Passes Fail.

The adverse score of 13 to 6 inspired a flurry of Syracuse passes during the dying moments of the battle, one flip gaining substantial yardage and another being declared a completed effort by virtue of Cornhusker interference with the receiver, whereupon Buddie McBride came bouncing through to snag the Orange team's last despairing pass and run the pigskin out to the thirty-yard line as the pistol boomed the termination of play.

Several hundred Nebraska followers, now residents of the east, were in despair when the Orangemen paraded to their first touchdown. With the flashy Stevens and the powerful Borton breaking loose on a series of end sprints, the Syracuse stars swept around the wings and within five minutes after the opening kick-off had driven the ball over the Nebraska goal.

A quick re-arrangement of the Cornhusker defensive, with the ends and defensive backs ranging outward, quickly called a halt on the Orange team's attack and the remainder of the contest was waged mostly in Syracuse territory, with the Huskers having a substantial advantage and the victory safely tucked away in their kit.

Versatile Style of Play.

Nebraska adherents, accustomed for years to an offensive which chiefly had stressed power plays, today were pleased to gaze on an attack which mixed deception with forward passing. They inspected a fighting band of footballers who were ragged in spots, but indomitable in spirit—an aggregation which defied the discouragements of severe practice injuries and invaded the eastern region with the

Rockne Uses Phone To Encourage Team

BALTIMORE, Oct. 12—(U. P.)—Knute Rockne, coach of the Notre Dame football team, spoke to members of his squad over a leased telephone wire from South Bend before today's game with Navy here. The wire was held for more than an hour as he talked with each player.

Rockne was injured last Saturday when a sideline play in the game with Indiana, at Bloomington overran the bench on which he was seated.

Brownies Run Wild In Scoring Spree

Capital City Youngsters Outclass Council Bluffs Team at Every Turn of Lop-Sided Game.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

When the Nebraska Cornhuskers were peeling the Syracuse Orange in a quite satisfactory fashion, the stalwart huskies of Lincoln high school were carrying Nebraska interscholastic colors to victory at the expense of an Iowa high school eleven. Coach W. H. Browne's Lincoln high team shellacked Thomas Jefferson of Council Bluffs, Ia., 47 to 0. It was the second victory of the season for the capital city lads, Hastings having been turned back 45-0 in the season opener.

The sturdy lads from across the river were no match for Lincoln at any turn of the game. Coach Browne used his first string only during the first and third quarters and the regulars responded with 33 points. The second outfit, with the help of a few veterans at important posts, carried the brunt of the work the other two periods and made two touchdowns as their contribution to the afternoon scoring spree.

Small Crowd Attends.

Little more than 1,800 people witnessed the game, the football public of the capital city apparently being more interested in getting returns from the Husker-Orange clash.

The small crowd, however, got plenty of action for its money. Although out-classed the Teejay team put up a stubborn fight and had the Red and Black mixing forward passes with line plays to cross the goal line.

Masterson, Sauer and Bauer stood out in the Lincoln offense with Quarterback Luchsinger directing the play a major portion of the afternoon. Schmitt, ex-captain, was the big noise in the forward wall with Captain Bishop and Joy also coming in for plenty of mention. Captain Toy and Olsen looked the best of the Teejay squad.

Lincoln Starts Early.

Lincoln was not slow in giving a hint it would be a long afternoon for the Teejay gridders. Shortly after the kickoff Luchsinger ran a Teejay punt back to midfield. On the first play Sauer ripped off 15 yards around right end and then collaborated with Masterson for another first down by advancing the ball to the Teejay 24-yard line.

Sauer shot a beautiful pass to Luchsinger to plant the ball on the 4-yard line and Sauer plowed over on the second play. A few minutes later Sauer scored again and when Luchsinger counted the third tally, the first quarter ended with Lincoln holding a 20-0 advantage. The score at the half was 27-0 and the count at the opening of the fourth quarter was 40-0.

Lincoln high plays Beatrice at the Gage county seat next Friday. The next home appearance of Lincoln high will be Saturday Oct. 26, when the capital city team will meet Omaha Central.

NO SCORES FOR WESLEYAN-PERU

Methodists Surprise In Holding The Bobcats Without Score.

PERU, Neb., Oct. 12—Nebraska Wesleyan and Peru Teachers resumed athletic relations today, the two football teams playing to a scoreless tie. It was a surprise showing for the Methodists, who had been figured to be more or less easy for the Bobcats.

Although the game was without scoring, the spectators had many thrills in fumbles and intercepted passes.

The first period was fought mostly in the Wesleyan territory with both teams exchanging punts. During the second quarter the Bobcats were pushed a little harder and were forced to kick out of danger. Peru opened the third frame with some fast playing but soon the Coyotes rallied to balk their efforts and again Peru had to punt out of danger near its goal line.

Both Teams Threaten.

A thirty-five yard pass from Sauter to Claussen during this period brought the Bobcats on the Methodists 20-yard line but a fumble cut short the Peruvians hope of victory.

Chitten for Wesleyan intercepted a pass in the fourth quarter and made a spectacular run for about thirty yards, but the Coyotes could not rally sufficiently for a score and after a few punts back and forth by both teams the game ended with the ball in the Coyotes' possession near the middle of the field.

Pitt Overwhelms Mountaineer Team

BY MAX HANNUM.

PITT STADIUM, PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 12—The sheer power of the Pitt Panthers was enough to wear down a gamely fighting West Virginia university eleven here today. The Mountaineers succumbed by a count of 27 to 7 before 30,000 people. The Panthers held strictly to a running game to encompass the downfall of their ancient rivals, Tom "Pug" Parkinson the bruising fullback, bearing the brunt of the afternoon's work.

Rarely has any fullback been called upon for such heavy duty, and rarely has one responded so well. He ripped a stubborn West Virginia line to shreds, but the scoring was left to Toby Uansa and Josh Williams, the phantom Panther halfbacks. Uansa crossed the last chalk line three times, and Williams once, but it was the battering Parkinson who did most of the work in the steady marches up and down the field.

Score by Brilliant Plays.

Two of the scores came after brilliant drives, one was the credit of a forward pass that Uansa caught on the two-yard line, and on the last one Uansa intercepted a forward pass on his 40-yard line, and cut through a broken field for sitxy yards.

West Virginia's sole tally went over in the third period and was on a forward pass play, a loose defense against which is undoubtedly Pitts glaring weakness this season. The Mountaineers, halted in their tracks by the magnificent defensive play of the Pitt line, took to the air early. They completed but three out of fifteen flings, but the all important one was taken from Stumpp by Behnke on the Pitt 40-yard line, whence he raced down the side line for the score.

Use Open Formation.

West Virginia playing their ends and tackles wide, held the Panthers up for three quarters of the first period. Smearing Pitt's double and triple passes, they forced the use of Parkinson through the center of the line. He responded nobly, and a drive that started on the Pitt 41-yard line did not stop until the first touchdown was scored. Parkinson and Uansa alternated in taking the ball to the West Virginia 17-yard line, where tactics were switched, and Williams was sent wide around right end to get over without a hostile hand touching him.

Early in the second period, Pitt drove clear to the West Virginia four-yard line, only to be held for downs. Collins, however, intercepted Stumpp's pass on the Pitt 49-yard line. Walinchus, substituting for Williams, turned in a 25-yard jaunt through tackle and Baker tossed a pass to Uansa who caught the ball on the two-yard line and fell over for the touchdown.

Uansa Dashes 13 Yards.

Pitt received the opening kickoff of the second half and did not give up the ball until they scored Parkinson tore huge holes in the Mountaineers' line and Uansa got inside the ends for gains from six to ten yards. Finally he got loose at left end, following a triple pass and scored from the 13-yard line.

West Virginia tallied after the succeeding kickoff. A piling up penalty cost Pitt fifteen yards and Stumpp tossed a pass to Behnke for first down. The latter took it on the Pitt 40-yard line and eluded Uansa for a touchdown.

Another Long Sprint.

Uansa's interception of Stumpp's pass came in the same period, the little halfback covering sixty yards through the entire West Virginia team.

Brilliant line play by Montgomery, Captain Dimeolo and Tully featured for Pitt, with Donchess

LA BARBA LOSES FIGHT DECISION

PARIS, Oct. 12—(U. P.)—Kid Frances, French bantamweight, won a 12 round decision over Fidel LaBarba here tonight.

The California collegian, who retired as world's flyweight champion to attend Stanford university and turned back to the ring only a few months ago, had been a betting favorite to win.

CRACK GOLFERS IN CITY TODAY

Walter Hagen - Horton Smith to Display Wares On Shrine Course.

Walter Hagen and Horton Smith, internationally famous golfers, will pause in Lincoln today for an exhibition match at the Lincoln Shrine club. Hogan and Smith will play Professionals Charley Koontz of the Shrine club and Johnny Morris of the Country club in an 18-hole best-ball foursome.

The match is under the auspices of the Junior chamber of commerce and is open to the public, a gallery fee of $1.50 being charged.

The Hagen-Smith appearance will be the finishing wallop of the 1929 golf season in Lincoln and a crowd of 1,000 or more golf enthusiasts from the capital city and vicinity are expected to turn out to watch the crack shots in action.

"The Haig" is holder of the British open title, while Smith is the French open champion. The two pros are touring the country for a series of exhibition matches and turning in some great jar-shattering scores. The low score of today's foursome is expected to set a new Shrine course record.

Smith and Hagen will arrive in Lincoln by airplane, coming from Wichita where they play a Saturday exhibition. The pros have everything mapped out so they will time their arrival to shortly before 1:30 p. m., the plane landing the golfers on the first fairway.

Lose at Wichita.

WICHITA, Kan., Oct. 12—Although exhibiting wonderful golf at times, Walter Hagen, British open champion and Horton Smith, French title holder, lost one down here today in an exhibition foursome with local professionals Mike Murra and Neil Colborn. Murra sank a thrilling 20-foot putt on the 18th green to break a tie.

Colborn, young Westelink professional, where the match was held, shot the low ball with a 65. Hagen took 68, Smith 69 and Murra a 71, even par.

The visitors did some wonderful driving and Hagen was good on his putts. Smith found the sand greens hard to fathom and lost several glowing chances to win for his side. A big gallery watched the play.

Hagen and Smith will leave Sunday via airplane for Lincoln to play an exhibition.

GEORGIA UPSETS YALE BULLDOGS

Eli Invades South To Receive 19-0 Loss At Athens.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 12—(I. N. S.)—Inspired to new heights of defensive power and flashing an offensive that slowly but surely sapped Yale's physical resources, Georgia today electrified the sport world by upsetting both the dope and the mighty Eli eleven.

The score was 19 to 0, and it will be written into gridiron history as an eternal monument to the spirit, courage and stamina of a great and a brilliant Georgia team.

The triumph that set 25,000 fans to roaring prolonged acclaim and appreciation of the thrilling sport spectacle that they were privileged to witness, was a fitting climax to the dedication of Georgia's new and majestic stadium, Sanford field.

Today's startling result was an upset, only because it confounded the pre-game predictions. There was nothing freakish about Georgia's well-earned victory. It was the natural reward for the savageness with which there red and black jerseyed warriors tore relentlessly into the thick of the blue clad bulldogs.

Ten-Run Rally by Athletics Is New World Series Record

Cubs' Title Hopes Given Tough Jolt When Macks Rally to Win 10-8 Game

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

SHIBE PARK, PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 12—There was no slip twixt the cup and lip for the Chicago Cubs this afternoon. Theirs was nothing less than a dizzy fall from the lip of Billy Penn's old Quaker hat to the city hall courtyard below, where they lay dying in their own blood.

The Cubs' hope for a world championship in baseball still breathed faintly this night but, after what happened in the fourth game of the series today, it was a hope that was not long for this life. Nothing, in fact, on this earth could sustain the shock the Cubs' vanity received when, going into the seventh inning behind an eight-run lead, they were riddled and battered and shot into shredded hamburger by a Philadelphia attack, the like of which never had been seen before in world series history.

Sixteen Men to Bat.

Ten runs were scored in the seventh before the rampant Athletics could be retired, sixteen men went to bat and Simmons, Foxx and Dykes got two runs each. And so when fate, the grim scorekeeper, posted his final accounts at the end of the ninth, the balance sheets read:

Philadelphia, 10; Chicago, 8.

A miracle had been made to look easy. A victorious foe had become a thoroughly conquered one, a ball club that still can win the world series, but obviously won't, the Cubs can take the title by winning on Monday here, by winning in Chicago on Wednesday and by winning in Chicago on Thursday.

They mustn't fail in any of these games and today's catastrophe made it inevitable that they will fail.

The Athletics, leading by three victories to one tonight, were practically assured of the championship.

One for the Books.

But even if they never get it, their amazing come-back today in the face of about impossible odds will be honor enough. It will live in memory until baseball itself dies as the record inning of all world series play since the event began in 1903.

The previous record was nine runs for the Giants against the Yankees in the 1921 series, but this performance, meritorious as it may have been, lacked the glamor, the thrill and the downright significance of the Athletics' effort.

They had been shut out by Charley Root for six innings. They had been beaten yesterday and were about to be beaten today, thus tying the series at 2-all in victories, and they were eight runs behind.

The situation looked hopeless. It was hopeless, except to those royal blue bloods of this world to whom hopeless competition is alike a dare and a suggestion.

Simmons Starts Rally.

Al Simmons came to the plate to face the confident Root with determination oozing from his every pore, a moment later, he did more than ooze a hit from his system. He shot it as a bullet leaves a gun, the ball booming into left field on a rising line until it smote the roof of the grand stand for a terrific home run, Simmons' second of the series.

This was the beginning. The end did not come for upward of forty minutes, during which first Root, then Nehf and finally Carlson were blasted off the premises. Malone finished this greatest of all world series innings, but largely because the Cubs were almost at the end of their pitching resources.

Three glaring breaks helped the Athletics no end, and hurt the Cubs much worse than that. The first of these came after Foxx had followed Simmons with a single to right, Miller, the next hitter, lofted a simple fly into short center, but Hack Wilson, who alternated in the hero-goat roles with great facility throughout the day, was blinded by the sun and didn't get up to the ball. Next Dykes singled, scoring Foxx, and Boley singled, scoring Miller.

Root to Showers.

George Burns, a pinch-hitter, obliged with a pop out, but when Bishop singled, scoring Dykes and sending Boley to third, our Mr. Root had had a great plenty.

Haas greeted Nehf with a line drive to center. Wilson was set for the ball and it looked the part of a sacrifice fly. But a moment later, Hack was set no longer; he was very much upset. He had lost this one in the sun, too, and it went by him with the speed of an evil rumor, rolling all the way to the fence for a home run, Boley and Bishop scoring ahead of the hitter. The latter's run was the seventh of the inning, leaving the Athletics only one down, so to speak.

Whereupon Nehf walked Cochrane, putting the tying run on base, and then walked himself—toward the bench. Blake was the new pitcher and he was greeted by Simmons' second hit of the inning, a single. Cochrane stopped at second and scored the big run on Foxx's second single. That ended Blake and Malone came on in time to hit Miller with a pitched ball, filling the bases.

Dykes promptly emptied two of them for the winning runs with a double against the left-field fence, Stephenson getting his hands on the drive but failing to hold it. This was the third break, but it was of no great consequence. If the ball had been caught, it would have gone as a sacrifice fly, scoring Simmons with the winning run anyhow.

The classic ended with Malone fanning Boley and Burns, the latter having the dubious distinction of furnishing two of the three outs that finally were accomplished. But, by this time 30,000 delirious fans didn't care two puns in a whole bowling alley. They had seen their idols elevated to the pedestal of all baseball virtues, gameness; they had seen history made; they had seen the world series virtually won by what they deemed to be the right team and lost by what they deemed to be the wrong one. But they hadn't seen everything yet.

Two runs to the good, wily old Connie Mack sent the God of all Philadelphia fandom, Lefty Grove, in there to protect the lead and what Lefty did about it was worth a ball game in itself. He had relieved Earnshaw in the second game at Chicago, and fanned six Cubs in five innings. Today, he fanned four of the six men to face him, these coming successively through Taylor, Hartnett, McMillan and English. The other two expired docilely, Hornsby furnishing the final out with a looping liner to Miller.

Grove Baffles Cubs.

Yes, these Cubs certainly can murder left-handers if you give them a meat axe.

Grove was the ninth pitcher used during this most maniacal of pastimes. Root and Jack Quinn were the original choices and the former was by far the better of the two through the early innings.

He brushed the Athletics off in order in the first and second and pitched his way out of an emergency in the third courageously and well. He was smacked for a single by Dykes and a fumble of the ball by Cuyler to open the inning, this giving the runner an extra base. He took third on a sacrifice but Quinn was fanned and Bishop couldn't get the ball out of the infield. Cochrane doubled in the fourth but was eliminated on Simmons' infield smash and, in the fifth, Root was first pushed over the edge of the grave and then hauled back again by the hero-goat, Hack Wilson. It might be well to say here that the goat tendency was the more pressing and insistent.

Anyhow, Miller opened the inning with an infield hit off Root's glove and Dykes lifted a lazy fly to right center. Hack trotted gracefully over, placed himself to his satisfaction and dropped the ball. This put two on and both would have scored on Boley's drive to right center. But Hack, having overturned the Dan pot, set himself to right it and right he did, racing with the ball, he turned his broad back to the stands and chased all the way to the score board to spear the drive with his gloved hand for the greatest catch of the series. This turned the rally into a relapse, pronto.

But Root's doom merely was postponed. And when it did come, it was so final, complete and confusing that he wasn't there to see most of it, which perhaps was all for the best.

Quinn Leaves Early.

As for Quinn, his elderly carcass, the oldest ever to see a world series box score, was toted from the premises in less than six innings. Old John didn't have much except his health and this always was excellent.

Two got on in the first through McMillan's walk and Wilson's single but Mr. Hornsby and Mr. Cuyler still were striking out at this juncture and nothing came of the promised uprising. The wand-waving of this pair here represented seven strike outs each for them during the series. Their hitting was to come later. Cuyler for instance, singled in the fourth and went all the way to third when Miller impersonated the victory arch, the ball rolling to the fence. Upon this, Grimm smote one over the wall in right and the Cubs were two runs to the good.

Rajah Busy Hitter.

Hornsby, for example, started the sixth with a single to center and Wilson, Cuyler Stephenson and Grimm finished it with base hits and the Cubs were seven runs to the good. Grimm's hit was an attempted sacrifice, which Walberg, replacing Quinn, had promptly thrown away. Cuyler and Stephenson scoring and Grimm racing to third. He beat the throw to the plate on Taylor's sacrifice fly, although Haas threw almost a perfect "strike" to Cochrane.

Hornsby, likewise, cracked one to the center field wall for a triple in the seventh, scoring ahead of Cuyler's single and the Cubs were eight runs to the good.

They naturally assumed that this was to be a great plenty. It wasn't. And the fact that it wasn't proved conclusive that the better club won this ball game and is winning this series. There can be no brief offered for any outfit that can't protect an eight-run lead with three innings to play.

Hollywood In Front Coast Loop Playoff

Tough Job for Lincoln Pros.

CHARLEY KOONTZ.

JOHNNY MORRIS.

Two Lincoln golf professionals, Charley Koontz of the Shrine club and Johnny Morr's of the Lincoln Country club, have a tough assignment today. They meet Walt reHagen and Horton Smith, crack golfers, in an exhibition match at the Lincoln Shrine club. The foursome will start at 1:30 p. m.

MIZZOU TIGERS ROMP OVER AMES

Henry Eleven Crushes Iowa State In First Game.

AMES, Ia., Oct. 12—(I. N. S.)—Under the attack of a furiously charging line and a rampant backfield, Iowa State college crumbled before the invading University of Missouri Tigers here this afternoon, 19 to 0.

The Iowans, with the best squad they have had in years, were helpless before the fighting Missourians, and never threatened the gold and black.

Outfighting and outsmarting the Ames crew at every turn, Missouri scored in the second quarter when Berry hacked his way through the Iowa line after the Tiger had marched up the field in straight pulnges and end runs. Missouri's second score came in the same quarter when Waldorf went over after a brilliant series of passes and bucks had sent Ames reeling.

The third tally was hung up just a few minutes before the final gun when Bittner intercepted a pass and raced 25 yards for the score.

Kansas Wallops Emporia.

LAWRENCE, Kas., Oct. 12—(U. P.)—Kansas uncorked today a backfield display that completely smothered the Emporia Teachers, 38 to 0, four of the touchdowns being put across in the last quarter. Lee Page, second string back, came into his own today to score three touchdowns. Forrest Cox scored twice for the Jayhawks and Charles Fetty added the other score on a pass from Lawrence.

Jim Bausch and Lee Page ploughed through the Emporia line for lengthy gains, Lawrence's and Fischer's passing varied the play. Kansas and Emporia used the whole squad, Hargiss shifting his back field at each quarter.

Burnett and McCoy led the Teachers for several gains to make four first downs against 16 for Kansas. Kansas completed 11 of the 22 passes attempted for 240 yards. Emporia failed to complete any of the six attempts.

TROJANS SWAMP BAGSHAW PUPILS

Southern California In Smashing Victory On Seattle Gridiron.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 12—(I. N. S.)—University of Southern California Trojans showed real championship form this afternoon against the Washington Huskies football team, piling up a score of 48 to 0. Tearing through the husky line, almost at will, the Southern Californians scored four touchdowns in the second quarter, when Washington, after holding them scoreless for the first period, seemed to have given all they had.

Washington was dangerous in the first period and Hufford, after a long run, went over for what looked like a sure touchdown. The play was called back, however, the referee ruling that Hufford was out of bounds when he went over the U. S. C. 16 yard line.

This was the only time that U. S. C. was in real danger.

ISLANDERS SCALP INDIANS.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Oct. 12—Although the Genoa Indians flashed a forward passing attack that resulted in one touchdown and was a threat at all times, Grand Island had little difficulty in turning back the Redskins 25 to 6 here Friday.

Grand Island scored in each period. Aerial tactics, mixed with line plunges, enabled the locals to amass a total of twenty first downs to five for the Indians. The home team made 350 yards from scrimmage to 181 by the visitors.

Mehring played a fine defensive game for Grand Island while Raisch, Cehm and Kelly were outstanding in the backfield. Mitchell was the big noise for the Indians.

ALLIANCE-GERING IN TIE.

ALLIANCE, Neb., Oct. 12—Alliance and Gering clashed here Friday in a western Nebraska 'big ten' high school football game, the fracas ending in a scoreless deadlock. While Alliance once pushed to within a yard of Gering's goal and made more first downs than their opponents they lacked the punch to push the ball over the final chalk mark.

IMPERIAL DOWNS M'COOK.

IMPERIAL, Neb., Oct. 12—The Imperial high school football team registered its third victory of the season here Friday by downing the McCook Bisons, 20 to 0. No scores were made until late in the third quarter when Collins started a rally with a fifty-yard sprint which placed Satchell in position to score the first touchdown. Collins plunged off tackle for fifteen yards and a second counter and Burke scored late in the game. Burke kicked two extra points.

HARVARD EDGES OUT MINDEN.

MINDEN, Neb., Oct. 12—The game featured by long runs by Alberding fleet back, Harvard defeated Minden here Friday by a 12 to 0 score. The visitors scored their first touchdown in a plunge by Higgins after Alberding and Averill had carried the ball within scoring distance. The second came as a result of a pass from Higgins to C. Yost.

It was the first defeat for Minden this season. Fairfield plays Harvard next Friday.

CRETE WALLOPS WAHOO.

WAHOO, Neb., Oct. 12—Clearly outclassing the locals in all departments of the game, the Crete high school gridsters piled up a 37 to 0 score on Wahoo in a game played on a muddy field Friday afternoon. Fahrnbruch, Crete halfback, was the star for his team. The versatile youth counted three of Crete's touchdowns and made good on three try-for-point efforts. Stone, left end, was another outstanding Crete performer.

Treptow and W. Anderson, on the left side of the Wahoo line, turned in the best performances for the home outfit.

Crete made four points by safeties.

RUN BY ELLIS FEATURES.

ALMA, Neb., Oct. 12—Featured by Ellis' sixty-five yard sprint to a touchdown Alma defeated Bloomington, 12 to 0, here Friday in the first game of the Republican Valley league season. Captain Harding, Furse, Bryant and Banks also featured the Alma play. Bloomington completed five forward passes but was unable to use them to advantage because they were widely scattered.

YORK EDGES OUT WIN.

FAIRBURY, Neb., Oct. 12—With both teams resorting to a forward pass attack York edged out Fairbury here Friday, 19 to 13. The game was staged on a muddy field, slowing down the running attack of both outfits.

Outstanding work by Lunny, the visitors' left end, gave them the game. In the second period the fleet wingster intercepted a forward flip and sped to a touchdown, and in the closing seconds of the game he nagged a pass from one of his mates and dashed to another counter. Norwood, quarter, also showed up well for York.

After York had scored the first counter, Fairbury opened with a shower of short passes that took the ball to the York 1-yard line. Here the ball was lost on downs but a York punt was blocked and on the third play Marthis plunged for a touchdown. A forward pass was good for the try-for-point, tying the score.

In the third quarter York counted again after a long pass had placed them in position. Another punt blocked and covered by Littman, however, tied the score again. Lunny's second touchdown on a long forward heave as the game ended, provided the winning margin.

Luttman and Peterson played a great game for the locals in the line, while Tippin's passing kept Fairbury in the running. The game was bitterly contested throughout. The lineups:

LEAGUE TITLES NOW IN DISPUTE

Important High Games In All Sections This Weekend.

BY GREGG M'BRIDE.

Leading contenders for league titles in Nebraska prep football circles will face the barrier this week with important assignments on their grid books. The season being several weeks along the "weeding out process" has sifted the strong teams from the weak and interscholastic coaches are prepared to bear down in the mid-season sprint for favored positions in the November finale.

Six teams in the Mid-State league will engage in conference competition this weekend. Fairbury will journey to Columbus for the first real test the Discoverers have had this season. Fremont will endeavor to stop the fast York aggregation on the latter's field and Kearney will face a tough hurdle in meeting Coach Mandery's Grand Island team on the latter's field.

The Omaha city argument will be continued with Omaha Tech playing Creighton Prep and North engaging Benson and Central. The Tech-Prep game looks like the important contest of the card, the Drummond machine showing plenty of strength in its opening victory at Lexington.

Lincoln To Beatrice.

Lincoln will journey to Beatrice. The capital city will be a top-heavy favorite although Beatrice football stock is much improved this fall.

In the Southwest Nebraska league the Cambridge-Cozad game is the headliner. Cozad has Lexington and Gothenburg scalps dangling from its belt, but must prepare to meet a strong Cambridge eleven which will be playing on its home field and conceding the visitors nothing.

Southwest League Games.

Lexington will attempt to regain its stride as the Curtis Aggies and Gothenburg invades Holdrege for a conference contest well worth watching. The Beaver City-Franklin is another southwest Nebraska game of unusual interest.

The Alliance-Bridgeport and Kimball-Chappell games looks like the best of the western conference schedule. Alliance and Kimball would appear to have a slight edge but this may be lost in the fact these teams are playing away from home.

Ravenna will try to stop the St. Paul Apostles in the leading game for the Loup Valley region. Ansley and Callaway will settle a Custer county argument, while Aurora invades Osceola, the latter being a much improved team this fall.

Falls City To Peru.

Falls City travels to Peru for a game which has plenty of interest to southeast Nebraska fans. Sutton meets Exeter in a Southern league contest of importance. The Plattsmouth-Ashland setto also looks like a live one.

Norfolk, with a good record to date, will play at Albion and should meet plenty of opposition. Bloomfield will step in the path of Randolph and South Sioux City returned a game at Tekamah which will be hard fought from whistle to whistle. Games this week:

SUPERIOR DOWNS HEBRON.

SUPERIOR, Neb., Oct. 12—Superior defeated Hebron 12 to 0 here Friday in a hard-fought football game in which the visitors put up plenty of opposition but were unable to hold the locals. A. Anderson and Pursell counted the touchdowns. Superior made fourteen first downs to two for the visitors.

V. Baltzell, G. Hutson and Walcott were the outstanding performers for Hebron, while Fisher, Maxey and Pursell stood out in the Superior backfield. Captain Bozserman, Latham, Blauvelt and Broyles were the line luminaries.

HASTINGS BEATS AURORA.

AURORA, Neb., Oct. 12—Hastings high school romped to a 27 to 6 victory over the local football team here Friday afternoon. Aurora's counter came in the final period when Captain Hedlund broke away on an end run for a touchdown. The visitors exhibited too much speed for the locals and crossed the Aurora goal line several times before the Aurora outfit could solve their attack.

Gophers Defeat Vanderbilt Team

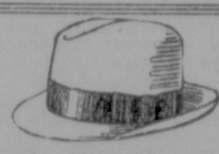
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 12—(I. N. S.)—What started out to be just another football game ended in a grim struggle here today for Minnesota with a win over the Vanderbilt Commodores, 15 to 6.

The Gophers' victory resulted chiefly from the brilliant field running of Riebeth, who raced 45 yards for a touchdown and was the most active yard-gainer of the team.

Illini Swamps Bradley.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 12 — (U. P.)—University of Illinois "Big Ten Football Champions" had an easy time of it here today, defeating Bradley 45 to 0, for their second victory of the season. Bradley proved an excellent trial horse before the Illini open their campaign for a third successive conference title against Iowa at Iowa City next Saturday.

Koepke, Navy guard and captain, is said to be a better lineman than Eddie Burke, who made the all-American.



Perlmutter Says:

Small shaped hats are in vogue now. Let us take that old hat, trim the brim—renovate it as only we can do, and you will have one of the smartest hats of the season.

Huskers-Irish Lunch Together.

Members of the Nebraska and Notre Dame squads took luncheon together when the Cornhuskers paused in South Bend for a workout last Thursday. Later in the day Notre Dame entrained for Baltimore where the Irish beat Navy, 14 to 6, and Nebraska journeyed on to Syracuse where the Cornhuskers won, 13 to 6. It's an odd coincidence but Navy and Syracuse scored the first points in the two games.

ROCKNE'S IRISH DEFEAT MIDDIES

Navy Scores On Shock Troops But Loose Game, 14 to 7.

BY GEORGE BARRY.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 12—(INS)—Fritz Kreisler, without his fiddle, would be just another Austrian, but a Notre Dame football team without its Rockne can still play a gridiron symphony.

The Navy found this out to its sorrow today in the sun swept greensward of the Baltimore stadium. In the gathering gloom of a perfect October day, and before one of the greatest crowds that ever saw a football game in the middle Atlantic region, the stalwart Irish from South Bend walked wearily off the field with their third straight victory over the middies.

The score was 14 to 7. It should have been more, for, without the inspiration of Knute Rockne, the great maestro, the Hoosiers muffed several opportunities to increase the score. Rockne was unable to accompany his charges on their first invasion of the east, but the force of his teaching was sufficient to enable them to eke out their one touchdown victory.

Middies Score Early.

Perhaps the Middies would never have scored at all but for the Rockne penchant of reserving his heaviest fire. The Irish started against the Middies as they started against less formidable aggregations, with a second string backfield. It was a good backfield, but it wasn't quite good enough, and the Middies promptly took advantage of the occasion to sail straight down the field for a touchdown. They forward passed the Irish dizzy in this first period and mixed this passing with some remarkably efficient straight football.

Getting the ball in midfield, they set sail and never stopped until Clifton, a fleet back, crossed the Irish goal line late in the period.

It was a different story in the next period. Out came the second string backs and in went the modern edition of the famed "four horsemen," consisting of Cariedo, Elder, Mullins and Brill, a quadruple threat if ever there was one. These four galloping backs lost no time whatsoever in remedying the situation which had been allowed to develop in the first period while they sat swathed in blankets on the side lines.

N. D. Passes Click.

Mixing straight football with a Rockne assortment of fake formations and shifty passing, the 1929 horsemen advanced the ball in spurts and dashes. Reversing the situation, the Irish proceeded to forward pass the Middies silly in this period, and it ended finally in Frankie Cariedo tossing the ball ten yards to Jack Elder, who stood on the Navy line to receive it. Cariedo kicked the goal to tie the score.

The third period was savagely fought. Once the Irish were stopped for downs with only a few yards to go for a touchdown—a striking testimonial to the sturdy courage and last ditch determination of the Middies. Toward the end of the period, however, Notre Dame worked the ball down the field to the Middies' 10-yard line, and when the goals were reversed at the outset of the fourth period the powerful Irish backs crashed and smashed and bludgeoned their way through the heavy Navy line for the winning margin. It was Mullins who went over for the remaining yard, and it was again Cariedo's toe that added the point.

PLENTY UPSETS IN GRID CIRCLE

Yale Defeat By Georgia Bitter Pill For Easterners.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 —(U. P.)—College football had a great day today in the first real group of contests.

Several giants tumbled and not the least was the mighty Yale eleven which went to Athens, Ga. to help University of Georgia dedicate their new stadium. The Southerners broke the new stadium jinx by winning handsomely, 15 to 0.

The metropolitan area had a real thrill in seeing Chick Meehan's New York Violets blush and wilt under the Fordham onslaught, 26 to 0. Brown's victory over Princeton, although by only a one point margin, 13 to 12, was quite unexpected.

Big Ten Upsets.

In the Big Ten, Ohio State, under the new Sam Willaman regime, won from Iowa by a scant 7 to 6 margin. The result was not regarded as an upset. Chicago's victory over Indiana at 13 to 7 was decidedly an upset. So was Purdue's great 30 to 16 victory over Michigan. The Boilermakers were trailing 6-16 entering the last period. Northwestern won over Wisconsin, 7 to 0, in another battle of Big Ten giants.

Colgate, in the east, showed great strength in winning from Michigan State, 31 to 0. Nebraska evened honors, however, beating Syracuse, 13 to 6. Notre Dame, with Coach Knute Rockne at home in South Bend, won from the Navy at Baltimore, 14 to 7. The result was formful. Penn, helped the east's intersectional campaign by winning from Virginia Poly, 14 to 8.

The south had another loser when Vanderbilt dropped to Minnesota, 6 to 15. Pitt won over their old rivals, West Virginia, 27 to 7.

CADDY BECOMES 'DEEP SEA' DIVER

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 12—(U. P.)—With a home made tin bucket over his head, Clarence Chandler, deep sea diving caddy, retrieves golf balls from the Dallas Country club lake. A companion pumps air into his headgear through a tube.

STANFORD SWAMPS SOUTHERN BRANCH

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 12—(I. N. S.)—Substitute Cardinal backfield men this afternoon overpowered the University of California at Los Angeles with drives off tackle and numerous reverse and fake reverse plays to win with ease. The final score was Stanford 57; U. C. L. A., 0.

But even Stanford's first string men were unable to score quite at will over Captain Carl Brown's Bruins. At times the Bruin defense halted line smashes but more frequently the Cardinal trick plays and wide end runs had the California wings and secondary defense helpless.

Stanford scored two touchdowns in the first quarter with only third and second men in the lineup. Two more touchdowns followed in the second quarter a fifth was scored in the early stages of the third quarter. Stanford punts were well matched by those of U. C. L. A. but Stanford was adept at returning the long boots of Duncan.

BOUNDING BASQUE TRIMS "BIG BILL"

LONDON, Oct. 12—(I. N. S.)—William T. Tilden again proved today that he is no longer the "Big Bill" of old.

Tilden faced Jean Borotra across the court of the Queens club in the international lawn tennis matches here today and suffered a defeat to the tune of 10-8, 9-7, at the hands of the "Bounding Basque."

Tilden is here with high hopes of making good across London's theatrical footlights.

HAWKEYES LOSE TO OHIO STATE

Nelson's Failure to Kick Goal Beats Iowa Team, 7-6.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 12—(U. P.)—The highly touted Iowa Hawkeyes fell before a fighting, slashing Ohio State team, 7 to 6, in a hard fought battle here today. More than 50,000 fans showered thunderous cheers as the Buckeyes, hailed as the underdogs of the Big Ten conference, turned back the reputedly formidable westerners. The victory was a complete upset.

Only once did Iowa get within Ohio's ten-yard line. That was in the second quarter when Oren Pape, speedy Hawkeye back, broke through left tackle and sprinted 40 yards for a touchdown. Nelson, jerked into the Iowa line to try for the extra point, failed to kick goal and this ultimately gave Ohio the game.

Ohio scored her touchdown when Selby broke through and blocked a behind goal punt from Pape and Dick Larkin. Ohio's right tackle, fell on the ball for a touchdown.

Fred Barrett, Ohio center, kicked goal for the extra and winning point. The game marked the Big Ten debut of Coach Sam Willaman of Ohio State.

Chicago Beats Indiana.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—(U. P.)—A courageous Chicago university football team arose to great heights here today to defeat Indiana, its ancient rival, 13 to 7.

Chicago's victory bordered on the sensational, pre-season predictions giving it little chance of going far in conference competition. It was another case of teacher still being able to tutor pupil. Coach Alonzo Stagg of Chicago taught Coach Pat Page of the Maroons rudiments of football.

The Maroons, displaying a high polished running attack, scored a marker in the first quarter after a series of end runs and line smashes placed the ball in scoring distance, Temple, Chicago back, made the touchdown and drop-kicked goal.

The Staggmen made their final touchdown in the third quarter when Captain Kelly crossed the goal line after receiving a forward pass.

Badgers Meet Reverse.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 12—(U. P.)—Northwestern's Wildcats clawed their way to a 7 to 0 victory over Wisconsin here today. It was the first big ten conference game of the year for both teams. It also was the first time in history that a northwestern grid team ever beat Wisconsin.

This victory that required more than 20 years to achieve was a costly one. Hank Bruder, magnificent blocker and the best ball carrier and punter on the purple eleven, suffered a broken leg in the second half and will be out the rest of the year.

Wisconsin was outplayed in every department. Only twice during the afternoon was the ball inside Northwestern's 20 yard line. In each instance the Purple defense held easily.

PURDUE RALLIES IN LAST PERIOD

Boilermakers In With 25 Points During Last Period.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 12—(U. P.)—Unleashing a powerful driving attack in the last quarter to score 24 points, Purdue's Boilermakers defeated Michigan, 30 to 16, here today. It was the first victory Purdue registered over Michigan since 1893.

The Boilermakers went into the final period apparently a beaten team, but let loose a dazzling offensive which the Wolverines were unable to cope with.

A mixture of forward passes, and runs and line smashes allowed Purdue to work the ball in scoring distance from where it was carried over the goal line in short but powerful thrusts into the center of the Michigan line.

Purdue Scores First.

Purdue looked like a winner in the second quarter when Welch ran some 35 yards, on an off tackle play for a touchdown. The try for point was missed and the half ended with Purdue leading 6 to 0.

There had been no scoring in the first period, but Michigan came back in the third period and scored 16 points. One of the touchdowns came as the result of a blocked kick and the other resulted from a concerted drive through the Purdue line.

On the first, Roach and Poe blocked Welch's punt and Truskowski recovered falling over the goal line. Shortly thereafter Michigan began a hard line drive, after receiving a short punt by Welch on their 30 yard line. The drive culminated when Gembris ran 18 yards through tackle for a touchdown. A drop kick and a replacement after touchdown, both scored by Gembris, gave Michigan its other four points.

Purdue did not score in the third quarter but on the first play of the fourth period Yunevich ran 25 yards for a touchdown. Before the quarter was over he had turned in two more touchdowns and Caraway had scored one.

Caraway's score came after he twice ran 25 yards from the 50 yard line. Three of Purdue's scores came in the final five minutes. One of the touchdowns was the result of Yunevitch intercepting a long pass on running it back to the Wolverine 25 yard line. The ball went over from there in line plunges and end runs.

Purdue got a break itself when Sleight blocked a punt off Simrall's toe and then beat Simrall to the ball. It took four

Cornhusker - Panther Game Saturday Will Be Dazzler

Crack Team of East Will Display Wares Before Record Crowd

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

The Panthers are coming.

This is the word being passed about in Cornhusker football circles as Nebraska prepares to welcome its largest football crowd of the season at Memorial stadium.

The Cornhuskers and Panthers are scheduled to get together Saturday, Oct. 19, and adyance ticket sales indicate a crowd of more than 30,000 will be at the stadium to watch the grid classic of the 1929 schedule. Special bleachers, if necessary, will be erected to handle the overflow which is certain to be on hand if ticket sales maintain their present clip.

Rated by eastern critics as leading contenders for the national collegiate football championship, Pittsburgh university will invade Lincoln this week for its one big game on foreign soil. Coach Jock Sutherland is bringing to Nebraska a veteran combination and one of the most dazzling football displays of the season is anticipated.

Roster of Veterans.

A majority of the Pittsburgh players need no introduction to Nebraska fans. Eleven stalwart Panther athletes battled the Cornhuskers through sixty minutes of scoreless football last November, playing the entire game without substitution.

Of this eleven, eight men still are on the Pitt roster, the only missing regulars being Mike Getto, tackle, Alex Fox, guard, and "Honey" Guarino, end. A flock of sophomore material has filled these holes in the Pittsburgh lineup and in a few instances has brought displacement of veteran gridders.

A factor which makes Pitt chances unusually bright this season is the veteran backfield which Coach Sutherland is able to place in the field. This quartet included "Pug" Parkinson, fullback; Josh Williams, a clever broken field runner; Tony Uansa, sensational halfback; and Charley Edwards, who called signals on the 1928 team.

Parkinson Still Plunging.

Parkinson is the hard plunging back who ripped off 28 yards through the Nebraska line last season. The big boy is reported to be the class of the east in his department this season. Uansa's skill at negotiating a broken field has stood out in early season games. He was like a wild deer in Pitt's 53 - 0 victory over Waynesburg Teachers and he reeled off 220 yards in five plays to help his team beat Duke, 52-7, when the Durhamites dedicated their new stadium.

The quarterback station is well taken care of by Edwards, although Ed Baker, another veteran, has been giving plenty of argument for this position.

Lest the football fan believe Pitt's strength is mainly in its backfield, Coach Sutherland can well point to his line which held the Nebraska offense to nary a first down last fall. Although shy three veterans, the Panther forward wall has appeared equally as powerful in early games this season.

Donchess All-American.

Joe Donchess at end, of course, is the big show in the forward wall. Twice All-American selection, Donchess is playing his last year for the Panthers. We have the word of the Pittsburgh football scribes that Donchess "is a tough man to take out on the defense, and on the the tackles, but is a clever performer offense can not only manhandle at snaring forward passes." In the opening games of the season at the Pitt stadium, Donchess figured in Pitt stadium. Donchess figured in one of the most sensational plays ever pulled off in Pittsburgh, when he took a pass from Parkinson while falling over the goal line.

The Pitt boast that Donchess can "manhandle tackles" will meet with an answer in the Nebraska camp. The Cornhuskers have a powerful outlay of tackles this year and with Richards, Broadstone and Ray topping the list the crack eastern wingster will have plenty of work on his hands.

Plenty of Reserves.

Along with Donchess in the line, Sutherland has Captain Al Dimeolo, one of the finest running guards in the east; Montgomery, a fine center; Jim MacMurdo, a rough and ready sophomore, and Paul Collins and Ed Herschberger, who are fighting it out for the end assignment.

Evidence Pitt will invade Nebraska plenty chesty is seen in advance notice, from the Pitt camp. While the Panthers consider the Cornhuskers a formidable opponent, press jetting from Pitt indicate the Sutherland eleven is doing its "pointing" for the Ohio State game.

Huskers Will Be Ready.

Unless injuries strike the Nebraska squad at Syracuse, the Cornhuskers will be prepared to put their best foot forward against Pitt. The contest will be the final intersectional game of the season for Nebraska and the record crowd probably will afford just the needed punch to provide the Huskers with the urge to do a little dope spilling.

Should Nebraska upset the Panthers, it will not be the first time Pitt has been surprised by the Scarlet and Cream. In 1921 Pitt was in with what was rated as a championship team. Then along came Nebraska and smeared the Pitt record with a 10-0 defeat, outplaying the Panther team in a more decisive fashion than the score would appear to indicate.

HUSKERS VS. PITT.
1921—Nebraska, 10; Pitt, 0.
1927—Pitt, 21; Nebraska, 13.
1928—Nebraska, 0; Pitt, 0.

DOANE COLLEGE DOWNS MIDLAND

Tigers Best Lutherans In Homecoming Game By 18 to 6.

CRETE, Neb., Oct. 12. — Doane college defeated Midland college in a Homecoming day game here, 18 to 6. Midland got off to a flying start by recovering a Doane fumble early in the game.

The fumble was recovered on the Doane 12-yard line and Nordstrom plunged for ten yards and Lichliter carried it across.

At the start of the second quarter Midland got hold of another fumble, but the Tiger line held fast. During the first half Doane made five first downs to two for Midland but the Tigers were hampered by a series of fumbles which proved to be advantageous to the Fremonters. Midland made most of its gains by the overhead route. Seldom could they dent the Tiger line.

Tigers Start Scoring.

In the second half the tables turned Doane started blacking Midland kicks and taking advantage of fumbles along with superior ability at lugging the ball. The Tigers soon had a touchdown after blocking a Midland kick behind the goal line.

The second score was made when Parker made a 35-yard place kick. The third score came when Smith passed to Elm for the counter, the fourth score was the result of a safety.

Doane Held Edge.

Statistics show the Tigers made nine first downs to five for Midland. Every member of the Doane backfield worked to perfection, while Werner stood out in the line as an able man on the offense and defense. Fleichman and Mason also did good work at the tackle berths. For Midland, Schnaebel stood out in the line, while Nordstrom was the main cog in the backfield.

one idea of vindicating themselves and their coach.

Although the first period spurt by the Orangemen enabled Syracuse to compile the larger total of earned first downs, the Huskers easily offset that margin by their electrifying rallies in the second and fourth periods.

Linemen Show Class.

Much of the credit for Nebraska's triumph was awarded tonight to the Cornhusker line. From one wing to the other, the Husker forwards outfought and outmaneuvered their Orange clad opponents.

This advantage became almost a rout during the closing moments of the battle, as detailed notes of the combat disclose that the Syracuse backs repeatedly were downed in their tracks without gaining an inch through the Husker line.

The statistics credit the Cornhuskers with eight earned first downs and the Orangemen with 10. In rushing the ball, Syracuse reeled off gains which totaled 145 yards, while the Huskers stand credited with 118 yards. The margin of gains on forward passing tactics was in Nebraska's favor, the Huskers completing four passes for 59 yards and the Orange executing three passes for gains of 40 yards. Penalties set the Huskers back 55 yards, while the Orangemen were penalized to the extent of 45 yards.

Bible's Comment Brief.

Coach Bible's comment tonight was brief, but very much to the point.

"Determination to win did the business," he said. "Nebraska team was inspired by that determination which refused to take into account any such thing as defeat. They had something to do and they did it."

The Cornhusker party pulled away from Syracuse early tonight and will halt all day Sunday on a sight-seeing tour of the Niagara Falls region. A practice halt is, on the schedule for Monday forenoon in Chicago and the Huskers will pull into Lincoln Tuesday morning, via the Rock Island.

WASHBURN TRIMS HOWELL'S OUTFIT

PITTSBURG, Kans., Oct. 12—Coach "Blue" Howell's clan of Powerful Pittsburg Gorillas nearly turned defeat into victory here this afternoon, when they unleashed a beautiful passing attack late in the last half, to throw a bad scare into a Bearg coached Washburn eleven. Their superb efforts were cut short by the final gun, however, and the game ended 12-7 in favor of Coach Bearg's proteges.

Fordham Crushes Meehan's Violets

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—(U. P.)—Football experts who had picked New York university to win over Fordham here today met with disappointment. Fordham rolled up a score of 26 against New York U's zero, before a crowd of more than 60,000 spectators at the Polo Grounds.

New York U. failed to score twice when it got inside the Maroon five yard line as Fordham staged two magnificent goal line stands. Fordham held the Violet's best attacks and then let go with an aerial attack of her own that produced a touchdown in the second period and two in each of the third and fourth quarters.

Harvard Wins Setup.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 12—(U. P.)—Showing flashes of power, a somewhat erratic Harvard eleven conquered an obviously weaker foe here today, winning 35 to 0 from the University of New Hampshire in the first football game ever played between these two colleges.

A crowd of some 20,000 fans saw practically three complete Crimson elevens play well, but not quite so well as expected against a slightly lighter team which tried unsuccessfully to overcome its opponent with an aerial offense.

Dartmouth Runs Wild.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 12—(U P.)—After being held to a single touchdown in the opening quarter of today's game with Allegheny, Dartmouth ran wild to score a 53 to 0 victory.

A FAIRY TALE

When you were young you perhaps read the story about the fellow that jumped on a magic carpet, turned on the go juice and went flitting hither, thither up yon through the clouds, cutting all sorts of capers up in the air, no doubt worrying the natives on the ground. Perhaps throwing kisses at the girls and making faces at their escorts.

It has been so long since we read that story that we have forgotten the location, names, etc., but anyway—this is

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

SHIFTING EASE OF CHRYSLER BRINGS MOTORING THRILL

"The multi-range gear shift on the new '77', '70' and 'Imperial' Chryslers not only gives increased smoothness of operation, but it solves the equally important problem of quietness," according to M. P. Caplan, of the Murphys Motors, local Chrysler dealers. "It has brought a new thrill to motoring.

"What has been needed for a long time is a fool-proof gear shift. Its arrival in the Chrysler multi-range gear shift is being greeted with nation-wide approval. Motorists who have tried it on the new Chryslers have been quick to realize that it has ushered in a new order of performance.

Men and women, weary of conventional performance have again become ardent drivers because they find shifting gears no longer troublesome. The flexibility of its speed ranges brings a new quietness and smoothness to the operation of the multi-range and the shifts between starting, acceleration and speed range, come in short, easy stages."

MARQUETTE GETS ADVANTAGES OF BUICK SERVICING

Buick's gigantic service organization, comprising more than 4,000 service stations throughout the United States ,is playing a prominent part in the sales program of the new Marquette, according to C. W. Churchill, general sales manager of the Buick Motor Co.

Under the direction of C. W. Jacobs, service manager of the Buick Motor Company service stations across America were adequately equipped and manned to take care of the Marquette before it was introduced.

The entire personnel of Buick's service organization in the field, composed of men in all of the regional and zone divisions, were given a thorough schooling in Marquette service at the factory in Flint, Mich., before the car was introduced to the motoring public. They in turn acted as instructors for the men in the various service stations throughout the country.

NEARLY 500 NEW DE SOTO DEALERS ADDED RECENTLY

"With no changes in policy or product, nearly 500 new dealers in various parts of the country hav been attracted to the De Soto dealer organization during the last six weeks," according to L. G. Peed, general sales manager of the De Soto Motor corporation, division of Chrysler corporation.

"Since the De Soto Six was first introduced slightly over a year ago," he continued, "the addition of new dealers and the increase in sales has been remarkable. Starting from scratch in August 1928 with no dealers, a new product, and the job of building an entirely new organization, the De Soto Six broke all existing records for sales of a first-year car when 81,065 of the new cars were built and sold during its first twelve months. This record is all the more impressive when it is considered that at the same time, the dealer organization in the field was being developed and the cars were being sold by a much smaller sales organization than now exists."

Order For New Plymouth Exceed Output Schedule

With the announcement of the new Plymouth de luxe sedan to dealers only four weeks past and with the official announcement to the public only one week old, orders at the factory for this new body style are 33 1-3 per cent in in excess of scheduled production, according to A. van Der Zee, general sales manager.

"The ready public acceptance with which this new model in the Plymouth line has been received is due to the fact that this de luxe model is really an aristocrat among cars of the low-priced class," Mr. van Der Zee says. "In building it, we have included in its design and construction features of comfort, beauty and luxury that hitherto have been found only in cars of a much higher price.

The new deluxe sedan is being featured throughout the month of October in connection with special demonstration activities being held by Plymouth dealers in all sections of the country.

PONTIAC CARRIES NITRO-GLYCERINE INTO OIL FIELDS

Two of the most courteous drivers in the history of motoring are J. H. Williams and H. R. Garrett of Dupo, Ill. They never try to "beat the light." They are most courteous in giving way to approaching drivers and they always stick out their hands when making a turn.

Williams and Garrett exercise this extreme care because a collision probably would mean that the car, its occupants and a good portion of the surrounding country would suddenly disappear, leaving only a blasted, smoking crater.

The two men are "soup" experts employed by the American Glycerine Co. to "shoot" oil wells in the rough oil country surrounding Dupo. They have entrusted thier lives and their dangerous supplies of nitro-glycerine to a Pontiac bix six coupe eqiupped with special racks for carrying the temperamental explosive which is eight times more powerful than gunpowder.

Daily the Pontiac carefully picks its way over the slippery uncertain byways leading to the scene of the current drilling operation. The two "oil shooters" assert that the Pontiac is an ideal vehicle in which to cradle their liquid "dynamite."

GRAHAM-PAIGE IS DRIVEN 464 HOURS WITHOUT A STOP

A striking demonstration of endurance, human and mechanical, was given by two drivers and a four-speed Graham-Paige, when Mr. and Mrs. Earl Williams, without ever leaving the car, completed a non-stop run of 464 hours 7 minutes. In the 19 days and nights of continuous driving, they completed 18,232 laps around the half-mile dirt track at the Utah state fair grounds.

Both the car and the drivers apparently were good for many more hours when the run ended one midnight, with a nail through the right rear tire of the Graham-Paige 621 sedan.

The run was to be considered closed the moment the engine or the wheels stopped. Ingenious arrangements had been provided for changing wheels while the car proceeded under its own power, and changes had been made in practice. At the crucial moment, in pitch darkness, after the rolling jack had been placed in position and the right rear wheel raised off the ground and clamped, permitting the left wheel to propel the car, the jack hit a rut and ploughed deep into the soft dirt track. The result was an abrupt halt of the run.

Defective Eyes of Motorists.

No fewer than 30 out of every 100 automobile drivers are said to suffer from eye trouble—astigmatism, far or near sightedness, color blindness or some other ocular defect. In congested traffic, where distance and speed of objects must be gauged within an instant, these sufferers are actually groping. That they escape accidents—if they do—is due to quick thinking of the drivers. Railroad engineers, electric motormen, air pilots, must take eyetests. Engneers and motormen are sure at least of their directions, and air pilots rarely operate in congestion. The motorist, encountering both difficulties, gets his license with no test whatever.

Overhaul Auto In Fall.

The life and mileage of a car are mcreased if the vehicle has a thorough checkup every six months, and now is the time to give it a complete overhauling to meet the strains of chilly fall and cold weather. If vibration is the most annoying trouble see that the bolts holding the engine clutch transmission unit to the frame are perfectly tight. Sometimes the fan is out of balance, due to the bending of its blades. Leakage of gas may oppress one of the cylinders and cause t to give impulses that are weaeker than the others. It is well to see that nothing about the car is loose and thus can be set shaking so as to exaggerate the angine vibration. It has been found that a bent driving shaft, misalignment of wheels, loose top, loose fenders and other causes may make the car vibrate.

Time to Test Lamps of Car.

Motorists should frequently mawe tests for proper light focus now that the hours of daylight are on the decrease. Place the car on a level space facing a wall, the car lamps being 25 feet distant from the wall. Mark a horizontal line on the wall, which line shall be on the same height from the ground as the centers of the lamps on the car. With lights on and both lenses installed, cover one lamp to shut off the light and move the screw or device in the other lamp, which regulates the position of the bulb, until the narrowest horizontal beam of light shows on the wall. Then perform the same operation with the other lamp. Having focused the lamp, tilt or bend each lamp until the top of the beam is no higher than the "lamp level line" on the wall.

Care of Lacquer Finish of Cars.

Doing the right thing at the right time will preserve the body and its finish, but doing the wrong thing at any old time will ruin it very quickly. Even though it is possible to wipe off the lacquer while dry, it is much better to wash the finish with clear water and a sponge, especially if there is grit in the mud or dirt. When it is necessary to touch up a lacquer finish it is never advisable to use varnish for the purpose. Lacquer should be used. When varnish is used the varnish will never match the finish; the spots that have been touched up will stand out very distinctly. The main thing is to avoid the minute scratches which are the first steps in the desrucion of the finish. These are due to rubbing abrasives across the finish, these abrasives being contained in the sand and dirt picked up off the road. If the dirt is softened first with water the abrasives are not so apt to be hard enough to cut, but nevertheless they canno be abused. Never use the same sponge for the body used for the running gear and the underside of the fenders. Those parts should be flooded with water and after most of the mud is soaked off, warm soapsuds made with good body soap will take off the remainder. After this the parts should be flushed off with clear water. When washing the top, be sure that all the lacuer and bright work on the car is fairly wet first. This will prevent the dirt and grime that is washed off the top from staining the other parts of the car.

Conditioning the New Car.

Carefully watch the water in the radiator and the oil in the crankcase when driving the new car. When an engine is new and stiff it heats up more rapidly than when it is thoroughly broken in.

Worth Remembering.

A car equipped with four-wheel brakes will stop better if it is not turned off to the right or left. The braking system is designed so that the outer front wheel brake releases when the car goes around a curve. The situation is the same if the driver cuts the wheels to the right or left when stopping, only three brakes being on the job under such conditions.

Keep Tools n Order.

Accessories and tools used for repair work should be cleaned and returned to their proper places immediately after the job is completed. This will avert delay when future work is planned.

Careless Driving Causes Waste.

Careless driving will cause an excess of consumption of fuel and endless wear on moving parts of the car. Here are a few of the bad habits

Letting the engine run at high speed while idling in traffic.

Driving too long in first and in second gear before shifting to high.

Racing engine in spurts when you are waiting for the traffic "go" signal.

Uneven acceleration, that is stepping on the accelerator unsteadily.

Allowing brakes to drag. This wastes gasoline and wears out the brake linings.

Dashing up to a stop street and then jamming on the brakes. This is hard on a car and is dangerous practice.

Driving with fouled spark plugs. This wastes about 20 to 25 per cent of the gasoline used for every plug that is out of commission.

Auto Notes.

Steering and braking are affected by soft tires.

Sticky valves and a lean mixture make a poor combination and often a dangerous one.

To stop suddenly places a strain on the body of the car, loosening and weakening the chassis, springs, wheels and top.

Select level ground to jack up a car. To do this on a grade is dangerous.

Traffic Problems.

Multiple Lane Traffic

BY DR. F. A. WELLS.

Multiple lane traffic in the congested district of Lincoln practically means double lane traffic, as angle parking only leaves room sufficient for two lanes of traffic between the parked vehicles and the center of the street.

The ignorance of the majority of drivers concerning the multiple (double) lane traffic rules is so general that it is considered necessary to publish this article at this time although we published a similar article sometime ago.

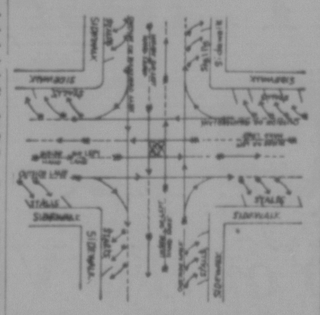
The congested district comprises the territory from the west line of Seventh street to the east line of Seventeenth street and from the north line of Q street to the south line of M street. Also the busy parts of Forty-eighth and Greenwood streets.

To facilitate traffic in this congested district, vehicles are allowed to proceed in more than one lane of traffic. The amount of space available at most times is only sufficient for two lanes of traffic, but if for any reason at any time the available space between the center of the street and the right hand curb or line of parked vehicles is sufficient, three or even four vehicles may proceed abreast.

No matter how many lanes of traffic there are, a right hand turn may only be made from the lane farthest to the right and a left hand turn may only be made from the left hand lane nearest the center of the street.

If you wish to park it must be done from the right hand lane next the space for parking.

If you are not in the proper lane from which to park or make your intersection turn you must shift to such lane between street intersections and a sufficient distance before making such turn to allow following cars to ascertain your intentions.



The multiple traffic lane rule in force in the congested district agrees well with the single traffic lane rule in force on all other streets, as parking and turns are done from similar positions. The principal difference is that in single lane traffic vehicles traveling in the same direction may not pass at a street intersection.

Drivers in the congested district should be careful to drive either in the inside or the outside lane because if they drive astride the dividing line they block both lanes so that a faster vehicle can not pass and only half of the capacity of the street can be utilized.

The accompanying cut illustrates the points made in th's article.

All persons acquainted with the multiple lane traffic rule should spread the information to others.

NASH FINDS NEW '400' SERIES CAR MEETS APPROVAL

KENOSHA, Wis., Oct. 12—American motorists, the most expert and most critical mechanical audience in the world, have set their seal of approval on the advanced engineering features and design revealed last week in the introduction and display of the new Nash "400" series cars for 1930.

Features of particular interest, acording to telegrams received at Nash headquarters, lay in the doubly efficient ignition qualities of the first Nash eight-in-line, twin-ignition motor introduced into the fine car field, and in the masterful co-ordination of important engineering advancements in all of the three new Nash groups. Lightness and strength of new reciprocating parts.

"It is pleasing indeed to know of the enthusiasm that our dealers and the public have displayed over the new Nash line for 1930," C. H. Bliss, general sales manager, declared today after reading the first of a deluge of congratulatory wires.

A bucking engine is sometimes due to improper adjustment of spark plugs or breaker-point gaps.

Making today's Oakland the SMOOTHEST car in its field

In the entire field of medium-priced automobiles there is no car so superbly smooth, so completely free from vibration as today's Oakland All-American Six. This is due in part to its basic design. But there are two Oakland developments which, more than any other features, contribute to the superlative smoothness of the All-American Six. These are the Harmonic Balancer and Oakland's patented rubber "biscuit" engine mountings. The Harmonic Balancer neutralizes torsional vibration in the crankshaft. The rubber "biscuit" engine mountings completely insulate the engine from frame and body. And these mountings, together with Oakland's practice of transmitting the power from the engine to the rear axle through rubber, have the effect of preventing even the slightest tremor being relayed to the body.

If you expect to buy a new car soon, smoothness is one of the first qualities you will want. Let us show you by a demonstration how wonderfully smooth the Oakland is under all conditions—and how on every basis of comparison it is America's finest medium-priced automobile!

Oakland All-American Six, $1145 to $1375, f. o. b. Pontiac, Mich., plus delivery charges. Spring covers, Lovejoy Shock Absorbers included in list prices. Bumpers and rear fender guards extra. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

Consider the delivered price as well as the list (f. o. b.) price when comparing automobile values . . . Oakland-Pontiac delivered prices include only authorized charges for freight and delivery and the charge for any additional accessories or financing desired.

Proof that Oakland is America's finest medium-priced automobile

The following facts were obtained from a comparison of the Oakland All-American Six with 20 other medium-priced automobiles. All told, 878 individual comparisons were made. Of these, Oakland proved to be distinctly superior in 451 or 51.37 per cent. The 20 cars combined were at best equal to Oakland on 382 or 43.50 per cent. And 13 of the 20 were higher-priced than Oakland.

RUBBER ENGINE MOUNTINGS
Only Oakland in the entire field employs rubber "biscuit" insulators. While others claim rubber mountings, none offers such resilience and permanent freedom from vibration as Oakland.

HARMONIC BALANCER
Only Oakland and one other car in the field have the Harmonic Balancer. Of 13 cars using some other device, 11 are higher-priced than Oakland. Oakland's crankshaft is fully counterweighted. The crankshafts in nine higher-priced cars are not counterweighted at all.

PISTON DISPLACEMENT
Oakland's 228 cubic inch piston displacement is greater than 12 of the 20 cars in its price field. Of the 8 remaining cars, 7 are much higher priced.

CRANKCASE VENTILATION
While most cars in the field have crankcase ventilation, only Oakland and one other, according to available information, have any method for cleaning the air. Six have not, although three of the six are higher-priced.

BRAKES Only Oakland and one other car in its field use the fine type of brakes which Oakland employs. And no car in the field equals Oakland's 290 square inches of brake band area. Oakland's separate emergency brake operates on the transmission. Seven cars in the field have no separate emergency brakes, although three of them exceed Oakland in price.

The Freiburg Passion Play

Over seven hundred years ago the citizens of Freiburg, in Baden, were enacting in dramatic form, the story of the life of Christ. Throughout the ensuing centuries they have continued to produce at varying intervals the religious spectacle that is as old as their town. It has become more than a tradition. It has become a part of the lives of those who assume the responsibilities for the interpretations of the sacred roles.

Adolf Fassnacht, plays the role of the Christ in the present production of the Passion Play. More than one hundred and seventy years ago his family obtained from the town council of Freiburg the right to control the presentation and the interpretation of the religious drama. Since that distant date his ancestors have handed down from generation to generation the principal characterizations of the sacred story.

In this day of extemporaneous drama, of plots that develop from the fads of the moment, the Freiburg Passion Play will bring to the stage a beauty and a depth of feeling acquired through the centuries, during which the tragedy has been portrayed by the sincere men and women of Freiburg.

The American Legion Lincoln Post No. 3, has the distinguished honor to present the Freiburg Passion Play to the Citizens of Lincoln and surrounding territory, in perhaps the last opportunity of witnessing this — the play that has thrilled the most select audiences in America.

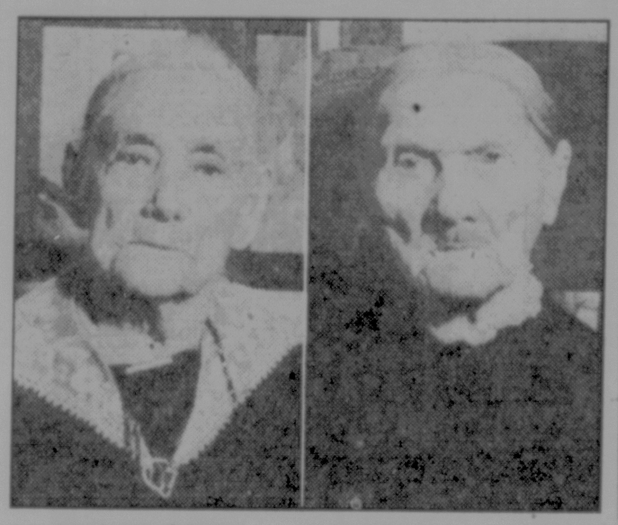
Century-Old Nebraskans Hear Each Other's Story



BY MARIE HERRIN.

HASTINGS, Neb., Oct. 12—Probably for the first time in Nebraska history, two women of 100 years each met at Hastings Thursday and enjoyed a party together given in their honor.

Each is able to be about as comfortably and as easily as women forty years their junior, and each has excellent eyesight, although Mrs. Wademan's life is equally interesting. She was born in Warsaw, October 15, 1829, one of six children. She was married when 16 years of age in 1845, and ten of her twelve children were born near that city, where she and her husband had a farm. After they moved to Russia two other children were born, but when she came to America in 1890, two were left sleeping under the sod. Two others elected to remain in Russia, one—the eldest son—dying over there three years ago, while the other followed the mother to this country some years later.

With her husband and four of their children, Mrs. Wademan finally settled in Webster county about seven miles southwest of Blue Hill, where they resided until Mr. Wademan's death in 1914. They had been married 69 years, and he was 89 years old. Her oldest living child in 82 years old now.

For the past six years, Mrs. Wademan has resided with her son, Ferdinand and his family, three and a half miles southwest of Blue Hill. She is in excellent health, being able to be about the house, going frequently on long drives with the family, enjoying family parties and attending services at the Trinity Lutheran church regularly.

To See First Movie.

She will attend her first movie on her birthday next Tuesday, when the manager of the theater in Blue Hill will give a party in her honor.

During her life in Poland, she lived through great perils and privations. The enemy swarmed over the land during the conflicts, robbing, killing, and assaulting. Many times it was necessary for Mrs. Wademan to hide her children in outdoor ovens and other secret places until danger was past.

She recalls one season when Poland knew a plague of snakes. The reptiles found their way into homes, the beds, the clothing and even into places where food was stored.

Mrs. Wademan's life has taught her stoicism and courage. Her second youngest son, Louis, 56, died in California a month ago following an accident, and the family refrained from telling her of her loss for fear the shock would be too great for her years.

A Spartan Mother.

Finally, when they did break the news to her after she had spoken repeatedly of missing his letters, she sat in thought, her head bowed for a little while, and then as though she had communed with the Great Comforter said:

"He is better off than we." Her eyes remained dry. She had not seen him for fourteen years.

Mrs. Comontofski and Fred are with their mother to help her celebrate her century anniversary.

In addition to the children, she has 72 grandchildren and 41 great grandchildren. Her hope for seeing great-great-grandchildren vanished when all of her eldest son's five children were wiped out by typhoid that swept through Poland and Russia about the time she came to America.

Both Women Surprised.

It was quite an experience for the two centenarians to meet, and it was interesting to note that each was surprised to see what effect the years had had on the other.

They were introduced to each other in the office of the late Adam Breede, founder of the Tribune.

About Miss Harn's neck in the picture can be seen a fine black chain, and as the photographer was posing her with Mrs. Wademan, she explained with a flash of her remarkably keen wit:

Miss Harn's sister secured the jet black hair from the general's horse, and made a watch chain of 100 links from it for him. She had enough small pieces left to make thirteen links in a chain for Miss Harn, and the latter had them set off from others that look identically like them but are made from a different horse, by two gold links.

Today, both Miss Harn and Mrs. Wademan were back in their own homes, apparently no worse for their rides to Hastings for their joint party. Mrs. Wademan is looking forward to another party in her honor Tuesday. A special service will also be held in compliment to her at the Trinity Lutheran church in Blue Hill.

Leigh Girl Has Perfect Record For Sunday School Attendance

A perfect attendance record at Sunday school for nine years has been accomplished by Mignon Rebecca Jones, 11-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. F. F. Jones, of Leigh, Neb. Mignon has attended Sunday school longer than nine years, but the records do not show that she had an unbroken attendance during the first two years of her life.

Building this record has taken the little girl into more than a dozen different schools in the states of Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois and Missouri. Her experiences and those of her parents who have been keenly interested in keeping her record intact have been varied and at times, a trifle hazardous.

Mignon has made frequent trips with her parents to points in Missouri and Illinois to visit relatives. On such occasions there was an understanding that if a portion of the drive should be made on Sunday morning the party was to stop at some city or town along the road during the Sunday school hour and take the little girl to a church for the school services. Although they have always been able to do this there were occasions when it seemed almost an impossibility."

In Spite of Blizzard.

Driving up from Missouri in the winter a few years ago, the Jones family encountered a severe blizzard. Every mile they covered took them into deeper snow and as they neared the Sunday school hour their progress became more and more impeded. Finally they came upon a hearse, being driven to a funeral, hopelessly stuck in the drifts in the middle of the road. It looked for a while as though Mignon's Sunday school record was closed, but the Jones family, having a lighter car, was able to turn out to one side and pass the hearse and get on through the deep drifts. Despite the loss of time they were able to reach St. Joseph and Mignon was on time at the Frederick Street Methodist Sunday school.

MIGNON REBECCA JONES.

On another occasion Mignon and her mother and brother, Lloyd, were returning home from Chicago. They had reached Nebraska and had made an early start from Fremont one Sunday morning hoping to reach Schuyler, or at least Rogers, in time for Sunday school. Proceeding along the Lincoln highway in Dodge county they came to muddy roads as a result of a heavy rain during the night and newly spread gravel made traveling extremely difficult. Cars of every description and make were being hauled out of the mire and the hour of 9 o'clock had already struck. Mrs. Jones knew there was no time to lose and fearing what they might get into if they kept on, she turned the car around and retraced 15 miles of bad roads back to North Bend—and again Mignon was on time at Sunday school with an unbroken record.

Mignon's case is given added interest when one learns that she is an adopted child, the second to be given a home by Dr. and Mrs. Jones. Taken from one of the state's orphanages by her foster parents when she was a mere babe, she had needed more than ordinary care to bring her through to the rugged state of health which she now enjoys, for she was handicapped by a frail constitution from infancy.

Class Came to Her.

An illness which fastened itself upon her in her sixth year threatened to end her attendance record for on Sunday morning she carried a temperature of 103 degrees and was unable to rise from her bed. Her Sunday school teacher, however, was not lacking in ingenuity and bundling her entire class of little people into their wraps, she took books, pupils and papers to the Jones home and the regular lesson study was conducted at Mignon's bedside. The little girl is a member of the Congregational Sunday school at Leigh.

Two other children, Henrietta Bade, 14, and Carl Bade, 13, children of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bade, who live within one mile of the Jones family, also have enviable attendance records at Sunday school. They are pupils in St. John's Lutheran school at Leigh and they have not missed being present at Sunday school for seven years. Living in the country their father has been obliged to make drives in all kinds of weather to get them to the church on time every Sunday morning. The Bade children have never visited any school other than their own so their records have been made entirely in St. John's school.

Cotner Notes

Rev. Dr. H. P. Fox of the First Methodist church spoke on "A Trip to the Balkans" at chapel Tuesday. Dr. Fox visited this region about a year ago.

The Yale university catalog covering last year, lists six Cotner alumni enrolled as students. Five were in the divinity school, as follows: Lawrence Berry, '25; G. WHAT that marvelous blanket cleaning machine looks like at the Modern—but it must be a wonder, the way it cleanes blankets, restoring the original fluffiness when new. Then, too the Modern Cleaners do all types of house furnishing cleaning—draperies, spreads, rugs, etc. Call them for these things as well as your wearing apparel.

Have You a Cinderella Foot?

IF you have you'd better see the clever sample line of smart 4 B's at Orkin's—Suede and kid combinations, tweed and patent. In fact in this individual line you'll find shoes with just loads of style and a great variety of those "different" types.

She Was Attired

IN fashion's newest, gown, gloves, hand bag and shoes, showed excellent taste. Harmonizing in every detail—and yet she was not flawless—She was wearing a pair of exquisite hose which had an unsightly mend. Here she had erred — not that preservation of expensive hose is not the thing—It is what we advise—but never the old fashioned way at home. The efficient menders at Magee's leave no sign of their deft re-knitting. It is an absolutely invisible process—and give them a few hours and a few cents and they'll be restored to absolute newness.

This will be the first winter season in years when felt will not reign absolutely supreme. We have had, in other years, grossgrain hats, and satin hats, and velvet hats, and on through the list, but seventy-five per cent of the smart hats worn were made of felt. This winter will be different. Felts there will be, of course, but fabrics have really come into their own. Supple velvets, not the stiff millinery velvet of other years, but dress velvets, will make hats so supple that you can roll them up and put them in your pocket. The silkiest of velvets, for draped toques are made. Fabrics, like the crepe de chine, which is machine stitched all over to make an irregularly quilted surface, are featured for hats that fit as closely as turbans and toques and yet have a pretty softness that is new and neither Oriental nor warrior-like. Satin ribbon is used for hats with draping bows, and ends; fur as soft as silk is used to make and trim hats of every sort everywhere. Silk isn't the only fabric in favor. There are the jerseys.

The smartest of all fabrics, broadcloth. It is young in quality, is a distant and extremely distinguished relative of felt, and it is lovely both in color and in black. The reason why these fabric hats exist is that they have soft brims and soft edges. There is something in the air today that demands that the face be more softly framed.

Who'd a Thought

FLAPPERS would be patterning princesses—it is true princess frocks are besieging us at every turn. The windows at Harris-Goar's demonstrate that although voguish they are likewise inexpensive, $9.79 and $12.79 is the special price they've placed on some choice fall models. The fur trimmed coats shown for $25.95 could easily be sold for $35.00. At Harris-Goar's lenient credit is enjoyed.

A new winter coat if it doesn't flare or have some circular effect in the skirt, for believe me, styles for coats have taken a decided turn toward a more feminine trend—of course in Mayer's elaborate showing I'll have to admit some are straight lines but then those are made more voguish with the use of fur trimming. In this group you need pay no more than 69.50 and some as low as 49.00.

The hemline is definitely much longer, six inches below the knees for sports and tailored street frocks and suits, and ranging from 10 inches below to ankle length for afternoon and evening, with many of the evening dresses trailing on the floor, either in all-around panels or in side or back trains.

A group of afternoon frocks in ankle length versions indicates the formality that is stressed here. A gown called "Romance," made of transparent black velvet, is a pure princess type with even ankle length skirt with the same hemline, a black crepe roma gown is bloused at the normal waist by inverted pin tucks in front and by cutting at back, and a green flat crepe dress is in semi-princess effect with a gored skirt that touches the ankles in back and lifts up several inches in front.

Hats and bags matching tweed suits were universal, while the tweed handle walking stick had been adopted quite freely. One well known golfer was seen wearing a tweed belted cardigan and skirt, a yellow tuck-in sweater, a brown and yellow triangular crepe de Chine scarf, and a tweed pull-on sports hat to match. She carried a tweed handle walking stick and a bag to match and completed her ensemble by two tone brown ghillie shoes.

Walking sticks with tweed-covered crook handles provided the newest note among ensembles noted.

Young People Should Give Their Parents An Even Break — Family Teasing Is Often Carried to Unkind Etremes.

An Even Break.

Give your parents an even break. In this age of youthful and even juvenile independence of thought and actions, the parents are sometimes left in the lurch.

The right to express one's individuality; the right to make one's own mistakes; the right to do this and do that, unhampered by the old-worn-out traditions and conventions. These are preachments that fall glibly from the lips of the modern youngsters.

But the oldsters need and deserve more consideration than they are getting.

After all ,there is no teacher like experience. And parents are experienced. Their greatest desire is to aid their children to profit by their own experience and to save them from the mistakes which they have made. The first consideration of parents is for their children. They adapt their plans and mode of living to the desires and ambitions of their children. They do not make any important changes without considering the effect it will have upon the children.

But many self-centered, modern children do not give their parents any thought when they make important changes in their own lives.

Mary's parents have sacrificed and worked to accumulate money to send her to college. But Mary elopes with a school friend in her freshman year without giving her parents any opportunity to advise her or to adjust themselves to the sudden and complete change of plans.

Harold, whose father had counted on his becoming a partner in the business, joins the navy and announces the fact only after it was too late to do anything about it.

Such manifestations of independence are not giving the parents an even break. Moreover the headstrong youngsters are depriving themselves of the wisest and most unselfish help they can have—that of their parents.

Unkind Teasing.

Family teasing is responsibile for many inferiority complexes. A little girl who does not want her letter to be published, writes me: "Please won't you tell me how I can make them (the family) stop teasing me and telling me I'm no good, because sometimes I begin to think I am no good, and I don't want to do that."

Don't believe it, "Mary Louise." Just keep your faith in yourself in spite of the teasing. They don't in the least know how it hurts, and besides, you know you are at the age when you are particularly sensitive. A few years ago, probably ,or a few years hence, you would not take the teasing so much to heart.

Your family probably would be heartbroken if they knew how the teasing affects you. It may be, too, that they are afraid of making too much of you of letting you see that they are fond and proud of you, and so they go to the other extreme.

It's queer how people torture the things they love best, isn't it? Haven't you see a man tease a dog? He may think a lot of the dog, but he will torment him unmercifully, thinking, apparently, that the dog enjoys it as much as he does. And you'll see the same thing with a baby. Adults will some times play with a baby, teasing it until the poor little thing is a nervous and physical wreck.

We have to be tolerant of such people, although they make us want to scream and rave. They are ignorant. I don't know what you can do about it, unless you show them this article. But most of all, it is important that you develop an immunity and face such teasings with a laugh, no matter how they hurt.

Playing the Game.

The young and very attractive girl was playing tennis, and giving an exhibition of determination and pluck in combating partners clearly enough her superiors at the game. A ball served with a mighty swing caught her on the nose. It was a painful blow, also an embarrassing one, for it was a ludicrous and amusing scene to the gallery of bystanders.

The girl applied cold water to the bump and even while she was in pain, was good enough sport to laugh at herself instead of resenting the unfeeling laughter of the others.

And I thought that life could never hurt that girl very severely. A girl with the pluck and determination she showed in her game, the sense of humor to laugh under such gruelling circumstances, and with it all, an attractive personality—well, she has little to fear.

And I thought if the girls who sign their letters "Broken Hearted" over this and that adversity, would change their signatures to "Light Hearted," and play the game with a gallant laugh, how trifling their troubles would seem and how much more they would get out of life.

Observing Neighbors.

Dear Minerva: I am a girl eighteen years of age. I have been going with a boy five months my senior. I do not know exactly what you think of sailors, but I must say for myself that there is good and bad in everyone. I think that a sailor's ranking is just the same socially as if he were a civilian. Some of them have bad reputations, then they all suffer. The boy I go with is a sailor but a better boy would be hard to find. I have never gone with boys much, simply because I don't like this going out in some out-of-the-way place and parking for hours as some boys do. I am very particular about my company and this boy is my ideal. We are alike in most everything and get along fine together. He may seem young to you but he acts older than ne is. My father has met him and likes him real well. He and my oldest brother are real good friends and all of my friends that know him like him. He is a clean-cut ooy, never drinks or smokes. Neither of us dance so we attend shows quite often together and he enjoys staying home once in a while with my brothers and sister. We have made candy in the evening and spend some real enjoyable times together.

But—here is the rub. My mother is away. My father only comes home once a week and I am left here to go to school, keep up the house and take care of two brothers and a sister all younger than myself. Our neighbors in the same house seem to persist in telling me what to do and what not to do. When my boy friend comes they usually watch us like hawks and talk about it until he comes again and then it starts over again. The children are always here and we usually go out some place. They try continually to get us into trouble. Dad says not to pay any attention to them but I hate to have anyone talk behind my back, lie out of it and treat me so nice to my face.

Should I give him up just to please them or do as Dad says? I might say that mother does not know I go with him or she might not like it for the simple reason that she has heard and believes a lot about sailors. She might feel differently now as I have not seen her for three months. But since Dad knows all about it isn't that all that is necessary?

The ship that this boy is on has gone to San Diego for two months but I expect him up several times during this period.

I like him and I know he likes me. —FLORENCE.

A.—Your dad's advice is good, to refrain from worrying about what the neighbors say. Neighbors can be most disagreeable. Sometimes they don't have much excitement in their lives other than that afforded by the young folks in the neighborhood and make the best of that.

There are surely mighty fine boys to be found in the navy. Don't ever be ashamed of the sailor boy's uniform. I realize as well as you do that the conduct of some of these boys has made it hard for the others. But the way to overcome this unfortunate current opinion is to openly and proudly accept the friendship of the sailor boy who is fine and worth while.

As your mother is away, I think your dad's opnion is the one to carry weight on the immediate problem.

Forgetting Is Difficult.

Elsie: Whether there should be a confession of past sins to one's best beloved is usually a woman's problem. The conscience of the woman is much more likely to bother her on this point than does man's.

Occasionally a man does confess to his wife or sweetheart that he has sidestepped, and he certainly expects to be forgiven and the incident forgotten.

Forgiving is possible and fairly easy to do in many cases. But forgetting is not so easy. In fact I might say that forgetting is not possible. The thing sticks in the back of the mind and causes all sorts of complications. It is supposed to be well repressed but up it will bob at psychological and generally dangerous moments.

Confess all and ask forgiveness, if it seems advisable and if such a confession will save any future unhappiness. But do not ask that the story also be forgotten. Ask only that forgiveness and understanding be complete.

I would think long before I laid bare the unlovely facts of past events. If these incidents are closed issues, it is usually better to let them repose in the archives of the past. To dig them up usually causes fresh and unnecessary wounds, which is too high a price to pay for the slight salving of the conscience which it brings to the confessor.

Stays Fat YET SHE EATS LIKE A BIRD

HERE'S the REASON

MANY fat people deny themselves year after year, yet stay fat. Many injure themselves in the process. It is time they know what millions know, including all modern physicians. A common cause of excess fat lies in an under-active gland. And that fat will not disappear until this wrong condition is corrected.

Marmola prescription tablets contain the best factors now employed. A famous laboratory prepares them. The formula appears in every box, also the scientific reasons for results.

People have used Marmola for 22 years—millions of boxes of it. Users everywhere now show and tell the amazing and delightful results. They do not starve or over-exercise. They combat the cause by feeding a gland factor which is scant, and which largely controls nutrition.

Why not do what so many have done, with such good results, for so long. Learn by a test what this method does, then carry it as far as you wish. Do this in fairness to yourself, to please your family and friends. Then tell others who need this help. Go start today.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 a box. Any druggist who is out will gladly order for you.

Suggestive of Old South and Estates of Country Gentlemen, "Cottonwoods" Is Being Developed By Dan Stephens of Fremont As One Of Beautifully Unique Spots of Nebraska

BELOW: Once the old river bed

BY LULU MAE COE.

A country home— close enough to be easily accessible at any time and in all months of the year—far enough from town that its peace would be soothing to wearied nerves.

That was the only thought of Dan V. Stephens of Fremont when he purchased a large tract of land seven miles northeast of the city on the Elkhorn river.

A rural retreat—his plan. Designed for the comfort of his family and of his friends coming there. A place for outdoors life, for bridle paths and winding walks, for games and sports, for an agreeable and pleasant existence.

In the beginning, only the imaginative eye could even see the country place. The three hundred acres were covered wtih a heavy growth of native timber, part of the wooded portions lying in the old river bed. Years of neglected underbrush, fallen trees, and weeds covered the ground.

"Cottonwoods" was to have been only a sightly country residence—planned on a simpler design than it has become.

Has Game Preserve.

Not even Mr. Stephens saw that it was to be a private game preserve. That just happened. But it has made the Stephens river acres quite unique in Nebraska.

Only three years ago Mr. Stephens purchased the land, and built his home. He has not had time nor opportunity to make it typical as yet, but it is his hope to have all the native fauna of Nebraska in his preserve.

Nebraska has a few federal game reserves, where wild life is safe from harm. Mr. Stephens is a pioneer in an individual enterprise to preserve the early animal life of the state.

"Cottonwoods" has had a sort of bean stalk growth, quite beyond the Stephens original plans for the home. Dwellers in furnace-heated homes are always—some day—going to build their own home—fire place first—and if there's any money left, a home around it. And so the Stephens planned for their summer home—a fire place with a room about it, as a sort of temporary picnic resort for use in the warm months and the first crisp days of fall.

There's the fireplace, a capacious thing holding lengthy logs, to be sure. But about it has been built a lovely southern Colonial house, with a number of modern improvements unknown in the first of this architecture. Amidst the tall, old trees, completely shut off from the bustling life of highways and from the clanging, clamor of town, the big white house is reminiscent of Mount Vernon, standing quiet and aloof above the Potomac, or of Monticello, high on its Virginia hills, with the rich picturesqueness of the south country sloping away from its verandah.

Started With Elk.

The estate has five or six miles of bridle and motor trails through the woods, which each year are developed here and there to give the desired effect in the landscaping. The major portion of the woods, however, are left in their wild state, so that game can have a safe hiding place. Modern, well equipped stables, saddle horses and dairy cows, and immense garden, and all the necessary complement of a complete establishment are on the grounds of "Cottonwoods."

First plans for "Cottonwoods" as a game preserve were involuntarily developed two years ago.

At the end of the first year, a friend presented Mr. Stephens with an elk, only a calf at that time. As the elk grew older, it became necessary to prepare a large grazing pasture for him, and from this effort has come meadows covered with blue grass, affording luxuriant pasturage for the animals. Mr. Stephens later secured a mate for the elk from the Black Hills government preserve, and they seem to enjoy their comfortable Nebraska life.

"It was then the idea developed of reproducing on this place all of the native animals that originally lived here in the primeval wilderness of this section," Mr. Stephens says.

"To carry out this idea, I next procured a pair of buffalo from the government preserve at Hot Springs, S. D. In the two years the buffalo have been on the place they have thrived beyond all expectations.

Buffalo Calf Arrives.

"These wonderful blue grass pastures make them butter fat, and the pair delivered to me last May a beautiful bull calf that is the pride of the place, and is only equalled by a male elk calf that is romping at the heels of his mother."

Within a short time, Mr. Stephens will receive from the Kaibab forest reserve in Utah three fawns that were trapped and have been raised by hand, for distribution. He is also to add three deer to his reserve, as soon as they can be secured from another park in this state.

"To complete the animal life among the quadrupeds," the owner states, "we have contracted with the game warden of Wyoming for a pair of antelope. These little creatures were raised on the bottle, and are pets.

"No other kind of antelope can be shipped after they have matured in a wild state. They are a delicate creature and difficult to raise, and the species is dying out rapidly in this country.

"We have been more than two years finding a way to secure these antelope, but it seems now that our troubles are over and that we will be able to secure this pair soon.

"It is our purpose to take these deer and antelope, that have been raised on the bottle and thoroughly domesticated, and turn them loose in the woods and pastures, around the house, so that in riding or driving through the woods we will see them in a natural environment with ample range for them."

Wants Wild Turkey.

Mr. Stephens has not been able to secure beaver, and he fears that he will probably not get any. The small animals that lived there can still be found in the woods. Quail, opossum, coon, muskrat, and others are still native at "Cottonwoods." Mr. Stephens hopes to establish the wild turkey on his tract, in addition to the other bird life already belonging there.

"As a very great stimulant to this establishment of these animals in their natural habitat, the mural painting on the walls of our home has done as much, perhaps, as anything else toward the carrying out of this dream. In our living room, there is a wall space over the French windows, 120 feet in length, and upon this Clarence Ellsworth, a local artist of considerable fame, painted a mural depicting the history of the valley.

"The mural is entitled "From The Wilderness to Civilization,' and is entirely local in color and history.

"The north wall, beginning at the stairway on the west, depicts the wilderness in its primeval state, showing the Elkhorn river, with the timber lands and grazing spaces between. In this picture are reproduced the great herds of buffalo, elk, deer, antelope, wild turkey, coyotes and other animals that originally inhabited this locality.

"The east wall depicts the Indian family life of the vicinity in their tepees.

Tells Dramatic Story.

"On the south wall is a reproduction of two great outstanding groups in the history of this state, that is, the fur traders and the Mormon caravan that crossed the Elkhorn at or near the "Cottonwoods' in 1846. The fur traders are shown with their pack horses and saddle animals, pausing in their travel down the Elkhorn river with their catch of fur to watch the great Mormon caravan as it came winding down through the hills from the east and forded the river.

"It is a great, sweeping majestic group of humanity, consisting of

It's hard to find the roads for the lines on a modern map.

Harassed by red and blue lines, dots, dashes, crosses, darts, and fancy designs, signs of interstate and primary highways, large cities, county seats, smaller towns, state boundaries, camp sites, mileage numbers, ferries, rivers, streams, and lakes, travelers just about decide that a vacation in the well-known front yard of home is the most soothing sort of holiday.

Not so Nebraska's first road map, published in 1862.

It had but one main road—and it showed the way to despair or to dreams come true. The one, if men found it the grave of their hopes, the other, if the same place proved the Eldorado of their hopes.

A New Map
of the
COLORADO TERRITORY
Drawn by
Aug. F. Harvey
Civil Engineer.

This original map and one of the public surveys of Nebraska at an early date are owned by Oliver Stevenson of Nebraska City. The maps originally were the property of his grandfather, Oliver Stevenson, who came to Brownville in 1859, and to Nebraska City about a year later. He established one of the early mills in the state, and his advertisement is carried on one of the maps.

Leaving Nebraska City, it quite closely followed the old Nebraska City cut off, joining the main North Platte route, "well settled all the way," as the map says, in Hall county. The road from Nebraska City to the junction is designated as "The Great Central Route," and was said to have been "Worked and opened—1861 Every stream bridged. No fords. No ferries."

Food On the Way.

The country around the starting point in Nebraska Territory was marked "Well timbered." About eight miles out, the map states, wood and water could be obtained, and just beyond this spot is Wilson's bridge, with Brownella bridge five or six miles farther.

Eager gold seekers had no fear of disaster near Olatha, as a "strong bridge" was there, and forage and provisions were also obtainable. Men must have stocked heavily on that westward trip, for forage and provisions are marked at a little unnamed settlement just beyond a "Bridge," wood and forage at Davison and Goodwin's, which was reached and departed from by a bridge, according to the map, and finally at the junction.

Footsore and weary men, who may have had indifferent accommodations at times must have brightened when they came to the North Platte route. Not only were provisions to be bought at Bissell's ranch, but the map maker stated that "Bissell & Earle good to stop at."

Charted Miles to Gold.

The long trek to the Colorado gold fields was unbroken through the Platte valley. Signs along the route suggest modern roadside advertising, even though the maker of maps instead of enterprising firms frote them.

Henchman's ranch provided "Wood, water, and forage," and Adobe town, adjacent to Fort Kearny farther west offered "Full supplies." The Platte Valley ranch, just east of the fort, and perhaps a competition of old Doby Town, lured on the map with "Good accommodations," Thomas Keeler had forage and provisions for sale, and George Biddleman kept "full supplies."

This early map maker combined our maps and many guide books in one, telling in brief words on one map all that is told in the most acceptable reference books on motoring today. The A. A. A. was a generation and more in the future in Mapmaker Harvey's day, but he pioneered in making a hard trip a little easier, by telling where the food was best, the beds softest, and supplies obtainable—if he did state it more briefly.

Food Conditions Improving

Partners operated at a lonely spot farther west along the trail. "Provisions plenty" had James Parsons, and John Sharp was a blacksmith. A stage station was bounded on one side by Smtih's East Ranch and on the other by Smith's West Ranch. At the east ranch, the potential millionaires could obtain "Forage and Provisions" and at the west, "Provisions and Forage."

Mr. Harvey found that Gilman brothers ranch had "Abundance of Everything," and McDonald's at Cottonwood Springs had "Accommodations for Man and Beast." Investigation proved that Jack A. Morrow had a "Store well stocked." Bishop and Brothers, "Full supplies," William's ranch, "Provisions and forage," and Jerome Dauchy carried "good supplies."

How these ambitious seekers of gold must have looked forward to Charley Walker's place, hoping the bacon would last and the horses wouldn't need more food before they got there. For Mr. Harvey had said that the provisions at Walker's were "Plenty and cheap."

Lincoln Described in 1862.

"Plenty to eat, and forage," he noted down for Lone Tree ranch. At Baker's, just beyond the stage station were "Provisions Store Stabling." Just beyond Baker's, the travelers crossed the Colorado line, but if the yellow lure did not hold them, Mr. Harvey's description that at Ackley and Forbes was "Eat Drink Cheap" and at Living Spring, almost in the gold field, were "Tip top accommodations."

The map states about this Platte route "From Denver to Nebraska City good ranches all the way," which meant food and rest. However it did not have such good maintenance as the "Great Central Route," for two fords are marked.

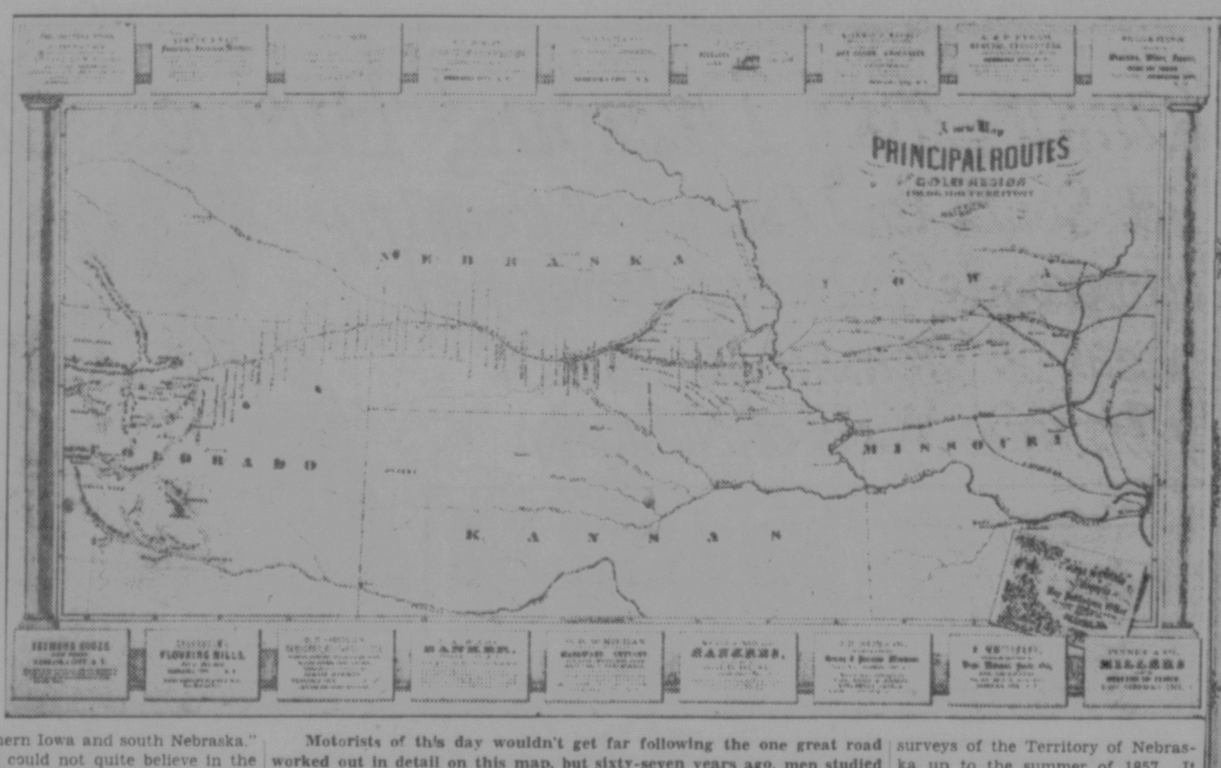
Although Lincoln could not be marked in 1862, its potential source of wealth, as envisioned sixty years ago, was mentioned on the map. At a spot marked "Salt Spring," Mr. Harvey wrote, "Millions of bushels of salt to be had for the gathering." "Splendid farming lands" and "Fine Timberland" marked the country south of Brownville. Hickory, oak, and walnut marked the country "on the Blues," and between the Big and the Little Blue, Mr. Harvey designated as good sheep country.

A Sectional Booster.

Nebraska between Plattsmouth and Nebraska City was "timbered," the country roughly corresponding to York and Seward counties was described as "Great grazing fields," although the countries north, about the present Polk, Butler, and Saunders counties, he considered good farming land. Mr. Harvey was evidently an early believer in parts of Nebraska as an agricultural state, for he wrote on the map "Greatest farming Country in the world is southern Iowa and south Nebraska."

He could not quite believe in the future of the entire state, however. The part of the state lying north of the Platte he variously described as "Sterile" and "Not cultivable," particularly beyond the Loup, and marked the section between the Elkhorn and the Loup as "Sandy." "Cottonwood and oak timber" were found in the northeast part of the state, and "Good farming near the river."

Advertisements on the map are interesting. Stevenson's mills of Nebraska City, N. T., tell of flour, corn meal, and feed. R. M. Rolfe and company offered "Ranche and General Outfitting Goods, Pork, Bacon, and Whiskey," and as an inducement, "sold at low figures." McCann and Metcalf were "Bankers and dealers in gold dust," and offered "Advances on Gold Dust."



Motorists of this day wouldn't get far following the one great road worked out in detail on this map, but sixty-seven years ago, men studied it eagerly and planned their days from ranch to ranch, where provisions and froage were obtainable, as told by the map. It charted the route to the Colorado gold regions for the eager seekers, and so accurately detailed it was that it served both as map and guide book. Nebraska was an odd looking land in 1857, as shown on the left, and modern citizens would be hard pressed to find themselves at home in it. It tells in pictorial form of a Nebraska that had been a territory but three years. Both maps are owned by Oliver Stevenson of Nebraska City.

Advertising As They Go.

H. N. Cornell's Saddlery, Hide, And Fur House carried saddles, harness, tents, wagon bows, wagon covers, shoe leathers. Ashton and Tait had a warehouse on the levee, so that goods could be landed from the steamboats "directly into it—thereby saving drayage." J. B. Boulware advertised that he was the proprietor of the "Nebraska City," a steam ferry boat. "This boat is the best on the Missouri river above St. St. Louis, with capacity for crossing twelve teams at one trip. Fares reasonable, being regulated by law."

Kalkman and Wessels' St. Louis store and "Miners' Outfitting Goods." A. and P. Byram were general freighters to Denver and the gold mines, with equipment to deliver large or small amounts in Denver City or in the mountains.

The other map shows the public surveys of the Territory of Nebraska up to the summer of 1857. It was compiled and drawn in the surveyor general's office from original notes.

Nebraska Properly Surveyed.

Of this effort, the chief clerk wrote on the map as a sort of testimony: "I have examined with much care this Map of Nebraska compiled at intervals by Messrs. Quin, Smith, and Van Zandt of this Office and feel pleasure in testifying to its Correctness. It not only accurately and truhtfully delineates with artistic beauty and nicety of detail all the topographical data found in the oroginal notes up to the present date, but also represents from no less reliable sources, a large amount of other useful information which can not fail to make it highly acceptable to the public."

Several early day counties mentioned on this map are no longer in existence. No modern map bears the names of Izard, Calhoun, Greene, or Jones county, and "Ottoe" has dropped a T in the years. The Omaha reserve is appropriately marked by a peaceful family scene among the Red men, but Ottoe reserve is designated by a sort of "Stag at Eve" effect.

St. John's City, Sergeant Bluffs, Omadi, Jalappa, Buchanan, Monterey, Winnebago village in the southeast part of the state, Mt. Vernon, Golden Gate, Saltville, and Excelsior are a few of the towns on this early map that aren't on a late edition of Nebraska's towns and cities.

Nebraska Flag, First Authorized In 1925, Largely Due To Efforts Of Crete Woman

That Nebraska has a state banner is largely due to the interest and the efforts of Mrs. B. G. Miller of Crete, assisted by J. Lloyd McMaster of Lincoln. Representative McMaster, at the request of Mrs. Miller, introduced the bill into the 1925 legislature, and it was signed by Governor Adam McMullen, April 3, 1925, becoming a law three months later.

The bill passed the house 92 to 4 and the senate 32 to 0, after an amendment concerning a new state seal had been removed. Senator Charles Meachem of Dorchester was responsible for having the bill sent back to the committee, following its initial defeat by the senate, to have the amendment taken off. Had the bill with the amendment been signed, it would have been declared unconstitutional.

To secure a state banner had not been simple. Bills had been presented for fifteen years, but had failed of passage. Mrs. Miller made the first public speech on the subject, "Shall Nebraska Have a State Banner" in January, 1925, before the annual meeting of the Nebraska Genealogical society in Lincoln. Controversies then arose, many people believing the state had its own flag, because of an erroneous picturization of a Nebraska banner in a national magazine. After much comment, Mrs. C. S. Paine of the D. A. R. stated that, officially, Nebraska had no banner.

The original flag committee, appointed by Charles Pool, then secretary of state, was composed of Mrs. Lou Spencer, Lincoln; Mrs. Miller, and Mr. McMaster.

Having no legislative provision for its making, the flag was never manufactured. Mr. McMaster was willing to meet the guaranty of a New York firm, after Mrs. Miller asked him about it in August, 1929. When the flags arrived and were ready for distribution among Nebraska residents, the Community club of Crete, through its members, purchased sufficient flags for the guaranty Mr. McMaster had advanced.

The seal is printed on a soft silk of national blue, 12 by 18 inches in size, and mounted on an ebonized staff with gilded spear point. The hills and the field of the state seal on the banner are in silver. The wheat sheaf, smith and anvil, trees, cabin, boat, train, inner and outer circle, the words, "Equality Before the Law," and "Great Seal of the State of Nebraska" are in gold.

The flag made by Mrs. Miller, and presented to Arbor lodge by the Crete D. A. R. through its regent, Mrs. Earl Hardeman, was one of the first to be made according to the law. Made in the summer of 1925, it floated above the Lincoln hotel during the annual Nebraska homecoming. A scrap book, containing the entire history of the flag, with many mementoes of the tale of the banner, was presented to the state thruogh the Crete society of Children of the American Revolution. The same society also gave the first film showing the state banner to the state. The picture was shown in Crete, February 22, 1926.

Mrs. Miller also made the state flag presented by the Daughters of Founders and Patriots of Nebraska to the national society. The first of the banners for schools was presented by Betty Paine to Prescott school March 1, 1927, the sixtieth anniversary of the entrance of the state into the union. This flag was the work of Mrs. Miller.

Governor McMullen and the Crete C. A. R. presented a large woolen bunting flag, with the seal painted by Mrs. Miller, to Long Beach, Cal., for Tree Planters' day in 1926. The banners, some the work of Mrs. Miller, and others, among them the governor's, one of the first of the manufactured banners, are in the state offices at the capitol.

Widely Varied Health Program Is Planned By Y.W.C.A. For Winter

"A sport for every girl and every girl interested in a sport."

Business girls admit the truth of this slogan of Miss Ruth Pratt, health education director of the Y. W. C. A.

They know that a motor or bus ride to work, with a day at an office desk or a few strolls around the down town streets doesn't constitute exercise. It may be a hard day's labor, but there are a lot of muscles that don't know it has been a big day, and a lot of others, with a few nerves thrown in, that know about sixteen hours work has gone into eight.

Numbers, with an eye to future health, svelte figures, and longevity, attend gymnasium classes at the Y. W. C. A. with faithful regularity. They like the swift marching, limbering exercises, rolling and stretching and pulling they do on the gym floor.

Others can't be bothered. No gym for them. It's too much like more of the same thing.

But, yes, they say "We know we should exercise."

Plan Winter program.

The Y. W. C. A. health program this winter has been planned for all of them. If the girls and women down town don't like one thing, there's some thing else provided.

The organization is planning an intro-business schedule for the winter. Arrangements have been made to enlarge the usual program, and to give as many activities as possible and as many as Lincoln has facilities for.

Of course, there are the gym classes. A wise instructor is putting emphasis on sane and healthful reducing, together with a scientific building-up program.

Gymnasium class work begins Monday, October 21, and continues Monday and Thursday evenings at 7:15 oclock during the year. Individual instruction, a program of gymnastics and individual sports for special cases, is given Tuesday and Friday at 5 o'clock and Monday and Thursday at 2:30 o'clock. Young mothers and matrons who find that a baby or two and housework provide much exercise, but not enough of the right kind, can take gym Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, at 10 o'clock. This is a class in mat work, with stress on flexibility, agility, and hips. The regular classes combine gymnastics, sports, and dancing.

Clogging Popular.

Clogging was a popular feature last year, and classes are to be continued this year. They will be held for beginners at 6:15 o'clock Thursday, for advanced students, Tuesday and Friday at 6:30 o'clock, and for all, Thursday at 8 o'clock.

A course in terpretative dancing will be opened for the first time this year. Old semi-classical music is to form the basis of the course, and, for those who enjoy music, this is one means of studying and appreciating it, by self-expression. The class meets Friday at 7:15 o'clock.

An organized sports class for girls who are interested in sports but who don't know their greatest interest has been planned for once each week. It will include games in season, such as tennis and skating, and archery, bowling, volley ball, basket ball, and horse back riding.

Basket Ball League.

A city basket ball league was organized last year, with women's teams composed of employes of the Lincoln Telephone company, Nebraska Light and Power, Nebraska Buick, Roifsmeyer Candy company, Y. M. C. A., girl employes, and high school teachers. Each entrant passed a rigid physical examination, and is under the care of a competent coach who is more interested in her health than that she wins. The playing time of the round robin tournament, which takes a season to complete, is limited, and no spectators are allowed. The league opens this year November 1, and is planned for all girls, whether or not they have ever played.

This league is organized under the rules of the Woman's division of the National Amateur Athletic federation, which does not believe in commercialized sport and is opposed to large games and intense agitation leading to undue emphasis on the winning team. Although the federation was organized by a group of men, Mrs. Herbert Hoover sponsored the women's division, and Miss Blanche Trilling, head of the department of physical education at the University of Wisconsin, and other leading physical education directors have promoted it.

The federation believes in a program of sports for all, and the protection of teams from exploitation for commercial advertising and the emphasizing of the athletic reputation of directors or coach. It stresses the pleasure of playing, rather than the joy of winning, and is against intensive tournament play, which, it believes, causes overstrain. The league discourages sensational publicity, eliminates all gate receipts, all traveling.

horses, wagons, carts, oxen, men, women, and children in their long march to the dreamland in Utah."

Mr. Stephens feels that the picture conveys drama and tragedy in a marked degree and the animals, the oxen and the horses, and the men and women are so remarkably done by the artist that one can not fail to grasp the effect of the dramatic story that these pictures mean to convey.

In completing his description of the murals, Mr. Stephens says:

"Off to the westward on the same south wall, in the line of direction taken by this caravan, is depicted the end of their dream, the log cabin and the first settlement. There is the cotton wood log house with the ever-present coonskin tacked on the wall, with the trap hanging by its side, and on the south wall by the kitchen door is the typical slab bench with the wash basin on the wall. To the right of the door hangs the wash tub. Off in the field to the left is the first plowman turning the soil."

Haven For Animals.

Parts of the timber acres are no longer impassable, but are open for the pleasure of the family and the guests. Other parts are much as Mr. Stephens found them three years ago, where the little furred animals can hide in the undergrowth and live a life as free as though it were in the unbroken open, with the added idea that they are being preserved as a part of the life of the state. In pioneer years, Nebraska had an extensive wild life, but lack of knowledge, and little thought to the future have taken from its hills and rivers many of the large and small animals that two generations ago abided there in numbers.

In preparing his acres for animals of Nebraska, Mr. Stephens has found a real avocation. But not only has Mr. Stephens taken upon himself the preservation of Nebraska wild life, but he has also become a real believer in Nebraska as a vacation country.

"While we do not live at the 'Cottonwoods' in the winter, we go out for recreation almost every day. It is surprising how many beautiful days we have in Nebraska in winter. It is almost as delightful in winter as in the other seasons.

"About the middle of May, the family moves to the 'Cottonwoods' and we remain there until the end of September or the first of October. When we are not there in winter, the place is in charge of a caretaker in order to care for the animals.

"We are also indulging in the raising of a few domestic animals. At the present time, we are delightfully engaged in the establishment of a purebred herd of Brown Swiss cattle with a great lineage."

LINCOLN TEACHER UPHOLDS TRADITION

Miss Hilda Tillinghast Is Descendant of a Family Which Has Been Devoted To the Teaching of Deaf Persons for Four Generations

If inheritance has its dominating place in our lives, the children in the deaf room of the city schools should have most efficient instruction this year.

Or, if it is environment that pulls the strings, the course of training should be equally satisfactory.

Miss Hilda Tillinghast, teacher in charge of the deaf room, this year located in the Prescott school building, has both inheritance and environment as her aids. To these assistants, she has added a complete course of training.

Miss Tillinghast might have been a typist. She might have been a kindergarten instructor. Or a milliner, a stylist, a writer, a bond saleswoman, a tea room owner, or a personnel worker.

But it isn't probable, since it is true that no person is the sole product of his generation, but, instead, that the acts of long gone ancestors project themselves into the days of those coming long in the future.

A Family Tradition.

For Miss Tillinghast, on the faculty of the Lincoln schools for the first time this year, is the fourth generation of a family of educators of the deaf.

Beginning with Miss Tillinghast's great grandfather, there has been an unbroken succession of these specialized teachers in the family. Not only grandparents, but uncles and aunts have taken up the work, some of them going into new countries and great distances to carry on their work. Their work has been done on this continent and abroad, and the family has had sveen superintendents of institutions for the deaf in its numbers.

Miss Tillinghast's great grandfather, J. B. McGan, pioneered in establishing the first school for the deaf in Canada, and it was largely through his efforts that the provincial government was convinced of the value of education for the deaf.

Four of his daughters took up the work. One taught for nearly half a century in the school her father established. A second, Mrs. Harriet E. Ashcroft, was for twenty-five years superintendent of the McKay School for the Deaf and Blind in Montreal, Can.

Founded Two Schools.

Another daughter went to Mississippi as teacher of the deaf, and lost her life in an epidemic of yellow fever. The fourth married Dr. James Watson, grandfather of Miss Tillinghast, and founder of the Washington State School for the Deaf and Blind, and also of the Idaho State School for Deaf and Blind.

Her other grandfather, David R. Tillinghast, was one of the pioneer educators of the deaf in North Carolina. He served continuously as an instructor in a school for the deaf for nearly fifty years.

A son of Dr. Watson established the first school for the deaf in western Canada at Winnipeg. Miss Tillinghast's father, E. S. Tillinghast, is at present head of the South Dakota School for the Deaf at Sioux Falls. For some thirty years he has been at the head of different state schools for the deaf. Her mother also taught the deaf before her marriage.

An uncle of Miss Tillinghast, Dr. J. A. Tillinghast, was called to Belfast, Ireland, to introduce modern American methods in one of the old established schools for the deaf.

Has Special Training.

Miss Tillinghast received her bachelor of science degree from the University of Missouri, and then took her master's degree at Gallaudet college, Washington, D. C. While there, she had special training in the teaching of the deaf. Last summer, Miss Tillinghast attended a school in Kansas arranged under the auspices of the American Association to Promote Teaching of Speech to the Deaf, when the faculty was composed of noted teachers of the deaf from all parts of the country. Before coming to Lincoln, Miss Tillinghast taught for a time in the South Dakota School for the Deaf.

Miss Tillinghast has about a dozen children in her class, ranging from five-year-old Jimmy, who has only been in the class a month or so, to youngsters in their early 'teens. It takes a very definite knowledge and a deep understanding to train these youngsters, who must hear through their eyes.

The course has very very definite stages, which often take years to accomplish successfully. The child must first learn to read the word off the lips, then to speak, and then to write. After he has learned the words off the lips, he is taught to correlate them with speech, a difficult task, as he has no knowledge of sound.

Learns By Touch.

These children must learn by a sense of touch, and when black-eyed Jimmy first entered the class, his initial instruction was in sense training exercises arranged for that purpose. He must learn to speak by feeling the position the tongue takes in the mouth, and his training must make him acute to the touch sense.

He feels a cube or a square, and, blindfolded, must find the same shape from among a number of varying forms in a basket. He no longer needs the blindfold, as he has learned to shut his eyes for this lesson, which he happily takes as a game. Sometimes he feels a piece of fabric when his eyes are closed, and then must find the same silk or satin or velvet he felt, with his eyes open. At times, the exercise is reversed, and he feels, with eyes closed, a block in the basket, and picks it out, when he looks for it or looks at the fabric, and chooses the right one by touch only.

Jimmy also has had exercises to help him in distinguishing differences in color, size, shape, and form. For one drill, he sort balls of different colors into proper compartments, which develops his muscles and gives him a sense of color. This youngster has learned to do the sorting accurately within a month, while at times it takes others weeks and weeks to do this satisfactorily.

Tongue Gymnastics.

Exercises of imitation follow, in which the small pupil, or the larger one, if he has been without instruction, must learn to imitate the movements of the teacher's tongue, lips, and mouth. This ends in tongue gymnastics, leading toward lip reading and speech.

Beginning with the breath consonants, which require no voice, he is gradually led into the consonants and elements, and later given vowel work. To show Jimmy whether or not he is doing the proper work, he holds a little paper pom pom before him, for f, th, s, which requires much work, and the others, the paper moving with his breath. He is very loath to work without this adjunct to the work. Word instruction will come from this, as wh-at, and, later, when the vowel work has been more stressed, p-a-pa.

Can Read Lips.

Jimmy has had two vowels, in addition to his five consonants. He places his hand on Miss Tillinghast's throat to get the vibration of her voice on her vocal cords, so that he can reproduce the same vibration in his own throat. The youngster is gaining knowledge rapidly, but each lesson must be short, for it is concentrated effort on the part of the pupil, and he tires quickly.

At this time, little Jimmy has learned to read the names of about twenty nouns from Miss Tillinghast's lips. Fish, spoon, apple, car, boat, top, ball, mouth, nose, eyes, and a number of others convey definite meanings to him. He picks the toys out of a basket full of them and points to his own arms or feet. She began with two objects, which are not alike on the lips, as sheep and ball, and showed them to him alternately, saying each clearly. As time went on, she added others, until he now knows a score of words.

When he came, he could not understand any directions, but the mouth has given him much new knowledge. Miss Tillinghast can now say, "Stand up," "Come," "Jump," "Run," "Walk," "Bow," "Turn Around," "Wash Your Face," or hands, and other simple commands, and Jimmy understands.

He is learning now to count, with Miss Tillinghast telling him to pick up a certain number of balls, one, two, three, or four. This is a new lesson, and requires much repetition, but the little boy is learning, and, learning in a mild way to correlate the specific lesson and its words with the more general or irrelated Little Lincoln boys and girls who are enrolled in classes for the deaf at Prescott school receive instruction from a teacher who has had expert training in her work, and whose uncles and cousins and aunts, in addition to other nearer relatives, have been engaged in this work. Miss Hilda Tillinghast has lived in the midst of conversations and discussions of this sort of work all her life, and has an unusually deep knowledge of this sort of instruction.

University Notes

Dr. J. O. Hertzler, chairman of the department of sociology, is collaborating in the preparation of two books this year, "The History of Sociology in America" and the second a biographical, analytical and bibliographical study of the eight leading American sociologists of the older school. The former work is edited by Prof. L. L. Bernard of Washington university, and the latter work by Prof. E. B. Reuter of the University of Iowa. Dr. Hertzler is preparing the section in Professor Reuter's work on Edward Aylsworth Ross, head of the sociology department of the University of Nebraska from 1900-07.

Dr. Julia M. Shipman of the department of geography will address a district meeting of the Parent-Teachers' association south of Hallam Monday night. Dr. Shipman will give a travel talk on Europe.

Dr. John D. Hicks, dean of the college of arts and sciences, will give two lectures at the Missouri state teachers' convention to be held at Maryville the fourth week in October. Dr. Hicks will address the general assembly on "American Frontiers, Past and Present," and will address the history section of the convention at Warrensburg the following day.

A LARGER NEBRASKA CORN CROP.

Rarely has it happened that October 1, estimates of Nebraska's corn crop are materially increased over those of the preceding month. Ordinarily in this state all damage to corn from heat and from drought has occurred during the closing weeks of August, and has been noted and weighed in computing the probable yield on September 1.

Nebraska suffered from the absence of rain, particularly during the last half of August. It was this dry spell which wrote "finis" to the most glorious prospect for a crop in excess of 300,000,000 bushels which this state has ever seen. The acreage was larger and the fields were in magnificent shape. But the damage was not so extensive as had been anticipated. The yield was reduced but owing to many peculiar factors which entered into the last half of August the loss to the crop, fortunately, was not so large as had been feared.

On September 1, A. E. Anderson, the federal crop statistician, reported the probable yield at 192,000,000 bushels, which was less than in 1928, and smaller than the 5-year average. Thirty days later, with the crop ready for the crib, and beyond all possible damage from weather, Mr. Anderson finds Nebraska raised 221,000,000 bushels of corn, representing a gain of approximately 29,000,000 bushels, a larger yield than in 1928 by 7,000,000 bushels, and also in excess of the average for the last five years. With the cash market in most sections of the state hugging 80 cents a bushel for corn, the revised estimates have added at least $20,000,000 to the value of the 1929 Nebraska corn crop.

Wheat yielded 55,441,000 bushels, compared with 69,919,000 bushels in 1928 but the much higher price for which the bulk of the 1929 crop was sold means that in cash returns the farmer received more than he did a year ago. One of the finest oat crops in the state's history was harvested, estimated at 82,544,000 bushels compared with 78,936,000 bushels a year ago. That is an increase of more than 4,000,000 bushels and prices are higher.

Barley, which is becoming an increasingly important grain in Nebraska, yielded 19,264,000 bushels, which is 5,000,000 bushels more than a year ago. Nebraska, second in sugar beet production in the nation, pushed further ahead with an increase of 78,000 tons in production. The total output this year is estimated at 1,093,000 tons, which will give western Nebraska farmers more than a million dollars more than they received for their beets in 1928.

It should be noted that feed crops in the state were never better. Alfalfa, and wild and tame hay produced record-breaking yields, providing an abundance of feed.

The fact is Nebraska agriculture has attained a balance and stability which no other state has. Iowa produces more corn but very little wheat, and comparatively small quantities of other crops harvested abundantly here. Kansas raises more wheat but less than half as much corn and oats as Nebraska. The strength of agriculture here is found in its wide diversification. It is a situation which carries every assurance and confidence for the future progress of the state.

IN THE BLACK REPUBLIC.

Advices from Haiti carry the information that the oppostion is criticising the action of President Borno in decreeing that no legislative elections be held next year, thus throwng the election of a president into the council of state, which is appointed by the president and subject to his control. This means that Borno will be re-elected or that he will name the man who is to succeed to the position of chief executive. Criticism of this program was of course to be expected from the opposition.

Without doubt Borno has the support of United States administrators who have directed the affairs of Haiti since 1916 and who, under terms of the existing treaty, will continue to function until 1936; and that such procedure will be criticised by some people in this country also goes without saying. Such criticism, however, must come from those who are either uninformed or who are too idealistic to be practical.

That the United States in effect seized the government of Haiti there can be no denying. The facts were fully developed during the senatorial inquiry in 1921. But that conditions justified such seizure, and that this government has done more for the people of Haiti during the intervening years than they could have done in centuries, is proven by the record.

When the United States intervened in Haiti that country was in a state of absolute anarchy. Within a period of six and one-half years seven presidents had been inaugurated, each of them supposedly for a period of seven years. One of these was blown up in his palace, one was poisoned and one was dragged from the French consulate, where he had sought asylum, and was literally torn to pieces by the enraged populace. He had foreseen his downfall and had caused the arrest of every prominent man in Port-au-Prince whom he suspected of disaffection. On the night before he himself was slain he caused 172 of these to be shot in cold blood in their cells.

The country was in debt to such an extent that it could borrow no more and was in default in its interest payments. The money received from loans and customs had been stolen and squandered and there was no law save the will of the man who happened to occupy the presidential mansion. There were no highways, no schools and sanitation was unknown. People were suffering for food, for they were afraid to venture forth to produce the little required to keep body and soul together.

Never was there a greater transformation in the world than has taken place in Haiti. Every department is directed by an officer of this government and splendid highways have been built, schools have been opened, hospitals erected, properly equipped and manned, clinics are conducted at stated intervals at remote parts of the country, sanitation is of the highest order and the people are happily cultivating their small farms. Ample and attractive government buildings have been erected and the debt has been reduced to an unbelievable extent. A splendid native constabulary has been organized with American officers, dispersing and disarming the bands of semi-bandits who sold their services to each presidential aspirant who organized an insurrection and who paid them for their services from public funds.

The first government in the western hemisphere was set up on the island of Haiti by the brother of Christopher Columbus, but never until American intervention took place was there one whose objectives were liberty and enlightenment. Haiti is going forward. Borno, an educated and enlightened man, knows how the forward movement can be best sustained and he will fearlessly persevere, regardless of the criticisms of those who are again anxious for the opportunity of exploiting their countrymen.

BUILDING A MUNICIPAL GOLF COURSE.

The problems which arise in connection with the building of a golf course are beyond those uninitiated to the game. Adequate and proper supervision and planning call for the services of men who know something about a course. For this reason the Lincoln City Commission has acted wisely in deciding to create special park and golf commissions to assume the burden of the development of Pioneers park, a magnificent 550-acre tract which became the property of the city through the generosity of a former pioneer citizen.

Interest in golf in Lincoln is growing. The game has become so popular that notwithstanding three private courses, the municipal links established some years ago in Antelope park—a sporty, short course—cannot accommodate the crowds which desire to play. Every Sunday, and on many week days Antelope park is crowded with golfers.

The Pioneers park tract has unlimited possibilities for the creation of a splendid course. It has advantages in topography which none of the private links in Lincoln possess. It has impressive hills and deep cut valleys, when the work of constructing dams has been completed, it will have natural water hazards not found elsewhere. The land is suitable for the construction of one of the finest courses found in this section of the country.

Granting that the commission has taken steps to create a golf committee, which will have charge of the building of the new municipal course, it should exercise the same wisdom in the selection of the members. There are men of recognized business ability who would be glad to contribute their services to such a cause. The commission should draft those who through experience with such problems are in a position to serve the city best.

BY PAST PERFORMANCES.

If past performance is any criterion the impending lobby investigation in Washington will be no milk and water affair. The committee which will conduct it was named by Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska. It includes Senator Walsh of Montana, Senator Borah of Idaho, Senator Caraway of Arkansas, Senator Blaine of Wisconsin and Senator Robinson of Indiana.

The only lame duck in the entire group is Robinson. Walsh needs no introduction anywhere in the United States. It was this talented, energetic and courageous Montanan who fought Teapot Dome out to a successful conclusion. Borah matches him in ability and perseverance. Caraway while not so well known as either man, has the wholesome respect of his colleagues, and is feared greatly by special interests with selfish axes to grind. Blaine belongs to the LaFollette faction in Wisconsin.

When this committee gets to functioning, it is certain American people will find out more how tariff legislation has been drafted than they ever knew before. For years the logrolling practices which have accompanied the drafting of every tariff have smelled to high heaven. It made the work of the lobbyists easy. All they had to do was to commit the representatives of a particular section to a specified schedule. It would go into the bill in exchange for other favored sections. In some instances the rates were written by the interested manufacturers, turned over to their senators, and incorporated as a part of the tariff legislation of America. This is the process by which the consumer has been milked for years, while those who were getting rich were lulling the public to sleep with the old song that the tariff was his salvation.

We do not mean to suggest that America can go on a free trade basis, or that it can materially reduce hundreds of existing tariffs. But they are many where the need for protection has passed, and others where the rates are unduly high.

Before it is finished the investigation of the lobby at the national capitol may provide this nation with the greatest sensation it has had. The work is in the hands of capable men who have revealed special ability to handle the duty entrusted to them.

NOT ALWAYS THE CASE.

Student offices at the University of Illinois have been declared vacant as a result of election difficulties which included possibility of charges of burglary being filed against several students.

The situation is in contrast to that at the University of Nebraska where nearly 2,000 students voted for class presidents and honorary colonel Tuesday, with interest, but without disturbance.

Students commonly receive considerable criticism, not always undeserved. The university here, has, however, been fortunate in the rarity of unfavorable episodes. Student elections a few years ago were commonly said to be handled with questionable tactics. In recent years, control of the elections has been well in hand. The last three years at the university has seen a startling growth in interest in such elections. The number voting has risen from a few hundred to between 1,500 and 2,000.

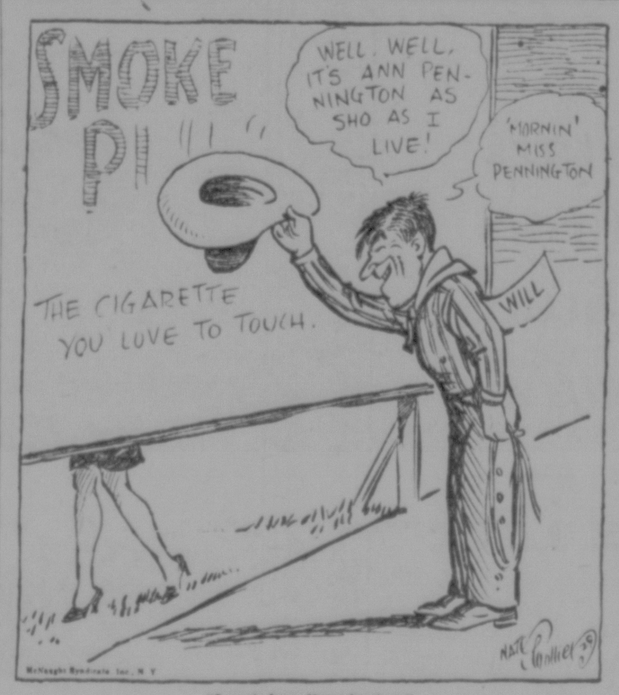
The increase has not been accompanied by violent displays of feeling such as have characterized student contests in many institutions. A few years ago, a few eggs were thrown during a serenade by fraternity campaigners. Outside of that minor occurrence, it would be difficult to find examples of misconduct by students here in handling their affairs.

Although it is sometimes forgotten, college students are sons and daughters of folk from every walk of life. Most of them are attending university for a purpose, however inadequately it may be realized. Their faults, like those of their parents, are few besides their virtues, their interests, their real attempt to fit themselves into a complex life.

THE "HIT AND RUN" DRIVER.

The "hit and run" driver richly deserves the scorn which humanity holds for him. When he is the cause of injury to others, the only decent thing he can do is to make limited amends for the suffering and loss which he is responsible for. There are accidents where the driver of a car is not aware that he has struck someone. But the "hit and run" driver does not belong to this class. He knows he has been instrumental in injuring another. He neglects to stop because he wants to escape responsibility for his act. The drivers license law is a step in the right direction, if properly enforced, towards bringing order to the troublesome traffic problems which confront every community. We need another penalty, however, aimed directly at the "hit and run" driver. A stiff prison sentence would discourage drivers from running away from accidents.

They're Talking in Hollywood.



"I met Ann Pennington."

BY WILL RODGERS.

Well all I know is just what I read in the papers. I got in home a week ago from prowling around in various states visiting relatives and old friends, and what had been going on in Hollywood during my absence. My picture had opened amid no casualties, and I had been practically forgiven for it; wasent bad enough to shoot or good enough to cheer.

Went over to the studio and our general manager showed me the new "Grandeur" screen. That is you cant take an old bed sheet and tack it up on the wall and throw some movies on it. This is a great big thing as broad as a Gettysburg painting that covers the whole of the opening of the theatre. Its about two and a half times the width of the old screen. It has to be taken with a different camera, and it has to be projected with a different projecting machine, and the width of the film is just about twice what the other was.

They say it will speed up the movies as it will take in so much territory that it will do away with the old idea of continually cutting to a "close up." That when a scene is being played and there is a bunch of people that you will have to get over your "emotions" all at once and in the same picture, that they wont cut to each of you in a close up. I sho will be glad of that for I sho do hate those close ups. When those old wrinkles commence coming and the old mane is turning snowy, why we dont want either one —cameras or people to commence to crowd us.

Big Innovation.

This broad screen thing looks like almost as big an innovation as the new talkies were. You just get twice as much to look at as you used too. Then the color thing is coming along fine where they are going to get our natural complexion right in the camera, without artificial coloring after the film is taken. Oh we are just getting so many new things that you almost have to go every night to get em. A theater no more than gets one type of apparatus than it has to start installing another one. They have more workmen in the theatres now than they have audiences. Everybody that can speak above a whisper is out here to have their voice invoiced.

The old town is just a-humming. Broadway, New York, has moved out, spats and dogs. This talking picture craze has got more actors out of New York than Abe's Irish Rose did. They come thinking the screen actor cant talk. Say the screen actor can talk, but nobody ever listened to him before. He has been speaking words in these things for years, but nobody heard him but the crew. You know after all talk is not exactly a new Industry among any Americans. Talk was the best thing we did. And when a chance come along to record it for posterity, (posterity means people two weeks later) why we just snapped at the chance.

Has Profitable Knees.

I was over to the studio today and who do I run onto but little Ann Pennington. I hadent seen her in years since we used to work togeather in the Follies. She has collected more money off her knees than most people have off their heads. My wife always said that Ann was the only woman that had a childs leg. So you see its not only me in the family thats high on Anns underpinning.

Not only actors but writers are all out here. Ben Ames Williams that you all have read after in the Saturday Evening Post so much is here. He wrote the finest story it was ever my privalege to work in. That was one called "Jubilo" where I played a tramp. It was the only story ever made out here where there was no scenario made. We just shot the scenes from the various paragraphs in the story in the Saturday Evening Post. When we took a Scene we just marked it off and went on to the next. I think, and he verified it, that it was the only story ever made that was absolutely filmed as it was written, and here is the big novelty to it, we dident change his main title either. They will film the "Lords Supper" and when it is made figure that that is not a good release title and not catchy enough, so it will be released under the heading, "A Red Hot Meal," or "The Gastronomical Orgy."

Bum Titles.

I passed a theatre down by the ranch the other night and we wanted to go in and had intended too, but what stared us in the face but, something like "Fast Company" or some such idiotic title, and we just drove on. A few days later the children got to talking about a good and funny picture they had seen, a base ball picture, and I got to asking them about it, and it was the one by Ring Lardner, the Elmer The Great Play, based on his famous stories of the Rookies in baseball. Andy Tombs and I had done a sketch in the Follies of 22 that Ring wrote that was the neuclus of this play. Well here this thing called "Fast Company" and featuring some girl was nothing but "Elmer The Great." Now I know that title they had drove out more people than it ever brought in.

So no matter what famous book you have read and want to see in the pictures why you better start going into every theatre you come too. Dont look up at the titles, for "Pationate Pal" may be just what you was looking for as "Romeo and Juliet" or "She Stoops to Conquer" may reach your corner labelled "Baby You Are A Wow." Sometimes you just think there aint enough crazy titles to go around and that when they end that will be the finish of pictures.

But really the whole business is flourishing and weddings were never more at a premium, and divorces permeats the air. High powered roadsters are skitting here and yon. Beach Houses are closed and the sand is covering up the old Bottles. There will be very little to recognize the old place in a few weeks. It and Wall street are two businesses you cant explain.

First Marble Dam

(Popular Science Monthly.)

Close to the historic battlefield at Marathon, where the Greeks defeated the Persians in 490 B. C., American engineers are putting the finishing touches on the first marble-faced dam in the world.

When the Marathon Dam is turned over to the Greek government early in 1930, the city of Athens, for the first time since its foundation in 1259 B. C., will have an adequate water supply.

In performing their contract with the Greek government the American engineers utilized some of the water supply systems which have been in use for centuries. One of these was the Hadrian Aqueduct, named after the illustrious Archon Eponymos Hadrian, who commenced work on it in A. D. 134 during his term as governor of Greece, before he became Roman emperor. It was completed by his adopted son and successor, Antonius Pius, in A. D. 140.

The new dam, which is faced with white marble quarried from Mount Pentelicus, is a solid concrete wall 150 feet wide at the base and fifteen feet wide at the top. It is 900 feet long and rises 165 feet above the river bed and 695 feet above sea level. The structure contains more than six million cubic feet of concrete and masonry, 40,000 tons of Portland cement and more than 10,000 tons of Santorin earth (Pozzulan cement.)

A roadway has been built on top to permit traffic across the valley. The dam captures the waters of the Aradra and Varneya Rivers which formerly flowed into the Euboean Gulf, and forms the artificial Lake of Marathon which, when full, will have an area of more than 25,000,000 square feet. In some places the lake will be more than 150 feet deep.

The American engineers had considerable difficulty introducing American working methods in Greece. At the outset the Greek workmen insisted upon their usual three-hour siesta from noon until three o'clock. After a few months, however, they were persuaded to take off only two hours at noon, and, after a year, converted to the American way of one hour.

Here and There

Andrew Johnson, the Misjudged.

(The Kansas City Star.)

Of all American statesmen, Andrew Johnson was the most unscrupulously misrepresented, the most grievously misunderstood. The man who succeeded Lincoln at the most tragic moment in American history was the victim of the conflicting passions of the time. He coped with hostilities, misconceptions and problems never encountered by any other president. He was traduced and humiliated as no other man in high official place. And while he rarely gave way to depression, he nevertheless was keenly sensitive and once expressed the wish that he and his family "were all blotted out of existence." His suffering was communicated to very few. To his country and the world he bore an attitude of heroic fortitude, the fortitude of a man who goes on fighting for what he believes is right, regardless of the personal element in the combat.

The dispassionate judgment of a later time is bringing justice to Andrew Johnson. One of the latest estimates of this man's character, experiences and service is by Claude G. Bowers, who gives to him an extended chapter in his new book, "The Tragic Era," meaning the era of reconstruction. President Johnson was not without faults. He suffered under certain manifest limitations. He was without inherent powers of leadership. But in view of the deep poverty of his family, the restrictions of his boyhood, his belated education and the fact that all he accomplished was by sheer force of conviction and strength of character and mind, this outstanding figure of the early reconstruction period was a remarkable product of American statesmanship.

Those who are familiar with the historic writings of Mr. Bowers know him to be, perhaps unconsciously, a good deal of a partisan. He addresses himself intensively to his subject. He has employed extensive research to uphold his estimate of Andrew Johnson, and it cannot be said that he is blind to his shortcomings. But it is in his characterization and appraisal of other men and their motives, of the figures in the great drama of which Johnson was the central figure, that the partisanship of the author manifests itself. The men of that drama were not all either heroes or villains. There were unscrupulous men among them. There were misguided men among them. But mostly the injustice to Johnson was due to the human and political elements subjected to the hysteria of the time and the portentous possibilities that it held for the nation.

Andrew Johnson was caught between two mighty forces. His unhappy experience, if not in its exact form, then in substance, was inevitable. Before the war he had been a notable debater in the house and in the senate. He had fathered the homestead law as a measure for the poor man, with whom he always was in profound sympathy. He had been governor of Tennessee. He was by affiliation and sympathy a Jackson democrat. He was not opposed to slavery, much less in favor of emancipation. But throughout his career he was opposed, with all his strength, to disunion. Lincoln appointed him military governor of Tennessee in recognition of his admirable character and exceptional ability and because he desired to name a Southern democrat to this post, one of the most dangerous any man in civil life ever assumed.

It was at the suggestion of Lincoln that Johnson was put on the ticket with him in 1864. He had been nominated by the Union party as a democrat. But because he was on the republican ticket with Lincoln, republican leaders assumed they had party claims on him. The democratic party also claimed him. He was in the unfortunate position where he was expected to please both parties but found it impossible to please either, for his personal convictions conflicted with the policies of both.

When he was called to the presidency certain leaders of the party in power assumed they could use him. The suppressed dissatisfaction with Lincoln's reconstruction policies came into the open. Johnson vacillated long enough to give rise to the assumption that he was in accord with the opponents of Lincoln. When he finally took his stand firmly in the Lincoln program, it was to invoke the hostility of some powerful leaders.

What Mr. Bowers calls the great conspiracy against Johnson was participated in by many men who cannot, in the light of their records and characters, be regarded as villains. No doubt there were some who had ulterior motives, some who traduced the president knowingly and maliciously. But the movement that led to the impeachment was a movement born of the conflicting opinion and blinding passions of the time.

Mr. Bowers may have glorified somewhat this remarkable figure, but the country owes him a debt of appreciation for his research and the abundant data he has collected, even from Johnson's enemies, to disprove some of the charges made against him, and long continued by writers, even some historians. Mr. Bowers convinces us that Johnson was no "traitor to the republican party"; that he never changed his view of the purpose of the war, which he held was for the preservation of the union; that he was not a drunkard; that he was not slovenly in dress. What Johnson really was, in the estimation of Mr. Bowers and many from whom he quotes, makes a fascinating chapter on a period only less tragic than that of the war that preceded it.

Exercise After Fifty.

(The Ohio State Journal.)

Much has been made of the fact that golf is a game for all ages. It is not unusual to see youngsters of tender years on the links and there is the ineffaceable record of Bobby Jone's achievements while he was still a beardless youth. On the other hand, John D. Rockefeller is about as much in the public eye for his daily round of golf at his advanced age as for his other activities.

But a physician who has seen a good deal of men in athletics in recent years sounds a note of warning about too strenuous exercise for men who are past their youth. Golf, he admits readily, is a fine game, but is, like everything else, to be taken in moderation. In the ordinary course of eighteen holes, he points out, a player walks at least four miles, up hill and down, plus the exertion of hitting the ball. Golf is play and recreation, in other words, but it has another side.

The papers reported recently the death in the midst of a polo game of one of the players, a man of 51. Every so often one reads of a death that follows a round of golf, most of them men past the middle of life. There are not many such, to be sure, but there are enough to suggest that there is something to the physician's point of view. Death must come to all men whether they play golf or polo or not, but when a man has climbed the hill of life and can begin to look down on the other side, it is time to keep an eye on himself. He may still feel youthful and have young ideas, but only a physician can tell how much of a strain his heart can stand. If men would pay as much attention to their own physical well-being as they do to the health of their motor cars, more of them would live to a ripe old age.

Borah Had to Make Up.

(The Washington Star.)

Senator Borah's one form of recreation in Washington is to ride. Scarcely a day passes but what he may be seen astride his horse early in the morning jogging through the bridle paths in Rock Creek Park.

Up until a few years ago the senator's favorite mount was a big sorrel named Jester. There was almost a human friendship between man and animal.

Jester was always rewarded at the end of the morning's ride with two lumps of sugar from his master's hand.

One morning in the park Jester became unruly. The senator was forced to make use of his riding crop, an unheard-of thing as far as Jester was concerned.

Back at the stables the horse refused to make peace. Borah's repeated offers of two lumps of sugar were declined. Finally the senator left the stables caught a street car and rode to his office to work.

But he found that he couldn't work. Try as hard as he could, he was unable to concentrate. After an hour or more he closed his desk, put on his hat, and told his secretary that he would be out of the office for a while. He didn't say where he was going.

Later in the morning he returned and plunged into the day's work.

It was not learned until later that he had gone back to the stables, sought out Jester, made peace with him, and given him two lumps of sugar.

Everyday Questions

Answered By DR. S. PARKES CADMAN

(Copyright 1929, New York Tribune.)

Questions from Lincoln Star readers are answered daily by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of the Federated Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

QUESTION.

Cincinnati.

Do you believe that nations can overcome the age-old tendencies for war? I have just returned from Europe, after a prolonged visit there, and while I found a deep desire for peace, many expressed grave doubts about its possibility.

What is your analysis of the world peace problem?

ANSWER.

If you can get hold of it, read Prof. Gilbert Murray's lectures entitled "The Ordeal of This Generation." They deserve the careful study of all reflective minds, and should convince men and women everywhere of their personal responsibility for the safety and strength of our common civilization.

The spiritual conflict behind actual physical violence is basically one of loyalties and moral preferences. Consequently, we cannot secure stability, harmony and peace unless we give ourselves unreservedly to a humanistic nationalism and a fearless application of the doctrine of live and let live, interpreted by higher standards of international fellowship than those formerly accepted.

Until this is done nothing is done for that peace which all save a besotted minority earnestly desire, and of which many doubt the possibility. We should not forget that war teaches men lessons of self-abnegation, discipline, co-operation and devotion which will have to be inculcated by saner impulses and examples than the spirit of war can supply. Those who love peace must be creative and not simply denunciatory.

This, as I see it, constitutes the difference between effective and non-effective efforts for permanent international peace. One thing is clear: Civilization cannot be reconstructed unless war is abolished, and in this respect the Kellogg pact is a noble instrument. Yet it has reservations which leave every country free to determine its defensive requirements.

Great Britain and America ought not to yield that determination to military experts. This is being done too largely because the former country is concerned for her empire and the latter country for her unparalleld wealth. Again we are driven back upon the necessity of sound public sentiment. It has to be cultivated on an intensive scale and in the teeth of a bitter and at times an unscrupulous opposition. Nevertheless, progress is being made and if we maintain what we have gained and use it as a basis for further advance, world peace will become more and more feasible.

QUESTION.

Washington, D. C.

I have noticed sometimes with amusement, but more often with resentment, that various admirals and generals show considerable bad temper in discussing the question of preparedness. It would appear that their discipline as soldiers is unequal to restraining their public utterances on this matter. I personally am not a pacifist, but no purpose is served by these officers classifying large groups of our citizens with reds and anarchists because those citizens happen to differ with them regarding preparedness.

How do you, as an advocate of peace, feel about this matter?

ANSWER.

Not all military men act in this objectionable way or try to blink the argument by flooring the man. It is but fair to say that the majority of them are not only officers but gentlemen. You also have to consider that despite strenuous efforts to magnify its importance and dignity, the prestige attached to the military profession has rapidly declined in the past decade. War has been found out and multitudes concur with President Harding's declaration: "It must never happen again." It is always a trying experience for those who have been accustomed to receive the adulation of the state to find their calling under fire.

The nations which formerly exalted physical violence are compelled to apologize for it as a form of madness. Its guilt is a felt reproach which contending powers endeavor to place on anything and anybody but themselves. The increasing influence of feminism is a prime factor in this reversion of homage. Careful inquiry shows that the mother, not the soldier, is the protector and guardian of the race. The one always creates, the other too frequently merely destroys. The one instinctively antagonizes the other because she sees the fruit of her womb scattered at the grave's mouth by war. Read the late O. A. Studdest Kennedy's book, "The Warrior, the Woman and the Christ," for an elucidation of this idea.

The unlicensed speech of avowed militarists injures the cause they advocate. The United States will not heed advices based on the example of imperial Rome. Americans are learning a wiser, better patriotism than that which relied on the sword. The confusion of pacifists which reds and anarchists, when willfully made, is a species of abuse which chokes itself in its falsify. When made in ignorance it is a sorry reflection on the education of the speaker.

That Crookless Squash

(The Christian Science Monitor.)

The ungainly camel, with its curving neck and general effect of a shaggy mountain taking a morning walk, has long been an object of curious interest, but no less than its cousin of the vegetable kingdom, the summer squash.

Many gardeners have studied the topography of this oddity, and wondered how it developed all its humps and furrows. As a household delicacy the squash has its merits, but as an object of beauty it is nothing less than a comic valentine. It is therefore good news to learn that the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment station has succeeded in removing the crook from the vegetable's neck and that henceforth it will look like a fine yellow cucumber. Now for the moral of the tale.

The ordinary garden variety orator likewise needs some horticultural attention. Have you ever watched him rise at a meeting, adjust his chin, and then blithely announce that "he did not come to make a speech," when all the time he is fairly bubbling over with observations?

And have you also noticed how extra words and phrases sprinkle the conversation of the average human being? The crux should now be taken out of the situation, the dawn out of a new era, the public out of an auction, and opinion out of consensus. Ready talkers who interlard casual remarks with "My dear," "Now listen," "You see," "If you know what I mean," should carefully heed the lesson presented by the remodeled squash. To quote a Gilbert-Sullivan refrain, many old speech favorites "never would be missed."

First of all, farsighted reformers will probably feel impelled to take the squeak out of the motor car, the static out of the radio, the hump out of the road, and the starch out of a newly laundered soft collar. After that, the sky is the limit. Thus will the squash, minus its crook, prove its right to enduring fame.

HEBRON NOTES

The new members of the faculty this year are found in the science and normal training positions. Anton Hofstadt, a high school principal and school superitnendent, has charge of science studies in college and the high school departments. Mrs. Lydia Peterson of Sioux Falls, So. Dak., coming to Hebron with teaching experience of a number of years, lately at Sioux Falls college, is a normal training teacher of high merit. Other members of the faculty spent the summer in graduate study. Prof. Young and Prof. Jargo finished their work for master's degrees, the former at the University of Nebraska and the latter at the University of Wisconsin.

Many improvements have been made in the school plant during the summer. Interior cleaning and painting, as well as renovation are some of the important changes noticed. Despite the drouth of the past months, the lawn of the school is in excellent condition. Prof. Paysen has made a number of changes in the large organ. A new keyboard has been installed, and notches have been cut into the front walls on either side of the auditorium to permit the audience to enjoy the great organ. He is also engaged in testing the acoustic properties in order to secure the best results.

PIRATES AHOY! - - By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

THE PIRATE TREASURE OF TRINIDAD.

There is pirate gold buried on the Island of Trinidad, off the coast of Brazil. In case you should start out to seek this treasure, be careful that you do not confuse this Trinidad with the well-known Trinidad of the Leeward group, from which the asphalt supply of the world comes. The asphalt Trinidad is a British possession, well known in commerce, and often visited by tourists. The treasure Trinidad is a desert islet, 680 nautical miles from Bahia, Brazil, and there would be some dispute about the ownership of it if it were worth disputing about.

This Trinidad is peculiar among islands. Perhaps its very peculiarity and its striking appearance caused it to be chosen as the place of depost for the pirate gold. It is an island that, once seen, is never forgotten.

It is of volcanic formation. It is uninhabited. Its coasts are all precipitous and rocky. Volcanic disturbances denude the island of forest every thirty or forty years, and sometimes oftener. The strange, picturesque cliffs and mountains are composed of volcanic ash and rocks, loosely piled together, and they are constantly changing contour. This is the outstanding physical characteristic of the terrain of Trinidad. The landscape is unstable. The mountains are likely to crumble under you as you climb their sides, and precipitate you into a valley with thousands of tons of loose soil and rocks on top of you. Gigantic landslides are of almost daily occurrence.

When you hunt treasure on Trinidad, you must face the land crabs, too. The shores are literally alive with millions of these loathsome creatures. They are the largest crabs to be found anywhere, and they do not know enough to be afraid of man. They have not associated with man enough to realize that he is dangerous. They stand up on their hind legs, roll their frightened eyes at you, and wave their terrible pincers. They walk right up on you, like monsters in a nightmare, and nip at your legs. If you lie down to sleep, these horrible land crabs swarm upon you, nip your ears and nose, and try to eat you alive. Nowhere in the South Atlantic will you find such fearsome crabs as on the treasure island of Trinidad. They are proper guardians for a pirate's treasure.

There are countless millions of objectionable scavenger birds that nest in the rocks of Trinidad. These birds also are unafraid of men, and you cannot climb the cliffs without stepping upon hundreds of their nests. The dirty creatures rise screaming from their disturbed nests and claw at you, trying to peck out your eyes. You can kill them with a stick, as you kill the land crabs, but what's the use? You can't kill a million of them in a day.

There are two separate stories of two distinct treasures on the Island of Trinidad. The first is a hazy one, and depends upon tradition that seems true, but lacks definiteness. Dampier or one of Dampier's captains is suposed to have deposited treasure on this island in an effort to cheat the majority of Dampier's men out of their share in the loot from the capture of a certain galleon. The Spaniard was taken by one of Dampier's vessels, unknown to the others. The captain of the freebooter ship, whether Dampier himself, as some say, or one of his subordinate captains, as others would have it, made a bargain with his men. They would bury their treasure here on this desert island, and note the exact bearings. They would say nothing to the others. Then, when and if a favorable opportunity should arise, they would all come back, dig up the treasure, and divide it among themselves, without the necessity for sharing it with the other members of the expedition. This course would render each man on the one ship rich, for the treasure was a mighty one. But if the loot were to be divided among all the pirates of Dampier's expedition, there would be but a little for each man.

The story has it that the treasure was duly buried, but never disinterred. Perhaps this ship was one that was lost from the expedition forever in a storm. Perhaps, if it was Dampier's own ship, there never occurred an opportunity for returning to the island and digging up the gold without giving away the secret of the attempt to cheat the majority of their share of the loot.

That's the story, briefly, of one of the treasures, said to amount to about ten million dollars worth of gold, on Trinidad.

The other story is more circumstantial, and it is upon its details that most of the treasure-hunters of Trinidad have based their faith.

A certain band of pirates looted a Spanish fleet in 1821, in a battle off the coast of Brazil. This is authentic history. The revolutionists in Peru had just succeeded in overcoming the Spanish power, at least for the time being. This was during the war of independence in Peru. The Spaniards, leaving Peru, took as much of the treasure of the voyage from China to Bombay. On the verge of the unknown country, the tough salt called Captain Painter to him, asked him to close the door, and then and there revealed to him the secret of the treasure of Trinidad. This, in brief, was John Pirate's story.

He had been a real pirate, and in 1821 had sailed with a shipload of cutthroats in South Atlantic waters. They had captured some Spanish galleons that were bearing away from Lima an immense treasure. He was particularly impressed, even at the hour of death, with the splendor of the immense golden candlesticks that he himself had helped to carry aboard the pirate vessel after the battle.

He was the only survivor, all the other pirates of this expedition having been hanged at Havana.

He directed Captain Painter to get a certain parcel from John Pirate's sea chest, and bring it to the bedside. Captain Painter did so, and unrolled, at the dying man's direction, a canvas map and plan of Trinidad, with landmarks showing where the gold was buried.

The map indicated a mountain called Sugarloaf, and a cross marked the spot, just under the foot of this mountain, facing a certain narrow bay, where the treasure lay. The dying pirate gave the captain certain verbal instructions regarding the dangerous surg, and how to get through it with a boat.

"It's a terrible island," said John Pirate, "and it's easy to lose your boat in the surf. But if you can make land, it ought to be easy to find the treasure with this map. You've been decent to me, captain," faltered the dying man, "and I want you to have them candlesticks. They'd look awful pretty in your cabin ashore."

And so the old pirate died, leaving the map and the secret in the hands of his friend.

Now, this sounds like typical boy's fiction, doesn't it? Well, one reason why the truth so often sounds like fiction is that fiction that has a universal appeal generally is founded upon the truth, or follows the lines of some true story.

Many expeditions have gone out to Trinidad to search for that pirated treasure, on the strength of the story told by John Pirate and the canvas map he gave to his benefactor. But those who have borne the expense and the labors of those expeditions have not been satisfied with the romantic story of the dying pirate by itself. They have investigated the archives of Cuba and found records of the hanging of a large crew of pirates about the date indicated in the story. They have uncovered in detail the history of the hiding of an immense treasure in the principal fort at Lima, during the revolution against Spain, and the shipping of that treasure aboard Spanish galleons bound for Spain. They have found that there is no record of the arrival of those treasure ships at any European port.

Further, the expeditions have found the bay indicated in the pirate's map, and have found evidence ashore that seems to indicate that the story was not fabricated merely to entertain the captain while he watched over the dying pirate.

Captain Painter was unable to stop at Trinidad on his voyage back from India to China, because he was handicapped by a bad crew and some personal injuries. When he got back to England he told his story to his friends, so that it became a well-known tale up and down the River Tyne. He finally got a Newcastle shipping firm interested to the extent of getting permission for one of that company's vessels to stop at the island on its next trip and put ashore the son of Captain Painter, to make investigations.

Young Painter swam ashore at Trinidad from a boat which went as near as the surf would permit. He passed the night on the island, and nearly went crazy, fighting the ferocious multitudes of land crabs that tried to eat him alive. He was taken off next morning more dead than alive, by means of a line thrown to him from the ship's long boat. He reported that he had found the place at the foot of the Sugarloaf mountain, indicated by the pirate's map. But, he said, a landslip had covered the treasure trove with thousands of tons of loose rocks and red soil.

The young man refused to spend another night on the island alone, even if he were to be given the golden candlesticks of Lima for his wedding present. The captain of the merchantman thought his first duty lay in other directions, and sailed back to England.

This was the first recorded attempt to learn something definite about the treasure of Trinidad. I shall tell you about some of the later expeditions, and what they have and have not accomplished, up to date.

BAER FACTS IN HOLLYWOOD

BY ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

BUGS BAER

A man with a nose like mine is naturally nervous about his income tax and other evasions. I have one of those large, red snoozles with a bulbous annex on the end that makes it look like a firemen's boot.

I am just as sensitive about my beezer as Cyrano de Bergerac was about his. Cyrano killed thirty nasal critics in fair and oblong duels. All these birds had done was to manufacture wise cracks about Cyrano's beak.

I am just as vindictive and retaliatory on this subject as Cyrano. Unfortunately, I have never been able to kill a detractor in a duel because my nose prevents me from getting that close to him.

The only good feature about this bad feature is, that with a nose like mine, you will never starve to death so long as there are ants on the ground.

So, when I saw a sinister tourist looking at me in the lobby of the Roosevelt hotel in Hollywood last summer I knew there was something rotten in a country much nearer than Denmark.

He was gazing on my dignified bugle with the eye of a collector of rare and otherwise curios. That nose is the only thing I inherited from my father. It is a large estate.

Since then I have improved the property, a drink at a time.

After circling me three times like a homing pigeon, the stranger stepped in and grasped my hand and endorsed me with congratulatory calisthenics.

I knew immediately that he wanted me to make a blindfold test for a new kind of roach poison.

After he had spoken about an hour in perfect broken English, I realized that he was glad to see me but that he barbored hamburgering intentions against my nose.

He was a facial surgeon. Which is a combination of dermatologist, chiropractist and scientific mayhem. With one poke of the knife he promised to make me more beautiful than a lily in an ex-gangster's hand.

To prove it he opened a portfolio of blue-prints. They were portraits of people who looked as if they had escaped from bottles in museums.

"Look at this," he said. "That's what I did for Jack Dempsey. Ain't he handsome? Do you remember him?"

All I remembered about Dempsey was that he hasn't won a fight since he had his nose fixed.

"Here's one of Harry Richman. What do you think of that?"

I told him that Richman used to sing better through his old nose.

His eyes glistened like berries in a pie as he pulled out the plans and specifications for the famous operation on Georges Carpentier, pronounced Dear Kiss.

"There," he said, "That's my best job. I took a piece of cartilage out of George's ear and sewed it to his nose. His nose is now as straight as a frozen snake. I can do the same for you."

"Mister," I told him, "My nose has been in the family for forty-three years. We have been man and boy together. We have smelled—etc.

Woodman, spare that, etc.

"In youth, it sheltered me, and I'll protect it now."

The nose architect folded up his samples. He said:

"Some juggled wine, a loafer bred, and thou."

He said he was quoting Omar, the Tent Maker. It sounded more like Ring Lardner, the Parachute Jumper.

"By the way, Mister," I asked him, "How come you want to operate on my nose, when you ain't so beautiful, yourself. Why don't you do something for your own benefit? Did you ever hear that time stained expression, 'Physician, heal thyself'?"

"I ain't in the pictures," he said in selfish-defense. "You are. You got to be handsome like Rudy Vallee."

"Say," I told him, "I've piped that beezer of Rudy Vallee's. And it ain't no vest button. Before you take the detour out of my fright-of-way, why don't you knock a couple of fish cakes off Rudy's nose?"

"Rudy don't need no operation. He sings through a megaphone."

"Well, if you made his nose smaller, he could sing through two megaphones."

The last picture he showed me was the blue-prints on Lew Brice. Lew had a couple of sirloins removed from his snoozle. And the cats followed him around for three weeks hoping for another operation.

If Rudy Vallee can sing through a megaphone, I can jump into a barrel and chortle through the bunghole.

With that, the chagrined nose sniper pulled out a knife and made a sideswipe at my beezer. I ain't no Heidelberg student but I did learn to defend myself in a cafeteria.

By the time I finished with that bird, I looked like John after Salome had him on the platter.

We tussled all around the lobby of the Roosevelt hotel in Hollywood. And we would have been murdering each other yet, if the house detective hadn't stopped the fight because we didn't have any baggage.

McCook Junior Notes

The first quarter ended this week at McCook Junior college. Examinations are over and the students are waiting anxiously for their grades.

McCook Junior college students hoped to unearth more prehistoric bones at Oak canyon near Trenton, Neb. Saturday. They went back to finish digging out some very interesting-looking bones which are buried in a cliff. There is also a petrified turtle which they are anxious to excavate. On a former trip to this canyon they were unable to get these specimens on account of a rain.

Hebron Notes

The annual reception for new students and new members of the faculty was held a week ago Friday. The program was a farcical review of the annual registration day, and the important members of the administration were impersonated. Games were played and sumptuous refreshments were served.

Prof. Paysen of the department of music has arranged a very interesting lyceum course for the fall and winter months. A number of these programs have been definitely booked. The famous Hilger sisters will appear sometime in October, Mr. Gran, a blind reader of national reputation in November. Wilbur Chenoweth, well-known Lincoln organist and musician has promised to appear sometime during the fall. In addition, Prof. Paysen has organized a choir to appear at the regular church services at least every other week for the present time. It is expected that vestments will be secured. All renditions of the organization will be a Capella.

The annual Thayer county teacher's institute at the Presbyterian church Friday and Saturday drew many representatives and enrollments from the educaiton and normal training departments. Dean McProud of Wesleyan, who was here last year was again present. Prof. Paysen of Hebron college led in community singing.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—If you'll pardon this "swell elegant" paper, I shall try to pen you a few lines. I have been thinking today, it is simply ages since I've seen or heard anything of Anna Q. Nilsson. How come? I thought she was such a standby. If she is through, her popularity certainly lasted longer than falls to the lot of most of the stars.

Could you tell me something about voice doubling? I've heard it can't be done successfully. Have also heard that a double sang for Laura La Plante in "Show Boat." The girl in "The Pagan" had such a lovely voice and I've been wondering if it was doubled. I'd never seen her before, although I believe her name is Dorothy Janis. I think she is sweet.

La Plante certainly surprised me in "Show Boat." Didn't know she had such ability, talent, or what have you.

Having been out of town part of the time, I missed some of the real good pictures—for instance "Cocoanuts." Saw "Coquette" and think there was entirely too much hysterics and weeping in it. I fear Mary Pickford is about through, too.

It certainly is too bad that Emil Jannings had to leave, but then I guess it's all in the game.

Is Gilbert Roland doing anything but make love to Norma Talmadge?

I think Greta Garbo must surely be true blue not to have made any fuss over John Gilbert's sudden marriage. Wonder how long it will last?

You must be tired of my raving, so here's looking at you.

JO, Billings, Mont.

The paper is a minor element. We are always pleased when you "take your pen in hand" to write to us.

Anna isn't through, unless the Fates are against her in the future as they seem to have been in the past. She was just starting work on a picture, when she was thrown from a horse and injured so that she has not been able to work for several months. We will see her again as soon as a suitable production comes along that will do justice to her talent. Miss Nilsson is an able actress, with years of experience on the stage and screen.

Voice doubling seems to be going on fairly successfully all the time. Perhaps in the future when the talkies are more nearly perfected and the players have had time to get a few vocal lessons, voice doubling will not be necessary, but just at present it is as imperative for a star who cannot sing to have a double, as it is for a star doing hazardous stunts. In some cases the doubling is so effective that it cannot be detected, but in other instances the players lips do not move in accord with the lines that are spoken, and it is obvious to the audience that a double is used.

If you happened to see Richard Barthelmess in "Weary River," you saw one of the best examples of doubling. You could scarcely believe that Mr. Barthelmess was not singing and playing, so carefully were the words synchronized with the action. Laura La Plante had a double in "Show Boat," but Laura had to learn to go through the motions of strumming the banjo correctly. I doubt if Dorothy Janis' voice was doubled in "The Pagan." She was merely the leading lady, and had it been necessary to double her voice, a girl could have been found who would have filled the bill as well as Dorothy.

Dorothy, by the way, is new in pictures, but she's climbing rapidly. She's under five feet in height and hails from Texas. You will see her, also, as "Chita" in "Lummox."

Mary Pickford and Doug Fairbanks are working to-gather on "The Taming of the Shrew." I can hardly picture Mary as a convincing "shrew," but she has a wise head on her shoulders and she must feel that it will be to her advantage or she would never have undertaken it. I think the dramatic scenes were considerably overdone in "Coquette," and yet if we could think of Mary as a new player, and forge the Pickford personality, I am sure we would give her credit for being an unusually talented artist with an exceptionally good recording voice. It is difficult for Mary's fans to see her in anything but a little girl type. I happened to arrive late during the showing of "Coquette," so lost much of the emotional end of the picture.

Mr. Roland is also playing opposite Norma in her late release.

Let us hope the Gilbert marriage will be a success. Perhaps Greta didn't really want John after all.

Dear Movie Editor — We have never written to you before, but we want to fill up a little space with questions, and hope we will see the answers in print soon.

First of all, what has happened to Gilbert Roland? If he is still in the movies, what are his latest releases?

Would you please give us the cast of "The Desert Song"?

We understand that many movie stars have had reputations. Could you tell us some who are esteemed more highly than others?

Rudy Vallee has gone to Hollywood. Do you happen to know when one of his pictures will be released? He is supposed to be going into the talkies. Please give his height, weight, color of eyes and hair and age?

How do you pronounce Nils Asther's last name? What is his latest and next picture? Please describe him and give his age.

What are the ages of Ramon Novarro, Joan Crawford, Billie Dove, Greta Garbo, Al Jolson, Ruth Chatterton and Corinne Griffith?

Would you please give the height, age, weight and color of hair and eyes of Victor Varconi?

Who played the part of Greville in "The Divine Lady?" Does Corinne Griffith really sing well?

We have exhausted our supply of questions for this time. Regardless of our signature, we are girls. MUTT and JEFF, Milford, Neb.

Gilbert is getting an unusual amount of attention today. He has just completed a picture opposite Norma Talmadge. It was made under the working title, "Tin Pan Alley." Most of Gilbert's late pictures are with Miss Talmadge.

The cast for "The Desert Song" is: "The Red Shadow," John Boles; "Margot," Carlotta King; "Susan," Louise Fazenda; "Benny Kid," Johnny Arthur; "General Birbeau;" Edward Martindel; "Pasha," Jack Pratt; "Sid El Kar," Robert E. Guzman; "Hasse," Otto Hoffman; "Clementina," Marie Wells; 'Capt. Fontaine," John Miljan; "Rebel," Del Elliott; "Azuri," Myrna Loy.

Movie stars are no worse in general than ordinary citizens. We just hear more about their escapades because they are more in the limelight than Jane Smith or Jack Jones. There are a great many players who live reputable lives, such as Conrad Nagel, Mary and Doug, The Meighans, the Morenos, Buddy Rogers, Mary Brian, Esther Ralston and her husband, the Richard Arlens, George Lewises, and so on down the line. I have only named the few that came to my mind immediately, but the list would be too long to run if I named them all.

Yes, Rudy is in Hollywood. That young blone Yale graduate has certainly made a hit. He is in the early twenties, and close to six feet in height. Good looking, and draws a salary of $8,000 a week for his popularity. Rudy will be seen soon in the R. K. O. feature, "The Vagabond Lover."

You forget there's an "H" in Nils last name, and make the "A" short so it is pronounced as "Aster." Mr. Asther is seen with Greta Garbo in "The Single Standard," and will make his next appearance in "The Bugle Sounds." He is six feet tall and weighs 165. His eyes are hazel, and his hair is brown and wavy. Mr. Asther is twenty-seven. Novarro was born in 1899. Joan Crawford is twenty-three and Billie Dove admits she's twenty-six. Greta Garbo was born in 1906, and Al Jolson is forty-two. Miss Chatterton is in the early twenties, and Corinne Griffith is thirty-one.

Mr. Varconi was born in 1890 with very dark hair and eyes as would be expected of a Hungarian. Victor is six feet tall and weighs 170. You might be interested in knowing that there is also a Mrs. Varconi.

Ian Keith portrayed "Greville" in "The Divine Lady" with Miss Griffith. Miss Griffith had a double for the singing scenes in the pictures

Dear Movie Editor—Here I am again with more questions.

Could you please tell me who played with Lilian Gish in "Annie Laurie." Also the man who played with Corrinne Griffith in "Three Hours."

Did Barry Norton play in "Finders Keepers?"

Who played the part of "Rose" in "Two Men and a Maid?"

Is William Collier, jr., married?

Now one more, please. I would like the cast of "The Country Doctor." Thank you very much. Just GOLDIE, Gilead, Nebr.

Glad to have you with us again.

Norman Kerry played opposite Miss Gish in "Annie Laurie," but I do not have the cast for "Three Hours."

Barry Norton was not in "Finders Keepers." John Harron carried the featured male role in that picture.

Alma Bennett was the heroine of "Two Men and a Maid."

Here is the cast for "The Country Doctor:" 'Amos Rinker,' Rudolph Schildkraut; 'Sard Jones,' Junior Coghlan, 'Ira Harding,' Sam De Grasse; 'Opal Jones,' Virginia Bradford, 'Myra Jones,' Gladys Brockwell; 'Joe Harding,' Frank Marion, 'Abbie Harding,' Jane Keckley; 'Sidney Fall," Louis Natheaux; 'Redor Bump,' Ethel Wales.

Dear Movie Editor—Here are some questions I would like you to answer.

What is the date that Nancy Carroll, Buddy Rogers and Colleen Moore were born? Is Buddy married? Do you know what Nancy's daughter's name is and how old is she?

What is Colleen Moore', Marie Prevost and Douglas MacLean's address?

Why does everyone like Clara Bow so well? I like Nancy Carroll much better.

I do not like Charles King, Maurice Chevalier, Jack Oakie, Harry Green, Bessie Love, Clara Bow or Norma Shearer.

I didn't like "Broadway Melody," but I sure did "Abie's Irish Rose" and "Close Harmony". I went to "Abie's Irish Rose" twice and to "Close Harmony" four times.

Buddy Rogers and Nancy Carroll are sure my favorite stars. Others are Colleen Moore, Marie Prevost, Anita Page and Mary Brian.

Will you give me the cast for "The Pagan," "The Glad Rag Doll" and "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney?" Who was the man who came up to Norma Shearer's room, the one she threw the glass of wine on in "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney?

Can pictures of Rudolph Valentino still be obtained, if so, where?

Could you tell me who the young lady was who played opposite Tom Mix several years ago in "Ranch 101?"

I saw Buddy Roosevelt play in "Cyclone Buddy." What is his address?

Thanking you for youf trouble, I am MARY JANE, Fairbury, Neb.

The pleasure is all mine.

Nancy was born in 1907, and Charles is two years older. Colleen Moore was born in 1901, so she's getting a little past the flapper stage.

Mr. Rogers is single.

Nancy's youngster must be around three, but I neglected to keep her name in mind. Rather difficult to keep a record of the offsprings of the stars, since they are usually kept in the background.

Address Colleen at the First National Studio, Burbank, Calif. You will reach Douglas at Beverly Hills, Calif., and Miss Prevost at the Pathe Studios, Culver City, Calif.

Your enthusiasm over "Abie's Irish Rose" and "Close Harmony" is easily explained when you announce that Buddy and Nancy are your favorites. It's the players and not the pictures that appeal to you. You must have enjoyed "Close Harmony" immensely to be able to sit through it four times.

The cast for "The Pagan" is: "Henry Shoesmith, jr.;" Ramon Novarro; "Madge," Renee Adoree; "Tito," Dorothy Janis; "Joranson," Donald Crisp.

"The Glad Rag Doll" was composed of: "Annabel Lea," Dolores Costello; "John Fairchild," Ralph Graves; "Bertha Fairchild," Audrey Ferris; "Nathan Fairchild," Albert Gran; "Aunt Fairchild," Maude Turner Gordon; "Admiral, Tom Ricketts; "Sam Underlane," Claude Gillingwater; "Jimmy Fairchild," Arthur Rankin; "Miss Peabody," Sale Fuller; "Butler," Douglas Gerrard; "Barry," Andre Beranger; "Press Agent," Lee Moran; "Manager Foley," Tom Kennedy; 'Hannah," Louise Beaver; "Chauffeur," Stanley Taylor.

Here is the cast for "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," and it will enable you to pick out your own man: "Mrs. Cheyney," Norma Shearer; "Lord Arthur Dilling," Basil Rathbone; "Charles," George Barraud; "Lord Elton," Herbert Bunston; "Lady Maria, "Hedda Hopper; "Joan" Moon Carroll; "Mrs. Wynton," Madeline Seymour; "Willie's Wynton," Cyril Charwick; "George, George K. Arthur; "William," Finch Smiles; "Mrs. Webley," Maude Turner.

Write the United Artists Studio, 7200 Santa Monica Blvd., Hollywood, Calif., for pictures of Rudy. I have no cast for "Ranch 101."

Address Buddy at the Universal studio, Universal City, Calif.

Dear Movie Editor—Here's another argument for you to settle. Is Antonio Moreno Spanish, French, Italian or Mexican? I say he is an Italian, because that's an Italian name, but some of my friends differ with me and have him everything from a Mexican to a Frenchman.

Myrna Loy is Chinese, isn't she? She is very attractive, even if she is a foreigner. She must have some white blood in her.

How many times has Conrad Nagel been married and what were his wives names?

Was Viola Dana married before she married Lefty Flynn, and if so, to whom? Is Eugene O'Brien married and if so to whom? I wish he would play with Norma Talmadge again. I always liked them together. He's a brother of George O'Brien, isn't he?

I think Billie Dove is the most beautiful woman I have ever seen either on the screen or off it. What is her next picture and who plays opposite her? Is she married and

CHENOWETH STUDIES.

Miss Cornelia Gant, senior in the University of Nebraska school of fine arts, will appear in her graduate organ recital Tuesday evening, November 5, at the First Baptist.

Mr. Chenoweth, chairman of the committee for the selection of the new organ for the First Plymouth Congregational church, leaves today for a few days in Chicago to examine recent organ installations there.

Miss Lucille Ambrose is first pianist for the dance drama class under Miss Beatrice Richardson of the University of Nebraska.

Miss Josephine Waddell, Beatrice, was one of the accompanists for the Atwater-Kent contest in Omaha last Sunday night.

Mrs. Joe Seacrest is preparing an organ program for presentation before the Thursday Morning Musical Review later this season.

Mr. Chenoweth has received five new Ampico recordings which he made in New York last April. Four are recordings of ten famous Tschaikowsky melodies and the fifth is his own composition, "March Triumphant."

Mrs. Cecil Lee and Miss Hazel Voortman of Beatrice were soloists recently at an open meeting of the Cosgrove club of Beatrice. Mrs. Lee is president of the club this year.

DE VILMAR STUDIO NOTES.

Burkett, 1944 B street, at 2:30 o'clock, with Mrs. Rolla Van Kirk, Mrs. Maybelle Jackson, Mrs. Doris Cole Clapp, and Mrs. John Rosborough as hostesses. The program season of the Matinee Musicale opens Monday, October 21, with an artist recital by Hilda Burke, dramatic soprano, at 3 o'clock at the Temple theater. Young, attractive, with a warm, resonant, and eloquent soprano voice, she was hailed by critics as one of the most promising of that slowly enlarging group of American-born artists.

Educated in the schools of Baltimore, her home city, Miss Burke was near the close of her high school days before she seriously considered a vocal career. She has been called the "Prize-Winning Soprano," as she was awarded so many coveted prizes between 1924 and four years later, when she joined the Chicago Civic Opera company.

During 1927-28, Miss Burke appeared in a number of major cities in concert, and in four performances of the Philadelphia Civic Opera company. She also won the Juilliard Foundation prize, and one of a year's opera study in Dresden. Instead of accepting the foreign training, she became a member of the Chicago company, making her debut in Aida last November. She was described as a "remarkably talented and satisfying opera singer."

LINCOLN SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA.

An Interview with E. N. DeRubertis.
BY ERNST HERMINGHAUS.

Mr. DeRubertis was the conductor of the Kansas City Little Symphony which played two seasons in Lincoln and which was responsible in no small measure for the promoting of our own orchestra. He said so many kind things about music appreciation in Lincoln and about our orchestral organization, that I can't refrain from telling you all about it.

Mr. DeRubertis said that of all the cities in the fourteen different states his orchestra played in, Lincoln had the finest and most appreciative audience — far superior even to Kansas City itself. He not only felt it as he conducted, but all the musicians in the orchestra felt it as well. They always looked forward to playing in Lincoln, and when some rather heavy number failed to register in Kansas City, they would say "That will go over great in Lincoln." I told him how well Lincoln liked Ravel's "Mother Goose Suite," and he told me when they played it in Kansas City they thought it was children's music, to his no little disgust, as it is not only a very difficult suite to play but a very intellectual composition. He was unstinted in his praise of Lincoln. If Kansas City had the same type of music lovers, they would still have an orchestra, he stated.

Have Fundamentals.

Concerning our own orchestra, the first question he asked was: "Have you a good cello?" I replied that we do have one—that he had been offered the first chair in Portland Symphony orchestra; and besides, we had as fine a clarinet as existed in this country, and an oboist from the Cincinnati orchestra. When he was told that the rest of the reed section was fine and the brass, excellent, he said we had the fundamentals for a fine orchestra. "The reeds must be fine. There are so few of them that they count in an alarming fashion, whereas the larger number of strings cover up any deficiencies in individuals."

As to size of orchestra, he believed we had the ideal number of instruments when we complete the trombone and French horn choir. "There isn't anything you can't play; in fact, if you had but thirty men, you would have all the classical music of Bach, Schubert, Mozart and Beethoven, and when you go through all of that you will have spent many years."

Approves Lincoln Plan.

"The use of local musicians is a highly satisfactory method for two reasons: It tends to eliminate jealousies and faction lines, and also permits an orchestra at the lowest possible cost. The chief trouble with most symphony orchestras is that they try to copy Chicago or Philadelphia. They think sixty to a hundred players are needed, and a prima donna conductor. You can't handle such an organization without a lot of money and consequent deficits. You are to be congratulated on such a plan as yours—profits instead of deficits. I know nothing like it anywhere and it may come to be known as the Lincoln method. Our Kansas City Little symphony became extinct after incurring a $100,000 deficit over a seven-year period."

Mr. DeRubertis has had several offers to conduct orchestras, but has remained in Kansas City to direct his orchestral school. He has two orchestras where the players pay for the privilege of orchestral and ensemble instruction. Besides, he has a piano ensemble and chamber music group. The work is proving enjoyable, is not without profit, and gives him time for his own composition. He has just finished a symphonic poem for grand orchestra which he is naming "Pilate." He seemed anxious for the Lincoln orchestra to introduce it, himself conducting the number.

Harold Loring, lecture recitalist and pianist on the music of the American Indian, will present the university school of fine arts convocation at the Temple theater Tuesday at 11 o'clock. Mr. Loring, conductor of music with the Passion play to be presented in Lincoln this week, was appointed by President Roosevelt to live among the Indians of the west and to record their primitive music for preservation. Miss Dorothy Lewis, concert pianist, will assist him.

Harold Hollingsworth gave a vocal solo at the state convention of the American War Mothers Wednesday morning.

The following students took part in an afternoon recital Saturday at the home of Mrs. Thomas: Maxine Black, Viola Curry, Wayne Elmelund, Marjorie Filley, Alice Hall, Elizabeth Harris, Norene Johnston, Leita Likes, Velma Likes, Faith Medlar, Betty Temple, Marian Williamson.

Screen Siftings

Choose John Mack Brown — John Mack Brown has been chosen to play opposite Mary Nolan in "Ropes," her new starring vehicle for Universal. Don Douglas was to have had the party, but work on another picture could not be completed in time. "Ropes" is only a temporary title for the picture. Most of the dramatic action of the story takes place in a lighthouse out in the ocean. Robert Ellis will assume the "heavy" role and other important members of the supporting cast are Audrey Ferris, Rosa Rosanova, Churchill Ross and Monte Carter.

Seek Man for Lincoln Role—Frank McGlynn seems to be the most likely candidate for the role of Abraham Lincoln in D. W. Griffith's screen version of the martyred president's life. Mr. McGlynn originated the role in John Drinkwater's play, and scored a huge success in it. Rumors were also afloat that Mr. Griffith, himself, would assume the role in the picture.

Boy In Another Role —Nestor Aber, who took the role of a boy in "A Woman of Affairs," has been cast as Charles Rogers' younger brother in "Here Comes the Bandwagon." Nestor, who is only twelve years old, is the soprano soloist in the boys' choir at the Wilshire Presbyterian church in Los Angeles. His voice will be an asset in the new Rogers' picture, because it's an all-talking production.

Desert Vaudeville for Screen—The invasion of the vaudevillians of the screen still continues. Hugh McCormack and Lester Wallace are the latest players on the vaudeville stage to cast their lot with talking pictures. They have been signed by Fox and will make heir screen debut in "Nix On the Dames." May Clark, Will Harrigan and Robert Ames are also featured in the picture.

Plenty of Variety—Elaborate ballets and song numbers will intersperse the dramatic action of the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production in which Tom Moore and Blanche Sweet are featured. Mr. Moore will be seen again as an Irish policeman and Miss Sweet will take the part of a Broadway butterfly. The story is as yet untitled, but deals with life on the glittering White Way.

Due For a Rest—As soon as he completes work on "Medals," Gary Cooper will take a much needed vacation on his dude ranch in Montana. "Medals" is his first starring vehicle under his new Paramount contract. Every member of the supporting cast in the picture was reared in London.

Wesleyan Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Barnett were guests of Professor and Mrs. Howard A. Durham for a few days last week. Mr. Barnett was graduated from Wesleyan with the class of 1925. He later received the A. M. degree from the University of Minnesota. He was afterwards professor of chemistry in Valparaiso university. He is soon to take up research work for a commercial firm in Cleveland, Ohio, investigating the subject of milk supply. Mrs. Barnett as Margaret Bogle was graduated from Wesleyan in 1924. She received the A. M. degree from the University of Nebraska in 1927. Mr. Barnett is a brother of Miss Evelyn L. Barnett, now a junior in Nebraska Wesleyan university.

The Wesleyan Y. M. C. A. held a stag social in the Lincoln Y room on Friday evening.

Harold Loring, music director of "The Passion Play" to be presented in the coliseum October 17, will be the attraction in Wesleyan assembly on Monday, October 14.

Dr. Edward R. Lewis, professor of philosophy addressed the chapel assembly on the subject, "Is Optimism Reasonable." He brought out the idea, quoting William James, that optimism and pessimism are matters of temperament. William James himself was a meliorist, that is, he held that the world was fairly good, but could be made much better. On this position Dr. Lewis aligned himself with Professor James. He admitted that it is not easy nowadays to be an optimist, that many facts and conditions seem to dispute this attitude. He referred to many books of late years, such as "Mankind at the Cross Roads," "The Revolt of the Unfit," "Whither Mankind," and the like, as giving aid to the side of pessimism. Dr. Lewis, on the other hand, finds several bases for his optimistic view. Whether the field of history and biography be investigated, the social advancement, or the status of religious thought be scanned, all give positive evidence that the trend of mankind is upward. Dr. Lewis concluded that optimism is reasonable, providing it be reasonable optimism.

if so, to whom? Has she any children?

John Gilbert certainly surprised us all by his marriage. I was sure he would marry Greta Garbo, because she seemed so much his type, but you never can tell. I didn't think Joan and Doug would really get married. I thought it was just a lot of talk, but they did. It's hard to tell what is talk and what's true about the movie people.

Hoping I haven't asked too many questions, I will sign off as station, LEN—Crete, Nebr.

You lose the money this time, Antonio is a Spaniard.

Myrna is an all-American model. Nothing oriental about her except her name and perhaps her eyes.

There's been just one woman in Conrad's life, and that is Ruth Helms. She is the one and only Mrs. Nagel, in spite of the fact that that does not bear up the Hollywood reputation.

Viola's first husband was John Collins. He died with the flu about ten years ago.

Mr. O'Brien continues to remain a bachelor. He is not related to George in any way, except professionally.

Billie is Mrs. Irvin Willat. She has no children. You may feast upon her beauty again in "On the Riviera." Walter Pidgeon plays the hero in this picture.

There is a bit of uncertainty about these screen people, but they are, after all, no different from the rest of us.

Dear Movie Editor.—What has happened to the team of Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell. I haven't seen them together for several weeks, and I don't think they are half as good apart. Won't they ever make another picture as a team, and if so what is it? I think Janet is one of the most beautiful stars on the screen. Is her hair really red? I heard it was. Is she married yet? I wish she would marry Charles Farrell.

I heard that Marilyn Miller was to make pictures. Do you know if this is true, and if so what her first picture will be.

Who was Jack Pickford's first wife?

What is Jack Mulhall's next picture and who plays opposite him?

Awaiting an early answer, I am
BRITA MAE.

You will have the pleasure of seeing Janet and Charles together again very shortly. They are costarring in "Lucky Star." Yes, Janet is classed with the red heads on the screen. She is still single, but Charles isn't in the running. Charles and Virginia Valli go about together.

Miss Miller has been lured to the screen to make a talking version of her famous musical comedy production, "Sally."

Olive Thomas was the first Mrs. Pickford's screen name.

Lila Lee, the "Cuddles" of Gus Edward's Revue, takes the part of Jack's sweetheart in his most recent release, "Dark Streets."

Screen Siftings

In Featured Role—By special arrangement with Samuel Goldwyn, to whom Vilma Banky is under contract, the Austrian star will play a featured role in Victor Seastrom's first talking picture, as yet untitled. Mr. Seastrom has just returned to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio after eleven months in Sweden. The story of his picture was written by Sydney Howard and deals with the problems of modern life.

Jolson In Berlin Story—"Mammy," an original story by Irving Berlin which will serve as Al Jolson's next screen fodder, deals with Mr. Jolson's own experiences in minstrel shows before he became famous in the entertainment world. Mr. Jolson keeps his own name in the story, and is known as Al Fuller. Lois Moran and Louise Dresser are outstanding in the supporting cast. Irving Berlin is responsible for the songs and musical score of the production.

Screen Siftings

Much Work Ahead—There are no "between picture" days in prospect for Laura La Plante, who is busy with John Boles in "La Marseillaise." Three other stories are being prepared for her. "The Poor Sport," from the magazine story by Rita Weiman is taking screen form under the pens of Clarence Thompson and Arthur Ripley. Albert De Mond has completed the dialogue on "The Behavior of Mrs. Crane," from the stage play by Harry Segall; and Matt Taylor is adapting an original by Jack Townely called "Love and Kisses" for Miss La Plante's picture use.

Abandon Comedy Clothes—Stan Laurel and Charley Chase will lay aside their famous derbies and shabby suits temporarily for Russian tunics and boots. They have been loaned by Hal Roach to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for important roles in "Rogues' Song." It is the first time since the comedians have been teaming together that they have worn special costumes. "Rogue's Song" stars Lawrence Tibbetts, and is taking form under the direction of Lionel Barrymore.

Debonair Role — William Powell will be seen in a sort of "man about town" role in his new picture, "Pointed Heels." He is a debonair dabbler in theatrical arts, and Fay Wray is the show girl. Richard "Skeets" Gallagher and Helen Kane are vaudeville troupers. Phillips Holmes plays the juvenile lead.

Has Best Voice—The fact that Evelyn Brent's speaking voice is registered on the volume indicator at fifteen points, and raises to thirty when she becomes dramatic, is all Greek to the average motion picture fan. But according to the "sound mixer" who has charge of the volume indicator, the figures nidicate that Miss Brent has the most even voice of any player on the Paramount lot. The majority of voices send the needle up to fifty points. Miss Brent will be heard again in "Darkened Rooms," her first picture under her new starring contract.

University Notes

Pamphlets carrying the thesis written by J. M. Aikman, a graduate student in the department of botany, on the "Distribution and Structure of the Forests of Eastern Nebraska," have been received. Mr. Aikman made the study for his doctorate under Dr. J. E. Weaver, professor of ecology. The thesis embodies a complete study of the forest conditions and types in the eastern portion of the state. Dr. Weaver states that copies of the thesis have been requested by a forestry school in Italy. Dr. Aikman is now professor of plant ecology at Iowa State college at Ames, Ia.

"Naturalized Plant Immigrants," is the title of the three-reel picture which will be shown at the Morrill hall auditorium Sunday afternoon at 2:45 and 4 o'clock. This will be the first of the regular Sunday afternoon museum programs under the supervision of Miss Marjorie Shanafelt. The first showing this afternoon will be for juvenile and the second for adults.

The remaining portion of the marine collection of the late Dr. C. C. Engberg has been given to the university, to be placed on exhibit at Morrill hall. Hundreds of shells and marine specimens are included in the last portion of the collection. Dr. Engberg was in the habit of collecting and mounting the specimens himself before giving them to the university. The remaining shells will be mounted and placed in the Engberg collection, reputed to be one of the finest ever made.

Mrs. S. B. Tanner, Lincoln resident, has presented the museum with a concretion representing almost exactly a miniature stockinged foot.

Recent visitors at the college of engineering have been: Albert F. Roth, mechanical '27, engineering department of the Empire Oil & Refining Co. at Bartlesville, Okla.; Paul H. Rogers, civil '23, Union Pacific, Grand Island; Luther R. Branting, civil '27, superintendent of the plant of the American Bauxite Co., Bauxite, Ark.; Glen L. Hawks, electrical '29, Western Public Service Co., Scottsbluff.

Visitors at the department of geology the past week include: C. A. Fisher, consulting geologist from Denver who was formerly connected with the United States Geological survey; Melvin Stirtz, geologist for the Indian Territory Illuminating Oil Co., Bartlesville, Okla.; Donald B. Dow, '17, chief engineer for the Indian Teritory Illuminating Oil Co. of Bartlesville, Okla.; Edward V. Hansen, '26, geologist for the Roxana Petroleum corporation of Houston, Tex.; F. K. Foster, '24, district geologist for the Sinclair Oil & Gas Co., Wichita Falls, Tex.; John Vetter, '22, consulting geologist of the firm of Vetter & Bowman, Houston, Tex.; Wesley G. Gish, '22, chief land geologist for the Sinclair Oil & Gas Co. at Fort Worth, Tex.

Dr. Nels A. Bengston, chairman of the department of geography, has prepared a review and criticism of "Human and Industrial Geography," by Sten De Geer, professor of geography in the University of Stockholm, to be published in a forthcoming issue of the Geographical Review, New York City. The book is a world geography prepared in the Swedish language for use by students in the colleges and universities of the Scandinavian countries.

Miss Louise Pound of the department of English has been placed on the advisory board of the new quarterly, "Folk-Say: A Regional Miscellany." The quarterly is devoted to the lore and letters of the west, and issues from the University of Oklahoma. Others on the advisory board are J. Frank Dobie of the University of Texas, Percy Mackaye, and Edwin Ford Piper of the University of Iowa. Miss Pound is also on the advisory boards of the new quarterly, "American Literature," published by the Duke University Press, and of the "New England Quarterly of History and Letters," published at Harvard. She is the contributor of the articles on "American Dialects" and "American Ballads" in the last edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, which has just appeared. An article by her on "A Recent Theory of Ballad-Making" was printed in the summer issue of the Publications of the Modern Language association.

Favorable comment in both American and foreign scientific journals is being made of the book recently off the press written by Dr. J. E. Weaver of the department of botany. The new book "Plant Ecology" is being adopted as a text in a number of institutions. Dr. Weaver completed the text earlier in the year, and the first printings were out in July.

Carl E. Guthe, chairman of the national bureau of research, at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, is being consulted on the discovery of the arrowhead in the fossilized skeleton of a buffalo dug up in Custer county this summer, E. E. Blackman, curator of the historical society said this week. The announcement of the discovery of this flint has brought new specimens to the state historical society. Duane Judge, Anselmo man, has sent a second arrowhead and pieces of petrified bone found in a "blowout" ten miles west of Demming, on the same spot as the ancient grave of the fosilized bison skeleton.

Believe Site Where Indians Made Human Sacrifices Found At Palmer

Above is a picture of Chief Peta-le-sharu, who is credited in a romantic tale of Indian lore with both rescuing an Indian maiden, who was about to be offered as a sacrifice to the Morning Star and putting an end to the hideous custom of his tribe The medal was presented him by a group of Washington, D. C., women as a reward for his bravery. It was inscribed "To the Bravest of the Brave."

PALMER, Neb., Oct. 12—A. M. Brooking of the Hastings Museum, located at Hastings, Nebraska, in company with George DeBord, assistant postmaster of Palmer has spent the past week in this vicinity investigating the various house sites and caches which are located on the Henry Gering farm five miles northwest of here. Among the many interesting things which they have unearthed are several humane skeletons of what is thought to be young girls.

The unusual fact that they were buried in Indian food caches lead these investigators to believe that they have located the spot where the ancient tribe of Skidi Pawnee Indians formerly offered up human sacrifices to the morning star.

The complete story of the morning star sacrifices as practiced by the Skidi band of Pawnee Indians in an early day is one of the most thrilling of Indian tales. It seems that for many years it was believed by this band that in order to receive the better things of life, thought to be provided by the stars, it was necessary at certain periods of the year for them to offer as a sacrifice to the morning star, a young maiden who had been captured from some neighboring tribe.

Girl Is Saved.

This sacrifice had probably been practiced since time immemorial up to the year 1834. In this year a Comanche girl had been secured and was destined for the scaffold. Just as she was about to be slain a young warrior by the name of Peta-le-sharu rescued her from the horrible death and defied the entire tribe. Mounting her upon a fleet horse he started her towards her home about a hundred miles westward. Some historians have it that Peta-le-sharu then offered himself as a sacrifice in her place although history is not clear on this point.

When the women of Washington, D. C., heard of this feat of heroism they took up a collection had a medal engraved. Upon it was inscribed the words "To the bravest of the brave." It was presented to him with appropriate ceremonies Peta-le-sharu afterwards became Grand Chief of the entire Pawnee Tribe and was in his day probably one of the best known Indians of that time.

The exact site of this sacrifice has never been located, but the famous medal was recovered from a grave which was excavated by Orlando Thompson in the year 1884. The burial from which it was taken was located on the DeBord farm directly north of where the skeletons were found and is about three quarters of a mile from the old Skidi village site. On the Gering farm just east of this village site is a series of abrupt ravines with level ground above them. It is believed that the sacrifces occurred on this level ground as it exactly fits the description of the spot as described by a Mr. Dorsey of the Field Columbian museum who spent several months among the Pawnees in Oklahoma. He interviewed practically every old Indian in the tribe and has written a minute description of the site together with all the horrible details of the ceremony.

The discoveries of Mr. Brooking and DeBord corroborate his account in every respect and Mr. Hill of Hastings who is probably the best posted man on Pawnee history in the world thinks that they are correct in their surmises.
